St. Paul, April .—Styling himself a progressive and mounting squarely upon a progressive platform, Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, advised the Minnesota legislature as to its duty. Addressing the joint bodies of the assembly and speaking with the clear enunciation which is his custom, and talking without notes or manuscript, the former president discussed pending legislation, preached his doctrine of "duty," discussed the duty of a representative and urged cleanliness in politics.

He declared for the direct election of United States senators, but by inference, though without saying so, intimated that the arrangement of such a plan might be left to the national congress.

He approved the progressive legislation of the Minnesota legislature, but aligned himself with the more conservative progressives of the state rather than with the radical element.

Favors Initiative and Referendum.

He declared for the initiative and referendum, but decried the low percentages which would have been attachd to the bill as was urged by the more radical members of the Minnesota house. By inference, he approved the bill as it was finally passed by the house with a high percentage. He would see the percentages governing the invoking of either the initiative or referendum so high that it could not be lightly or frivolously used.

He failed to go on record as favoring the recall, although by inference he did approve it, but specifically insisted it should not apply to the judiciary. He qualified this also by saying that judges should be in touch with the needs of the times, that a judge was a public servant, and that some measure of recall or of ending a judge's service should be evolved, and recommended that a plan should be evolved which would make it possible for a majority of the legislature to remove a judge from office.

He declared himself in favor of a direct primary, but insisted it should be accompanied by a stringent corrupt practices act, because without such an accompanying act, he said, it would encourage the lavish expenditure of money.

Speaking of the duty of a representative, he insisted a representative should represent the sentiment of his constituency, but qualified this, also, by saying that he owed a higher duty to his conscience, and if he thought a measure was wrong he should oppose it, even if his constituency demanded it. He urged that a constituency owed a duty to its representative.

It was a characteristically Rooseveltian address. It abounded in sentiments of high ideals in politics, expressed at times with daring and originality and at other times clothed in the language of platitude and flattest truism.

Occasion a Notable One.

The occasion for the address was as notable as the address itself. The former president was the guest of the state of Minnesota. He had been invited to stop off on his way home from the West, to address both houses of the legislature. Arriving in St. Paul he was at once escorted to the Saint Paul hotel by the committee which had been appointed from both houses and which included Governor Eberhart and Hugh T. Halbert of the St. Paul Roosevelt club.

The address was staged in the house chamber. The speaker's desk was embowered in flowers and every seat in the chamber and in the galleries were filled, while every bit of available space was used for extra chairs.

Members All Present.

Practically all of the members of the house and senate were present, although Speaker Dunn was notably absent.

Colonel Roosevelt spoke for nearly an hour and afterwards was taken to his train, stopping first at the Saint Paul hotel for an informal reception.

Minneapolis.—A play, which is said to be distinctly different from any that has ever been presented, will be seen at the Bijou the week of April 23rd. "The White Squaw," which will be the attraction, is described as an emotional drama in which noble sentiments are spoken and heartbeats fly fast.

Four Days' Fair at Winona.

Winona.—Winona will have four days of county fair this fall instead of three, according to the decision of the ways and means committee of the Winona County Fair association. Preliminary plans were talked over and the fair was tentatively outlined in so far as generalities were concerned. The dates chosen are to be September 19, 20, 21 and 22. This will bring the Winona event the week following the St. Charles county fair and the week before the tri-state fair at La Crosse.

LAY CORNER STONE.

Federal Building at Austin, Dedicated by Masons.

Austin.—The corner stone of the new federal building was laid by the Grand Masonic Lodge of Minnesota with imposing ceremonies. Over 200 visiting Masons were present, and St. Bernard commandery acted as escort. A procession marched through the principal streets, composed of the Austin Masonic lodge, visiting Masons, St. Bernard commandery, and a number of other orders, including the Odd Fellows, the Eagles, the Woodmen, Company M, M. N. G.; McIntyre post, G. A. R., and others. The procession halted at the site of the new building, when the grand lodge laid the corner stone in due and ancient form. The following grand officers officiated: Grand Master Elmer A. Kling, Deputy Grand Master Owen Morris, Senior Grand Warden H. M. Burnham, Junior Grand Warden O. M. Henderson, Grand Treasurer Gustav Widell, Grand Secretary John Fishel, Grand Marshall W. A. Nolan, Grand Orator Prof. J. C. Bryant of St. Paul, Grand Tyler John H. Ludwig.

After the ceremonies the Masons were entertained at a banquet by the members of the Eastern Star. The new building is to cost $50,000 for the superstructure. It is 75 by 50 feet and two stories high. The building will be ready for occupation December 1.

A large number from St. Paul and Minneapolis were among the visitors and Albert Lea, Owatonna, Spring Valley and other Southern Minnesota towns sent large Masonic delegations.

FOUND HANGING TO A TREE.

Litchfield Who Escaped From Fergus Falls Asylum.

Litchfield. — Authorities here were notified that the body of John Palm, a wealthy merchant and member of the city council of this city, has been found hanging to a tree, two miles from the state insane hospital at Fergus Falls, from which institution he had been missing since April 2.

Mr. Palm was sent as a patient to the insane hospital at his own request. He was subject to periods of depression and feared that, while so afflicted he might do himself injury. On Sunday, April 2, after he had been granted his parole, he did not return. Every effort was made to locate him, but without success, until his body was found by Deputy Sheriff [illegible] Nelson of this county.

He is survived by a widow and a large family.

POPE'S DECREE NEEDLESS.

Priests in Archdiocese in St. Paul Declared to Abjure Secular Pursuits.

Minneapolis. — As there is no priest in Minneapolis engaged in purely secular business, the decree of the pope forbidding priests to act as directors of banks or business institutions has little bearing on this portion of the archdiocese of St. Paul, according to Rev. J. Harrington, pastor of the Church of the Ascension.

Bishop Davis of the diocese of Davenport, Ia., has issued orders to priests of his diocese putting the pope's decree into effect. As there is a general law of the Catholic church forbidding priests to engage in purely business pursuits, the formal application of the pope's decree will not, it is said, cause any material change in the government of the church.

HARVEST FOR ATTORNEYS.

Much Litigation Expected From Reopening of Red Lake Lands.

Crookston. — Record developments bear out the prediction that the reopening of the ceded Red Lake Indian lands will cause all kinds of litigation. The attorneys are divided over the proposition, some believing that the regulations issued by the department of the interior at Washington setting the date of settlement upon the land as April 15 and the date of entry as May 15 will be upheld, while others contend that the act as passed by congress on March 16, providing that "hereafter" all said lands are re-opened to entry, will hold in the courts regardless of the action of the land department at Washington.

NEW DUTIES FOR "SINBAD."

Returned Prisoner Put in Charge of Penitentiary Gates.

Stillwater.—Charles Price, known as "Sinbad, the Sailor," the commuted "lifer" who was on parole and voluntarily returned to the state prison, has again been placed in the trusty class and has the important position of turnkey at the main wagon gates of the prison yard.

Part of his duty is to unlock and lock the big gates when teams pass through. Another duty is to see that no one escapes by the gates, which are guarded also by a man on the wall and a man on the street, and tried guards armed with loaded rifles.

Miners to Return to Work.

Winnipeg Man. — Coal miners on strike in Alberta and British Columbia, to the number of 10,000 including allied organizations, asked the minister of labor at Ottawa for a board of conciliation under the Canadian disputes act, and Minister Mackenzie Kink wired his acceptance. The miners will return to work, while the board takes evidence in the matter under dispute. Many towns in Alberta are entirely out of fuel, while coke to run the big smelters is being imported from Illinois.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, April 19.—Riotous scenes marked the adjournment of the lower house of the Minnesota legislature after a three months session noted principally for its lack of accomplishment.

The scene was a fitting ending to the session of the lower branch in its disorganized state. Wild scenes had become almost daily occurrences but that which brought about adjournment rivaled them all. In the midst of the excitement, L. C. Spooner, of Morris, angered by the forced adjournment attacked an alleged representative of the brewing interests and ordered him from the floor.

Belligerent Attitude Assumed.

"You d— scoundrel," he raged. "You leopard. It is you and the breweries who have tied up legislation and disgraced the state of Minnesota." The man hurried from the assembly room while Mr. Spooner was held back by a number of house members.

As a result of the adjournment, nearly 400 proposed laws, many of them important ones, passed into oblivion. It killed the extension of the local option law to cities of the fourth class, the state-wide primary law and other reform measures which had been sent over from the senate.

During the morning session affairs in the house reached such a condition that Speaker Dunn threatened to call out the militia.

Pandemonium reigned, and semblance of order had been lost and a fist fight on the floor had been averted only by a score of members separating the combatants. The house was in an uproar. Few if any of the members were in their seats. The sound of the speaker's gavel echoed through the hall.

It was all part of the debate on the bill to limit senatorial representation to not more than seven from one county.

Representatives Dan O'Neill of Thief River Falls and Thomas Frankson of Spring Valley were the actors in an altercation and a personal encounter such as has not occurred in the Minnesota legislature for years.

Bad blood between the two men developed during the debate on the "six senator" bill, in which O'Neill came to the rescue of the cities, and was interrupted by Frankson. They had words at several times. Frankson kept telling O'Neill that he was making a mistake and would suffer at home because he refused to stand for limiting city representation.

During the pendency of W. I. Nolan's motion to recall the bill from the senate, Frankson walked over into the aisle to where O'Neill was sitting.

"I'll send you to political oblivion, old fellow" he said.

O'Neill, who is excitable and remarkably strong for his years, jumped up and made for Frankson. Seizing him by the coat collar, he began rushing him down the aisle and back toward his own side of the house.

"I've stood enough of that from you," he raged. "You can't give me any more of your talk."

Twenty members were on the spot in an instant, and several of them had hard work in releasing O'Neill's grip from Frankson's coat. The man from Spring Valley was white and O'Neill was shaking as though palsied when he was finally induced to take his seat.

All this time the speaker was hammering with his gavel, and it was several minutes after the men were separated before he got order and could speak. Then he began reading the house a lecture on preserving order. As he talked he began to get excited himself, until he came to the climax and threatened to call out the militia. There was applause from a part of the house, but not from the northern and city members, with whom the speaker is decidedly unpopular.

Thomas Frankson, who according to the blue book is 42 years old and a sturdy fellow of 180 pounds or more, strutted around after the incident and said, "I wish he had come out in the corridor a few minutes and I'd fix him." Mr. O'Neill is 58 years old.

In the senate the disorder was almost as great, although there was no personal encounter.

The deadlock which was kept up all night Friday in the Senate was finally broken. The body adjourned at 3 a. m., to meet again at nine and the "six-senator" bill went through with little opposition.

The senate passed the McKinzie bill, abolishing capital punishment, by a vote of 35 to 19. The life of Patrick O'Malley, the Le Sueur wife murderer, is thus saved. But he will go to the penitentiary for life.

The bill turning over from the state to the city of St. Paul new land created by the change of the bed of the Mississippi river was passed. St. Paul, according to its senators, hopes to sell a part of this land for about $750,000 to railroads for terminal facilities and a union depot and build a Mississippi harbor with the money gained. An amendment by Senator Moonan that the railroads should pay an annual tax of 5 per cent a year on property thus acquired was voted down.

State Tax Levy Is Increased.

The state tax levy for general revenue purpose is fixed at 1.9 mills in the tax bill introduced in the house by L. C. Spooner and passed under a suspension of the rules. This is an increase of .7 mills over two years ago. The levy will net the state about $2,200,000 a year. The entire tax levy for all state purposes for the next two years is 3½ mills, as compared with 2.53 mills fixed two years ago. The total levy will bring the state $4,200,000 annually.

The Oregon plan for direct election of United States senators was among the many bills passed by the senate, by a vote of 55 to 6.

The bill provides for the non-partisan direct election of United States senators. The legislators must sign a pledge either that they will refuse to vote for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes or that they will vote for such candidates. This is a choice in name only, according to both supporters and opponents of the bill, as the legislator who refused to promise to support the popular senatorial candidate would stand no chance of being elected, they say.

At each party primary, under the bill, a candidate of the party shall be selected. At the general election, the different candidates shall be voted on and the legislature will be compelled to elect the popular candidate. This might result here as it has in Oregon and Nevada, in a Republican legislature being compelled to elect a Democrat to the United States senate, or the other way around.

Session Cost Is $308,792.

Legislative expenses for the present session are more than $10,000 in excess of the expenses of the 1909 session. The 1911 legislature has used a total of $300,249.91, while the 1909 solons succeeded in spending but $290,752.75. The standing appropriation of the legislature at the beginning of the present session was 182,000, but the original amount was increased until it totaled $307,000, and with a few incidentals, an aggregate sum of $308,792.42 stands to the credit of the 1911 legislature.

Two anti-liquor bills were acted upon by the senate. The R. C. Dunn bill to abolish road houses lost by a vote of 29 to 24. The bill to allow cities of the fourth class to vote on the license question was passed.

Senators G. H. Sullivan and Rockne had passed a resolution that five members of the senate be appointed a committee to serve without pay to draw up a workingmen's compensation bill.

By a vote of 36 to 18, the senate passed the "hotel zone" bill, conferring upon the Radisson and Dyckman hotels of Minneapolis the privilege to serve liquor to their guests. The bill passed the house several weeks ago. Governor Eberhart said, after the passage of the bill, that he would sign it.

Doings in the House.

Speaker Dunn interrupted business to instruct the sergeant-at-arms to eject all lobbyists from the floor of the house.

George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, is practically exonerated on every charge made against him in the majority report of the house investigating committee. It is signed by C. T. Knapp, C. R. Fowler, J. J. Moriarity and Ralph E. Crane. A minority report signed by Donald Robertson of Argyle and recommending the dismissal of Mr. Ralph.

Senator Schaller was voted $1,000 for his services in the prosecution of Patrick Gibbons, who killed his wife and a priest in South St. Paul.

Ernest Lundeen introduced a resolution abolishing corporal punishment in the state training school. John Lennon gave notice of debate and this resolution went over until today.

The house passed a resolution introduced by Speaker Dunn under suspension of the rules. It asks congress to pass a law prohibiting injunction proceedings to be brought in the federal court on a state law until the case has been finally adjudicated in the state's supreme court.

CITY HALL BURNS.

Brussels, Belgium.—The city hall at Schaerbek, a suburb of the capital, together with its priceless works of art including notable paintings and Gobelins was destroyed by fire. Two firemen were killed during a desperate effort to save some of the contents of the building. It is believed the fire was of incendiary origin.

On Malt Shipments on the Milwaukee Road.

Washington, D. C. — Freight rate advances on shipments of malt from Duluth to Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway were suspended by the interstate commerce commission until August 15, 1911. Meantime an inquiry into the reasonableness of the proposed advances will be made.

GOING AFTER "LAME DUCKS."

Representative Clark of Florida Would Investigate Sinecures.

Washington, D. C. — An overhauling of the nests of numerous "lame ducks" was prescribed in a resolution introduced in the house of representatives by Representative Clark (Dem., Fla. It provided for a committee to investigate the "labors" of all commissions, boards and special bodies in the government service.

THE ALARMING PREVALENCE OF ECZEMA

Finds Victims Among Every Race, Age and Condition.

Of all the diseases of the skin and scalp which torture and disfigure mankind, three-fourths are eczematous. Millions are born with eczema, and it is the only thing other millions have left when they die. Neglect in infancy and childhood, irritating conditions affecting the skin, ignorance of its real nature, improper remedies and many other causes that might be mentioned have created an eczema which, with varying severity, has afflicted countless numbers during their entire lives. Eczema is a skin disease. It is not regarded as hereditary, nor contagious, and is impartially distributed among the rich and poor, the high and low. The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, causing loss of sleep, is usually the most distressing symptom and is caused by the bursting of little vesicles filled with an acrid fluid, which burns as with fire the denuded skin. New vesicles form, fill and burst, scales form upon scales, and crusts upon crusts until disfigurement is added to torture.

One of the most successful treatments for eczema, whether applied to the youngest infant or the oldest person, is hot baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings of Cuticura ointment. For more than a generation, these pure, sweet and gentle emollients have proved the most efficient agents in the speedy and permanent relief of all forms of eczemas, rashes, itchings and irritations of the skin and scalp. Although Cuticura soap and ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, in order that those who have suffered long and hopelessly and who have lost faith in everything may make trial of them without charge, a liberal sample of each will be mailed free to any address, together with a 32-page pamphlet, giving a description and treatment of the various forms of eczema, as well as other affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands—send to "Cuticura," Dept. W, Boston.

Crippled by Tuberculosis.

According to a recent report by Dr. Conrad Biesalski of Berlin there are 75,000 cripples in the German empire out of a population of 60,500,000. Over 50,000 of the cripples are in need of proper treatment. Doctor Biesalski states that in 15 per cent. of the cripples examined, their deformity was due to tuberculosis of the bones and joints, and that there were 10,000 such children in great need of medical treatment. He advocates the establishment of seaside sanatoria for this latter class of cripples.

Saturday, April 22, 1911.

George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, was exonerated on every one of the charges preferred against him by the majority report of the house committee investigating him. A minority report was sent to the house by one member of the committee which demanded the removal of Mr. Ralph on the allegation of general inefficiency.

With but little debate and while deserted by all friends but its author, Senator Cashman, the distance tariff bill was put to death Monday by the railroad committee in the senate It was agreed that its enactment at present would annihilate the great rate cases decided by Judge Sanborn before they could be appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

During this session of the legislature no great reputations have been made. No big men have come to the front. Neither house nor senate have developed men of unusual ability. Both speaker of the house and lieutenant governor have been new figures in the limelight during the present session, but neither has acquired preeminnt distinctions a result. Far from it.

Patrons of country newspapers who believe that the rates charged for advertising are exorbitant should deal with the Curtis Publishing company for a while. In the new schedule for the Curtis company the rates are as follows: Ladies' Home Journal—$7 per line, $5,000 for inside page, $5,500 for inside cover page, $7,000 for outside cover page. Saturday Evening Post—$5 per line, $2,000 for inside page, $3,300 for inside cover page. Even at these rates the publications named secure all the advertising they can possibly carry.

Making a Good Start

Those democrats in the lower house of congress are not such a fool lot, after all. Instead of "playing poltics" they are doing things. They have given reciprocity the right of way, amending it only to recommend a free list that will include a great number of the things the farmer sells.

This does not affect the agreement being only a request that President Taft continue negotiations with Canada to bring about the free admission of the articles named, nearly a hundred in number, and including agricultural machinery, meat products, flour, lumber fencing, leather goods, burlap, salt, bagging, etc.

We can see no objection to this. Certainly if the farmer can stand Canadian competition, the manufacturers can. The same arguments that hold good in one case are as conclusive in the other. We are one people in our language and ideals; the labor cost is as nearly the same; the cost of production no more varied, and the living conditions are as identical as to manufactures as they are in agriculture.

What the United States should have with Canada is absolute free trade. There is no more excuse for anything else than there would be for customs duties between our own states. Both countries would profit by such a condition.

The democrats, also, intend to revise the famous schedule K, covering wools and woolens. They will have the approval of the people in this and President Taft has most wisely given them the data collected upon this subject by the tariff commission.

This measure is a logical sequence to the reciprocity bill, and should reconcile the farmers to any possible loss through free grains. Wools and woolens have a wholly unreasonable and oppressive degree of protection. It not only makes the people's clothing higher in price, but, worse than this, it makes them of poorer grade.

It has induced ways for the remanufacture of rags, for the use of shoddy, for making a good looking out side to a rotton inside, and has turned out a product sadly lacking in wearing qualities. It is, also, shown that the use of cotton has increased out of proportion with the consumption of wool. This is large because cotton has increased in its proportionate use it the manufacture of "all-wool,' goods.

The democrats begin well. If they confine themself to the program they have outlined, and do not try to do too much; if their zeal does not run away with their discretion, and general approval does not turn their heads, they will make a very un-democratic record, historically speaking.

D. P. O'Neil Puts on Prize Ring Stunt

D. P. O'Neil, representative from Theif River Falls, and Thomas Frankson, representive from Freeborn county, had an encounter in the house Tuesday morping over the county repesentation bill.

Frankson accused O'Neil of degrading himself by his vote on the bill and after further exchange of angry words the members clinched. Others interfered and the men were separated.

The feeling was bitter during the closing hours of the legislature and Speaker Dunn declares order must be maintained even if it is necessary to call on Gov. Eberhart for troops.

City May Acquire St. Hilaire Dam

There is a move on foot, started by members of the Commercial club to have the city of Thief River Falls acquire the St. Hilaire dam, and necessary lands therewith. The executive committee of two (Barzen and Hanson) before the council last Tuesday evening and made representations to that body of the needs of the city for more, and more certain, power, and urged that body to take immediate action looking toward the acquirement of the St. Hilaire dam. A committee of three of the council was appointed to accompany Mr. Barzen and Mr. C. L. Hanson to inspect the dam on Thursday.

The same committee was instructed last night to open negotiations with the owners.—Press.

A party of up the river people were in town Thursday inspecting the dam. This deal, if consummated, puts an end to all hopes of any improvement to our town through the development of our waterpower. Mayhap they will allow us an electric light service.

The Redwood.

Redwood forests are practically unharmed by forest fires, and it is common practice for the lumbermen to fell the trees and peel the bark from them and when the dry season is on set fire to the felled timber and burn the branches and bark and other wreckage without practical injury to the saw logs, which procedure would mean disaster to any other wood. Redwood contains no resin or turpentine of any kind, and, owing to its great resistant qualities in severe climatic conditions, is free from cracking or decay, where cinders might lodge and start fires. When burning, it is easily extinguished with a small quantity of water. It has the appearance of burnt cork and is harder to ignite a second time than at first.—Scientific American.

Expert Testimony.

There was not much to be gained from the witness on the stand, who seemed to have a wonderful faculty for holding his tongue, but the lawyer tried once more.

"You say your boat picked up the accused at 9 o'clock, 'or thereabouts,'" he said. "It has been stated that he jumped overboard nearly an hour before that time. Tell me, Captain Sampson, how he appeared to you when you picked him up. If you had been required to give an opinion of him then, what would you have said?"

"Well, I'll tell ye honest," said the captain, when he had disposed of a portentious yawn, "I sh'd've said he was one o' the wettest men, I not the wettest man, that ever I see!"—Youth's Companion.

Good Reason for It.

"I see a premier danseuse is advertised to dance with five snakes twined about her."

A Spicy Subject.

John Lane, the well-known publisher, said at a literary dinner in New York:

"As an editor I find nobody so persistent as the amateur contributor. If the amateur were half as ingenious in writing his material as in trying to land it, he would become a Dickens in no time.

"An amateur said the other day to an editor I know:

"'Allow me to submit this bear story.'

"'My readers don't care for bear stories,' said the editor. 'They want something spicy.'

"'But this,' said the amateur, 'is a story about a cinnamon bear.'"

Symptoms Were There.

"You husband might have a little solid food directly he begins to mend," said the doctor. "But how am I to tell?" inquired the anxious wife.

"The convalescent stages of influenza," replied the doctor, "are marked by a slight irritability."

The next day he called and found the patient's wife radiant. "When I refused to order his steak and onions," she explained, "he came into the kitchen and smashed fourteen soup plates and a dinner service; so, of course, I sent out for steak at once."—Stray Stories.

A Budding Star.

"That's what. Why, that girl can't recite the multiplication table without making the most elegant gestures."

COFFEE CONGESTION
Causes a Variety of Ails.

A happy old lady in Wisconsin says:

"During the time I was a coffee drinker I was subject to sick headaches, sometimes lasting 2 or 3 days, totally unfitting me for anything.

To this affliction was added, some years ago, a trouble with my heart that was very painful, accompanied by a smothering sensation and faintness.

"Dyspepsia, also, came to make life harder to bear. I took all sorts of patent medicines but none of them helped me for any length of time.

"The doctors frequently told me that coffee was not good for me; but without coffee I felt as if I had no breakfast. I finally decided about 2 years ago to abandon the use of coffee entirely, and as I had read a great deal about Postum I concluded to try that for a breakfast beverage.

"I liked the taste of it and was particularly pleased to notice that it did not 'come up' as coffee used to. The bad spells with my heart grew less and less frequent, and finally ceased altogether, and I have not had an attack of sick headache for more than a year. My digestion is good, too, and I am thankful that I am once more a healthy woman. I know my wonderful restoration to health came from quitting coffee and using Postum." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is this. Coffee has a direct action on the liver with some people, and causes partial congestion of that organ preventing the natural outlet of the secretions. Then may follow biliousness, sallow skin, headaches, constipation and finally a change of the blood corpuscles and nervous prostration.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

REVENUE IS CUT

IS INCONSIDERABLE, COMPARED WITH SAVING TO PEOPLE, SAYS MAJORITY REPORT.

WILL BE TEN MILLIONS

Taft's Speeches Quoted to Show Administration Considers Rates Too High—Beef Trust Rapped.

Washington, D. C. — The majority report of the ways and means committee on the so-called farmers' free list bill, submitted to the house by Chairman Underwood, is a merger of Democratic political argument and an analysis of the proposed duty exemptions. The report shows that the bill would reduce the tariff revenue $10,016,495, based on the importations for the last fiscal year, an amount described as "inconsiderable in comparison with the great saving and advantages to all of our people from the additions to the free list provided for."

Protective Theory Broken Down.

Referring to the president's statement that the Republican party had modified its tariff policy so as to limit it for purposes of protection to the difference in cost of production here and abroad with a reasonable profit to the American producer, the committee report says:

"This is a confession, as was the Republican platform of 1908, that the theory of high protective duties, as put forth by the Republican party, has broken down, that combinations and trusts which prey upon the people have been fostered by the tariff and that under high tariff protection American manufactures have forced unreasonable profits from the people."

Again the report declares:

"The Canadian reciprocity agreement now before the house is a recognition on the part of the administration of the injurious effects of the extreme protective policy which has so long been imposed upon the country, and is an effort to mitigate its effects."

Canadian Agreement Not Enough.

The reciprocity agreement, the committee asserts, cannot afford the American people all the needed relief from high prices.

"Action on the agreement involves the necessity of further and immediate action in removing a number of duties on imports from other countries in order that justice may be done to the great army of agricultural producers who, in the Canadian agreement, are to have all the alleged protection removed from their products without a corresponding or reciprocal removal of the protective duties most burdensome on the commodities they must purchase as necessary to sustain their lives and industries."

The report takes up in detail the classified list of articles included in the free list bill. Regarding agricultural implements, it says their manufacture is controlled by trusts and combinations that have sold in foreign countries at lower prices than at home, building up their own foreign trade from $3,859,184 in 1890 to $28,134,033 in 1910.

Beef Trust Assailed.

The Beef Trust is assailed in discussion of the free listing of fresh meats and meat producers. "The existing duties on meats and meats products," it is asserted, "are for the advantage of this combination only," a combination that "controls the markets both in buying and selling, and the result is a substantial addition to the high cost of living from which the people suffer."

Removal of duties on these products, it is argued, will place the farmers in a free market as to foodstuffs and food products. For the reason that the public desire "that no artificial shelter shall be maintained to protect abnormally high prices on food articles in any form," the bill also seeks exemption from duty of wheat flour, semolina, rye flour, buckwheat flour, corn meal and all prepared cereal foods, biscuits, bread and similar articles not sweetened.

In discussing free lumber placed in the bill, hardware excepted, the report maintains that the ownership in this country has become practically a monopoly and has passed for the most part into the hands of great corporations and interests which are speculating on the increasing scarcity. President Taft is again referred to, the report quoting from his speech of Feb. 26, 1911, in which he said:

"By giving our own people access to Canadian forests we shall reduce the consumption of our own, which in the hands of a comparatively few owners now have a value that requires the enlargement of our available timber resources."

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Faribault.—This city passed from the old ward system of city government to the commission form, recently adopted.

Sanborn.—The Chicago & North-Western roundhouse was destroyed by fire, caused by sparks from an engine that was being fired up.

Hastings.—Gilbert Fox and Edward Mattson, the two paroled inmates of the state training school at Red Wing charged with stealing G. R. Crippen's horse and buggy were held to the grand jury.

Winona.—Howard D. Anderson, for a year assistant division engineer for the North Western road in this city, has been transferred to a similar position at Boone, Iowa, and will be succeeded here by W. J. Jackson.

Duluth.—The body of a man embedded in the sand on the north shore of Lake Superior, seven miles from Duluth, was discovered. It is presumed that it has been there all winter and has thus far not been identified.

Ivanhoe.—Stella Kabot, 20, daughter of John Kabot, living four miles north of here, is dead as the result of a gunshot wound inflicted upon her accidentally by a younger brother. The entire charge of shot entered the girl's back.

Duluth.—Rev. J. Wilfred Laughbridge, pastor of the Central Baptist church, has resigned after 17 years occupancy of that pulpit. Rev. M. Fish of Pueblo succeeds him. Rev. Mr. Laughbridge will travel for a year or two.

Duluth. — The Indians of the Fond du Lac reservation have petitioned the department to have W. H. Farr, an inspector of logs, removed. He is paid $150 monthly out of the Indian fund and the Indians think it is too much.

Duluth.—Harry J. Good was sentenced to five years' imprisonment at Stillwater for forgery. He has been a traveling man, and it is said he is wanted in Des Moines and Chicago. Good is married and his wife is said to live in Des Moines.

Minneapolis. — Rev. M. Falk Gjertson, pastor of Bethany Lutheran church for the past ten years, and active in the ministry in Minneapolis for the past 43 years, tendered his resignation to the Bethany church on account of ill health.

Lake City.—Hon. Champ Clark, Speaker of the national House of Representatives, will be the star attraction at the Lake City Chautauqua in this city from July 9 to 16. The Speaker will be here on July 12 and will deliver an address on political topics.

Washington, D. C.—Representative W. S. Hammond, of Minnesota, is "in bad" with his Democratic colleagues in the committee on ways and means. Mr. Hammond was the only Democratic member of the committee to vote against favorable action on the Canadian agreement, which was Thursday ordered reported to the house.

Winona.—A change in managers becomes operative at the Hotel Winona this week. F. H. Irish leaves for Harvard Springs, Mich., where he will manage two large summer resort hotels during the summer, his place here being taken by I. L. Smith, who has been assistant manager of the College Arms at Deland, Florida. Mr. Irish will return to the Hotel Winona in the fall.

Minneapolis. — Minneapolis' birth rate showed an unusual increase for the month of March in the bulletin of the health department. There were 510 births during the month. January, however, is the banner month of 1911 with 557 births, a record breaker. There were 324 deaths, many from pneumonia. Contagious diseases were conspicuous by their infrequency. There were five deaths from typhoid, three from scarlet fever and eight from diphtheria.

Duluth.—A 17-year-old boy, giving his name as James Thomasson and his home as South St. Paul, was arrested and is locked up at the police station charged with forgery. He is alleged to have bought a revolver at a bowery store and tendered a check for $12, made out to Ray Jacobson and signed by William Fagan. He claims that he found the paper. When searched he had $11 in his pocket. Thomasson says he came to Duluth to ship on one of the lake boats.

Bemidji.—Beltrami and Clearwater counties are making an effort to effect a compromise of the suit now pending in district court in which Beltrami county seeks to recover from Clearwater county a portion of the amount of the indebtedness of Beltrami county at the time Clearwater was created. The county board of each county has appointed two of its members—Vigge Peterson and A. E. Rake for Beltrami county and T. O. Nelson and Theo. Welte for Clearwater—to endeavor to reach a mutual agreement.

Tracy.—The two-year-old daughter of E. F. Klocow was so severely scalded by falling into a tub of hot water that death resulted. The boiler of hot water had been taken from the stove and placed on the floor and while the baby's mother was attending to the wants of another sick child the accident occurred.

Duluth.—The old Duluth Bethel, which has been conducted by the Bethel society along charitable lines for twenty years, was sold with the real estate for $18,000 to H. B. Fryberger, a Duluth attorney. The Bethel society will erect a new building.

Duluth. — Despondent because his wife sought a divorce from him, Albert Gronquist committed suicide. He took poison in the corridor of an office building just outside the door of the office of his wife's attorney and died a few minutes after reaching the police station.

Belle Plaine.—William Latska, while in a field with his father, August Latska, shot him twice. One bullet hit the elder man in the arm. The other entered the breast. The victim is not expected to live. William Latska was taken to Shakopee to be examined as to his sanity.

THE PRICE OF LAND INCREASING

THE "BACK TO THE LAND" CRY IS EFFECTIVE.

Traveling through the state of Iowa the other day, and Iowa is no exception to the story about to be related, the writer was shown a farm that was offered three years ago for $250 an acre. That appeared to be a high figure for land upon which the owner depended upon the crops of corn, hogs and cattle that could be raised upon it. But it wasn't. A few weeks since the farm changed hands at $325 an acre. Over in Illinois, down in Indiana, up in Wisconsin, across the line in Minnesota, the same experience was met with. And then attention is directed to Canada, which has been the Mecca of so many hundred thousand Americans during the past few years. Not only in Eastern Canada has the price of lands increased, but in Western Canada, during the past few weeks, farm lands have increased from three to five dollars an acre, with the prospect of a similar advance during the next three months. The reason for this is very apparent, and in a few words it may be pointed out that the lands are worth a great deal more than the present prices. The Northwestern Agriculturist of Minneapolis, a paper that was one of the first of the American farm papers to discover the real merits of the lands of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, says: "The reciprocity schedule would encourage American farmers to move to Canada, where the virgin soil will produce greater crops of grain with less labor than can be produced in our own farms in the Northwest. The result will be to enhance land values in Canada." This paper is afraid land values in Canada will be enhanced at the expense of land values in the United States. In face of the fact that land values in the United States are increasing the reasoning scarcely holds. The reason for the advance in value of Canadian lands is partly accounted from the fact, admitted by this paper, that Canada's virgin soil will produce "greater crops of grain with less labor." But that is not the only reason. During the past twelve months 320,000 people have made Canada their home and these are mostly of the farming class. They want farms, and the demand as well as the wealth of the soil is regulating the price. A study of the increase in the acreage of land put under crop last year, which can be had from any Canadian government representative, will prove the point, that the demand is increasing at a greater ratio than even the most sanguine would have predicted.

Triumph of Courage.

Courage and the "power of the human eye," saved Walter Sargent, a prosperous rancher, in the Redwood district, San Jose, when he was confronted by a hungry mountain lion the other evening. Sargent was driving a herd of cows to his home in the foothills when he noticed the big cat stalking him. As it crouched for a spring Sargent turned and fixed the beast with his eye. Man and lion remained as immovable as statues for a few seconds and then the animal turned and trotted away.

ROADS CONSPIRED

THIRTEEN INDICTMENTS FOUND AGAINST COMPANIES ENTERING CLEVELAND.

HANNA CO., RINGLEADER

Rebating and Violation of Elkins Law Alleged by Grand Jury—Government Can Collect Million.

Cleveland, April 27.—Thirteen indictments on a total of 110 counts, charging four iron ore carrying railroads entering Cleveland with rebating, and alleging that two of the railroads and three individuals were guilty of conspiracy to violate the Elkins law, were returned by the federal grand jury here. The railroads are the Pennsylvania company, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, the Bessemer & Lake Erie and the New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate).

Dan R. Hanna, president, and R. L. Ireland, second vice president of the M. A. Hanna company, and D. T. McCabe of Pittsburg, fourth vice president of the Pennsylvania company, each were indicted on one count, which charges that the Hanna company has an alleged contract with the Pennsylvania company whereby the Hanna company is said to have rebated to shippers profits of the Ohio & Western Pennsylvania Dock company, a subsidiary concern of the Hanna company. The dock company, which is included in the indictment, leases and operates docks owned by the Pennsylvania company at several Lake Erie ports.

The M. A. Hanna company is one of the largest iron ore, pig iron, coal and coke concerns in the country. One of the exhibits before the grand jury shows the alleged payment to "the Carnegie Steel company of $50,111.93 as a part of the earnings of the dock company. The check reads:

"To the Carnegie Steel company, debtors, for your proportion of remaining surplus earnings of ore shipped from Pennsylvania company dock, year ending March 31, 1909, as per statement below, $50,111.93."

Large Suits to Be Begun.

District Attorney W. L. Day announced immediately following the filing of the report that "large and important suits" would be begun immediately. The cases are interstate commerce commission cases brought to insure that published ore shipping rates are effective. The government will seek to show that the indicted railroads owned docking facilities in Ashtabula, Ohio, and Conneaut, Ohio; that these were operated by companies which were in effect "hired" by the railroads; that the railroads paid excessive rates to the docking companies for loading and unloading iron ore; that the docking companies paid over a portion of the money thus received to the shippers, and that the whole constitutes a conspiracy in violation of the Elkins law.

The penalty for rebating is a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $20,000, with imprisonment not to exceed two years. The penalty for conspiracy is not to exceed a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment not to exceed two years. In addition, under the Elkins law, the government has the right to bring civil suit for three times the amount of money rebated. It would be possible, in case of conviction, for the government to collect many millions of dollars.

The investigation leading up to yesterday's action of the grand jury was started several months ago and is the first government inquiry into ore transportation methods in the lower lake regions. The matter was brought to the federal grand jury's attention three weeks ago.

Forty Witnesses Examined.

District Attorney W. L. Day and his assistants, Attorneys Joseph Fogg and J. S. Bachman, Attorney John H. Marble for the interstate commerce commission and Attorney R. C. Marshall for the department of justice conducted the case. About 40 witnesses were examined before the grand jury, including officials representing the railroads and ore companies from the lakes to Kentucky.

Among these were representatives of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company, Pittsburg; the Carnegie Steel company, Pittsburg; the M. A. Hanna company, Cleveland; the Wheeling Steel & Iron company; the Ashland Iron & Mining company; the American Steel & Wire company, and the National Tube company.

The government's next step will be the issuance of warrants for the parties named in the secret indictments.

ARGYLE SCHOOLS BOOSTED.

Up-to-date, Practical Courses of Study Are Feature in Booklet.

Argyle.—The Argyle Commercial club has just issued a fifty-page illustrated booklet, which shows most commendable enterprise, and will serve to advertise the advantages of Northern Minnesota wherever it is being sent, and the idea is to be followed by other commercial clubs.

The publication contains a frontispiece showing Argyle's magnificent new high school building, and full-page cuts are given elsewhere showing the cooking, sewing and manual training classes at work.

The special feature, however, is a full-page illustration showing the students busy in their gardens. Each boy last year planted and cared for a garden 20 by 120 feet; each had a variety of vegetables, etc., and was instructed as to the planting and care of the various varieties. The keenest competition was the result.

DIOCESE IS INCORPORATED.

Winona Catholic Heads Form Business Corporation.

Winona.—The Catholic Diocese of Winona, a religious corporation, has filed articles of incorporation in Winona, Bishop P. R. Heffron and Rev. Edward H. Devlin, vicar general of the diocese of Austin; Rev. James Pacholski of Winona, chancellor of the diocese, Rev. Nicholas Schmits of Rolling Stone and Rev. Robert Hughes of Mankato, are represented in the incorporation. The corporaters will be at Winona. The corporation is organized "to take charge of and manage all the temporal affairs of the diocese, and to promote the spiritual, educational and other interests of the diocese."

The limit of indebtedness is $300,000 unless by the unanimous consent of all the members it is raised, at which time it may extend to any amount.

Roads Preparing for Lake Season, Which Begins April 23.

Duluth.—The Duluth & Iron Range railroad has begun shipping iron ore to its docks at Two Harbors.

The Issabe and the Great Northern roads are ready to wove ore, and etrly next week will see all the lines active. The roads will fill their docks at Two Harbors, Duluth and Superior, and loding to boats will begin about April 28.

Duluth.—Duluth is one of the large home ports for documented vessels on the Great Lakes. The quarterly report of the collector of customs shows 439 vessels registered as of April 1, with a gross tonnage of 902,223 tons. In point of tonnage Duluth leads all other lake ports.

TRY GASOLINE TRACTOR.

New Mechanical Device Does Work of Many Horses.

Crookston.—The first gasoline tractor seeding and cultivating outfit ever seen in Polk county started operations on one of the farms owned by W. H. Rounseville of St. Peter, located four miles southeast of the city, and operated by J. A. McMillan. It is a 30 horsepower engine and following it is a disc harrow. Hitched next are two 22-shoe drills and in the rear was dragged two timbers to smooth the surface. The outfit has a capacity of 50 acres a day, seeded and dragged. It is operated by two men and the cost is less than half that of doing it with horse flesh, and when the ground is in the condition it is now the results are ideal.

SIMPSON WINS TWO SUITS.

Minnesta Attorney General Gets Quick Action in Supreme Court.

Washington.—Attorney General Geo. T. Simpson got quick action in the supreme court in the lumber cases he argued last week and in both there is a victory for the taste.

Both involved timber trespass on school lands, one by the Rat Portage Lumber company and the other by the Le Sueur Lumber company. The court below awarded damages at $6,800 to the state in the Rat Portage case and $8,200 in the Le Sueur case.

Chief Justice White announced that both were dismissed for want of jurisdiction, which confirms the decision of the lower court. The announcement was verbal and was not accompanied by a written opinion.

Auto Leaps Against Building.

Winona, April 24.—A peculiar automobile accident occurred in the downtown section. C. E. Erickson was cranking his machine along the curbing when the engine started and the machine suddenly leaped backward. The owner ran for the fugitive car, jumped into the seat, but before he could control it, it had mounted the curbing and crashed into the front of the Fruetel cleaning establishment. The entire front of the store was wrecked and the machine badly damaged.

ATTY.-GENERAL RESTRAINED.

Minneapolis Man to Fight the "Seven-Senator" Law.

St. Paul. — In a letter addressed to Governor Eberhart relative to the validity of the seven-senator constitutional amendment, Attorney-General Simpson intimates that the governor should have received his opinion before filing the amendment to the secretary of state. Without directly saying so the attorney general holds that the absence of the governor's signature will not invalidate the submission of the amendment cutting representation to the people. In spite of this the attorney general leaves the matter open to doubt if the court action threatened should be brought.

Notice of injunction proceedings brought in the Hennepin county district court to restrain him from recognizing in manner or attempting to have placed upon the official ballot the proposed amendment was served upon Secretary of State Schmahl.

The action is being pushed by Senator W. D. Washburn, of Minneapolis, one of the few places affected by the law.

PROSPERITY AT PARK RAPIDS.

Building In and About City and Real Estate Deals Is Evidence.

Park Rapids.—Evidences of general prosperity in and around Park Rapids are noticeable at this time. Although there was a partial crop failure last year, the improvements that are being made on the farms tributary to town are a surprise to those who are not familiar with local conditions.

Nine large new barns that are being built or will be built this spring indicate the change from grain raising to dairying that is taking place and quite a number of new farm homes will be built this season. Farms are being fenced with woven wire fencing and there is a very noticeable spirit of progress and improvement in all directions. The outlook for a good movement in real estate is reported excellent by local dealers.

TEN RUNAWAY BOYS CAUGHT.

All But Two, Who Escaped From Red Wing Are Apprehended.

Red Wing. — Then of the twelve boys who escaped from the state training school Sunday evening have been captured by officers and returned to the institution.

There is little opportunity for the other two to get away, as all the trains are being watched and the farmers living within a radius of from ten to fifteen miles have been notified to be on the lookout. If the boys are captured by citizens, a reward of $10 is paid by the state.

The ten were rounded up within a mile or two of the city limits. Their escape was effected when the windows of the lavatories in the basement of the building were broken.

WOULD NOT EAT BEANS.

Northern Minnesota Woodsman Says Foreman Beat Him for Refusal.

Duluth.—Charles Kils, a woodsman who has worked for the Johnson Wentworth Lumber company this winter, has brought suit against the company and James Chisholm, one of its foremen, for $800 as balm for a beating which he alleges was given him by Chisholm.

Kils says that the foreman beat him because he ate too much bread and neglected the pork and beans. Kils did not understand when the foreman told him to devote less attention to bread and certain other articles of food, and eat more beans, and that led to the attack.

CAN BAR VETERANS.

Law Giving Preference to Army Men Held Unconstitutional.

Duluth.—Judge Dibell declared unconstitutional the state law which provides that old soldiers shall be given the preference in state appointments where they can qualify for the situation.

The decision was in the suit of Albert Woolson against Gov. Eberhart. Mr. Woolson sought the office of deputy boiler inspector.

Minneapolis—Al. W. Martin's production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the offering at the Bijou the week of April 30. Martin's company numbers nearly fifty people. Horses, donkeys, Shetland ponies and six genuine Siberian bloodhounds are trained to participate in the drama.

AGED PAIR TO WEST.

Minnesota Sisters Have First Train Ride in Fifty Years.

Stanwood.—On their first train ride in 50 years and the second of the their lives Miss Annie Neilsen, 98 years old, and her sister, Mrs. Sarah Larson, 95, arrived here at the Josephine Old People's home, maintained by Northwestern Norwegians. The trip was made from Christiania, Minn., in four days, and the nonagenarians were gleeful over the many sights they had seen.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

PLEASING A PATIENT

SOME GOOD DIVERSIONS FOR THE SICK ROOM.

Must Never Be Forgotten That Immediate Surroundings Exert a Great Influence—Flowers Always an Interest and Delight.

The immediate surroundings exert a great influence upon the general state of the mind and health of the patient. Take a room with the walls of a plain color; the pictures are a source of unceasing pleasure. Have about eight prints; the next week, under the pretense of cleaning, replace the pictures with others.

The patient will discover after a time an entirely different lot hung in their place. Each week the same thing can be done. The patient is sure to take an interest in them, and be glad to talk of them with friends.

A second interest and delight are the flowers. Of course, only living plants would be allowed to stay in the room all the time, but a broad shelf can be attached near the bed, and the patient will love to watch each new leaf and bud unfold day by day. An ever blooming cyclamen and a red geranium are good plants. A glass bowl, with two or three goldfish, are a good idea, as they will interest a patient wonderfully, watching the graceful movements and exhibitions of intelligence.

I heard of a patient who was too ill to read, but a friend brought in some seed catalogues. It was wonderful what a lot of pleasure the patient got out of them. It required so little mental effort to just look at the pictures and read the names, with here and there a description.

It is like greeting old friends.

And the announcement of a new variety of some favorite kind of flowers was quite exciting. As the patient's mind began to regain some of its activity he planned what he would have this year in his garden.

Then he drew diagrams, and laid it out carefully—here the formal garden, here old-fashioned and wild flowers, and beyond the vegetables. Of course, it took endless rearrangements, and he was brought all the illustrated garden catalogues procurable.

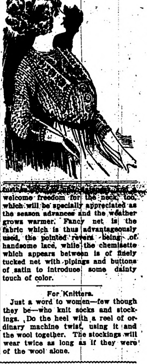
It was great fun and amusement. A friend coming in would greet him with: "I've discovered a new variety of such a flower we simply must have." and discussed the garden quite seriously. As spring approached a small box was brought, in which he put two or three seeds of several kinds of flowers. After the third day something pushed through the earth, and nearly every morning there was another seed coming up.

It was exciting to guess which would come up next, or which would get its second leaf first. When bigger a few of the seedlings were planted in pots and kept on the window shelf. When they came into bloom he was proud of them. Fond as you may be of plants that are given you those you have watched grow seem much more your own.

BLOUSE FOR SPRING WEAR

Collarless Garment That Will Be Appreciated as the Warm Season Comes On.

The new aspects of our old friend, the blouse, are so distinctly attractive that there will be special interest and pleasure in making choice of those which are to complete your spring costumes. The design shown here is one of the best, its Magyar modeling making it most comfortable, while the absence of any collar-band gives still [illegible] a welcome freedom for the neck, too, which will be specially appreciated as the season advances and the weather grows warmer. Fancy net is the fabric which is thus advantageously used, the pointed revers being of handsome lace, while the chemisette which appears between is of finely tucked net with pipings and buttons of satin to introduce some dainty touch of color.



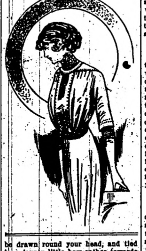
For Knitters.

Just a word to women—few though they be—who knit socks and stockings. Do the heel with a reel of ordinary machine twist, using it and the wool together. The stockings will wear twice as long as if they were of the wool alone.

HOUSE GOWN OF CASHMERE

Remarkably Pretty Little Dress With New Ideas That Make Effective Touches.

This little dress is to be made in cashmere of a soft, deep blue, and, of course, in all-in-one princess form, though the waist is sufficiently defined by an encircling band of brighter blue satin, whose shading shall be matched by the little tie, and the scarf which, when tied round the hair, gives such a pretty finish to the whole toilet, as well as the coiffure. Make this, by the way, from piece satin of the softest, cut on the cross, and just hemmed all round, and let it be sufficiently long to be drawn round your head, and tied in a jaunty little bow rather towards one side at the back. It should measure, say, seven inches at its widest part, in the center, and taper at the ends to two or three, and I am quite sure that you will be so well pleased with its effect that you will speedily provide yourself with other scarves to repeat and emphasize some special touch of color in all your different gowns.—London Madame.



STENCILING THE RAG RUG.

Properly Done, It Will Make a Really Charming and Unique Bit of Furnishing.

Have you thought that rag rugs can be made things of beauty by stenciling them? Take a rug woven all over of white rags, for instance; stencilled in some conventional designs in a queer blue or green, it becomes a fit covering for your bedroom floor, a really charming and unique bit of furnishing.

Another pretty variety is the rag rug made of all sorts of bright colors, woven without respect to design, and then finished with a stencilled border of some solid harmonizing color.

Colors should be bought in the raw tint, and then diluted to the shade desired with white lead or common white paint. The latter is better, as the linseed oil contained in it sets the color and makes the rug washable.

For the Needlewoman.

Heavy gray linen is much used for the background for embroideries which are to be employed as house decorations. Bedrooms and living rooms for country houses are furnished in gray in many instances, and the linen is used for bed hangings, cushion covers, table cloths and window hangings. Ambitious needlewomen are embroidering these articles in quite elaborate designs in several colors. For one bedroom a set of hangings for the bed and windows is being made of the gray linen embroidered with designs of wood fairies and fuchsias in tones of violet, green, pale yellow and fuchsia red.

Wool Flowers.

The very latest Paris modification of the artificial corsage bouquet is the single flower, an orchid, a chrysanthemum, or what not, worked in delicate shades of fine wool, wonderfully wrought both as to form and color, and nested within the scarf around the wearers' throat.

This does not sound very attractive, I know, but really these wool flowers are lovely, and anyone who knows how to make paper flowers should know how to make these also. They are much more durable than the silk and rice-paper creations, and can be easily cleaned.

Saturday, April 29, 1911.

We republish this week the call for bids for remodeling the court house. But two bids were offered at the last meeting and the commissioners rejected them both and directed the auditor to issue another call.

With this issue will be found a supplement containing the laws as passed by the last legislature. Our readers cannot now plead ignorance of the law. These supplements appear in every publication in the state.

An admitted evil in every new country is the holding of land by non-resident speculators. It places a handicap on every settler who is trying to develop his farm and make it a home. Speculation in land is based on the theory of the actual settlers improving the country—the increase in value being really at the expense of the actual settler. This condition could be discouraged some by extra taxation of the vacant and non-producing lands—same as is being started by the Canadian government in the prairie provinces.—Warroad Plaindealer.

The Four Parties

As the extra session of congress gets into the running it becomes more than ever plain that there are four big political parties in this country instead of two. They are the standpat and progressive republican parties, the conservative and liberal democratic parties.

At no period in American history have more than two national organizations had more than an ephemeral existence. Old parties die and new ones spring up, old parties absorb new ones death or coaliton brings the struggle back to the two party system.

The four parties of today cannot remain four. There must be a new alignment. Men of one view must join their fellows even if it means the abandonment of symbols, the changing of tags, the galloping to unaccustomed guidons. The growing strength of the progressive republican cause indicates that it will control the party completely before many more months. There is still a question of denomination between the conservative democrats and the progressive democrats. While that factional uncertainty continues, the line of fracture in the republican ranks becomes more clearly defined. The progressive republicans have an advantage in time. The liberal elements in the United States will group themselves naturally with this faction. When the fog lifts the democratic party will be found to consist of its own conservative wing and what will have been stadnpat republicans.—Duluth News Tribune.

The Waterpower

The transfer of the waterpower to the city of Thief River Falls is as yet in the negotiation stage. That the deal will be made now seems pretty tolerably certain, at least from the point of view of the Thief River people. Members of the committee so expressed themselves to some of our citizens last week during their visit here.

William P. Murphy of Minneapolis, who claims to be the present owner of the property, is the man through whom the waterpower trust has acquired several such properties, and that our dam will pass at once into the hands of the trust if not purchased by Thief River Falls seems a settled fact.

Delegate to Development Meeting

C. L. Hanson of the First National bank, of Thief River Falls, has been appointed as one of the Minnesota delegates to attend the meeting of the Northwestern Development association to be held on May 4 and 5 at Helena, Mont. There is no doubt that he will be one of the most energetic of the delegates from this state.

THE SPECTATOR is read by more people in the south half of Pennington county than any other paper published in the county. Its readers believe what it says. Its subscribers take it because they want to read it and they willingly pay the price. Its subscription list is bona fide. None of its subscribers were gained by offering bonuses or prizes, or by conducting voting contests, or shading the price.

THE SPECTATOR has been published at the old stand for now nearly thirty years, and while it has had its ups and downs its reliability is unquestioned. It does not print as much matter as some machine set papers but, which is better, every word it does print is of interest to its readers.

It is the official paper of Pennington county and of St. Hilaire village.

We received this week a piece of poetry apparently intended for publication in these columns. It was not without merit and we would have been glad to have used it, but it bore no signature and we had no means of judging of the motives of the writer.

F. W. Busse, our genial ex-land- who for the past two years has successfully guided the fortunes of our chief hostelry, the Markham, has decided to remove to Baudette, where he has contracted to engage in a more thriving community and a business that will pay greater returns in a business way. People of St. Hilaire will all join in sorrowing over the empty aspect of our largest hotel and can only wish Mr. Busse well in his new enterprise.

The M. E. Industrial club of St. Hilaire is planning a rummage sale some time in the summer and would consider it a great favor if the ladies of St. Hilaire would make a collection of such articles as are of no further use to them and which some one else might make use of. A regular canvass will be made of the town later and all of these things will be collected then. We will be glad to return this favor later to the other churches if they wish. We would like if those living in the country would be so kind as to leave what they have collected with Mrs. Carl Krueger.

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help.

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life.

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."—Mrs. MARI JANETTE BATES, Box 134, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

Good Definition.

A New York judge, it will be remembered, recently declared unconstitutional the new law that an automobilist, having run over a pedestrian, must stop and leave his name. The judge said that the automobilist had a perfect right to run away and leave the mangled victim to bleed to death alone for the reason that, in criminal cases, no man is obliged to bear witness against himself. James Halden Wilkes, president of the Defense Society of Atlanta, discussed this legal decision at the society's last meeting. "And that," he cried hotly, "is called justice. Well, indeed, was a search after justice once defined as a blind man looking into a dark room for a black hat that isn't there."

Youthful Criminals.

One of the most distressing cases he has ever had to deal with faced a Liverpool (England) magistrate recently, and one cannot wonder at his exclamation: "What can I do with these babies?" as he gazed upon five tiny prisoners in the dock. The youngest was only seven years old, and the eldest eleven, yet the quintet for two months have carried out thefts and other depredations with such skill and cunning that for two months the police and detectives have been trying in vain to find out who were the thieves. No fewer than 40 charges were brought against the children. The 7-year-old child was the ringleader, and quite an adept at thieving and planning thefts.

SOME QUEER TRADES

Unusual Occupations Revealed in Census Report.

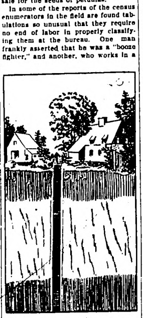
Kansas City Man Who Bottles Smoke—Unique Task Performed by Government Employees in Washington—Raise Frogs for Profit.

Washington.—As a part of the task of compiling the thirteenth census of the United States, the bureau will publish a report on the various occupations by which men and women in this country earn their daily bread. Though it will be many months before this report will be given to the public, a conservative estimate places the number of classifications of industry at between 7,000 and 8,000.

It seems a safe prediction to state that there will be found but one man in the entire country making a living from bottling the smoke of burning hickory wood. This man, who lives in Kansas City, contends that his bottled smoke, let loose in an air tight compartment in which meat has been placed, will produce the same effect upon the meat as though cured by hickory smoke in the usual manner.

Nor would the uninitiated expect to find profit in raising bullfrogs for their legs. Two New Jersey women, however, are making a good livelihood by so doing and a certain California woman obtains over $100 an ounce wholesale for the seeds of petunias.

In some of the reports of the census enumerators in the field are found tabulations so unusual that they require no end of labor in properly classifying them at the bureau. One man frankly asserted that he was a "booze fighter," and another, who works in a saloon, styled himself as a "destroyer of men."



Shows Danger in Digging Wells.

Such occupations as "pouncer," in a hat factory; "tobies," a maker of stogies; "whittler," in a straw works; "dock walloper," a longshoreman; "vibrator," in a clock factory; "tonger," in connection with oysters; "teaser," in a glass factory; "scabbler," in quarrying; "flosser," in a corset factory, and "dubber," in ship building, are all unusual occupations that must be listed.

In Washington especially are there a large number of persons who earn their living by performing unusual tasks. The majority of them are employed by the government. There is a young man in the National museum—Henry Hendley—who is known as the official portrait-bust maker of Indian features for a unique portrait gallery of the North American redskins.

I. B. Millner is an expert modeler in papier mache of things past, present and future for the National museum.

Along similar lines is the work of Edwin Howell, a maker of maps. In his workshop he evolves relief maps of certain sections of the country which not only indicate rivers and mountains and towns, but all the minerals, rocks, flowers, trees, and varying soils to be found there.

One of the most interesting of his maps was made for the marine hospital and public health service. It is intended as a warning against allowing people ignorant of geological conditions to dig wells, and as a plea for the artesian well.

There are expert tea and coffee tasters in the treasury department who tell the value and grades of these commodities by placing a few grains on the tongue. And in the department of agriculture there is a squad of young men who eat drugged foods to determine just how poisonous they are.

One in 275 Is Insane.

New York.—One out of every 275 persons in New York city is insane, according to Dr. Albert W. Ferris, president of the state lunacy commission, who is delivering a course of lectures before the New York School of Philanthropy. The state hospitals for the insane now house 32,000 patients, and private institutions care for 11,000 more. New cases admitted to the state asylums average about 150 a week. The cost of caring for an insane patient is approximately $200 a year."

Stuff Rabbits With Quail.

Topeka, Kan.—Stuffing cleaned rabbits with quail and shipping them out of the state has enabled many hunters to evade the quail-shooting law in Kansas this season. Prof. L. L. Dyche, state fish and game warden, who has just obtained proof of the violations, said warrants probably would be sworn out for the hunters.

Noted Inns to Go.

New York.—Two of New York city's famous hotels—the Hoffman house and the Gilsey house—will close their doors immediately. The Gilsey house will be converted to business purposes. Both hotels in their day have had the names of many men of national prominence upon their registers.

GIBSON'S ONE GOOD POINT

In the Old Gentleman's Eyes It Outweighed Any, Slight Error in Orthography.

The old man had given his son a very fair education, and had taken him into his shop. The young fellow was over-nice about a great many things, but the father made no comment. One day an order came in from a customer.

"I wish to goodness," exclaimed the son, "that Gibson would learn to spell."

"What's the matter with it?" inquired the father, cheerfully.

"Why, he spells coffee with a 'k.'"

"No—does he? I never noticed it."

"Of course you never did," said the son, pettishly. "You never notice anything like that."

"Perhaps not, my son," replied the old man, gently; "but there is one thing I do notice, which you will learn by and by, and that is that Gibson pays cash."

"ECZEMA ITCHED SO I COULDN'T STAND IT."

"I suffered with eczema on my neck for about six months, beginning by little pimples breaking out. I kept scratching till the blood came. It kept getting worse, I couldn't sleep nights any more. It kept itching for about a month, then I went to a doctor and got some liquid to take. It seemed as if I was going to get better. The itching stopped for about three days, but when it started again was even worse than before. The eczema itched so badly I couldn't stand it any more. I went to a doctor and he gave me some medicine, but it didn't do any good. We have been having Cuticura Remedies in the house, so I decided to try them. I had been using Cuticura Soap, so I got me a box of Cuticura Ointment, and washed off the affected part with Cuticura Soap three times a day, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on. The first day I put it on, it relieved me of itching so I could sleep all that night. It took about a week, then I could see the scab come off. I kept the treatment up for three weeks, and my eczema was cured.

"My brother got his face burned with gunpowder, and he used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The people all thought he would have scars, but you can't see that he ever had his face burned. It was simply awful to look at before the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) cured it." (Signed) Miss Elizabeth Gehrki, Forrest City, Ark., Oct. 16, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the care and treatment of skin and hair, will be sent, postfree, on application to Potter D. & C. Corp., Dept. X, Boston.

Open-Air Schools Increasing.

Since January 1, 1907, sixty-five open air schools for children afflicted with or predisposed to tuberculosis have been established in twenty-eight cities, according to an announcement made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The first open air school in the United States was established on January 1, 1907, by the board of education of Providence, R. I., at the instance of Dr. Ellen A. Stone. The next school was established in May of the same year at Pittsburg, and the third at Boston in July, 1908. According to the reports received by the National Association, the result of the open air class-work has been to restore most of the children to normal health and efficiency. One of these open air schools or classes should be established for each 25,000 population, especially in cities.

DAME NATURE HINTS
When the Food Is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

IS FRIEND OF FISHERMAN

Humble Silkworm Furnishes Cat-Gut Much Used by Disciples of Isaak Walton.

Rome, Italy.—It is doubtful whether the average rod and reel fisherman who angles with flies and hooks strung with fine translucent cat-gut is aware of the invaluable friend he has in the humble silkworm. The cat-gut is the most unbreakable substance that holds the hooks against the fiercest struggles of the struck fish and comes from silkworms. The principal center of the manufacture of this kind of cat-gut is the island of Procida, in the Bay of Naples, but most of the silkworms employed are raised near Torre Annunziata, at the foot of Vesuvius. The caterpillars are killed just as they are about to begin the spinning of cocoons, the silk glands are removed and subjected to a process of pickling, which is a secret of the trade, and afterward the threads are carefully drawn out by skilled workers, mostly women. The length of the thread varies from a foot to nearly twenty inches.

HAREM SKIRT DANCE LATEST

New Terpsichorean Feature, Borrowed From Orient, Is Introduced in France—How Executed.

Paris.—Almost every important change in the fashion of gowns in Paris means the introduction of a new dance, or at least one comparatively unknown to the western world.

As is natural, the orient has been drawn upon for a terpsichorean feature in keeping with a trousers skirt. This dance, which is called "La Cherouflle," is said to have been long popular in Turkey, Syria and Arabia. A dancing master's description of how it is done follows:

'Place the right foot behind the left. Slide the left foot to the dancer's left. Cross right foot. Raise leg sideways without bending knee, toe pointing to floor.'

This dance is said to be impossible of execution in a hobble skirt. French dancing masters in general hail with joy the advent of the trouser skirt, as it will, they say, force women and girls who heretofore have been content to be pulled around a ball room to pay proper attention to their steps. With the trouser skirt every movement of the feet is noticeable.

HOW TAME GIRAFFES ARE FED

Keeper Climbs Tree in Order That Animals May Eat in Easy Manner.

New York.—The giraffe in captivity is one of the most delicate of animals and requires the closest of care on the part of the keepers. Aside from necessity for cleanliness in their housing, the most important feature in caring for them is the selection of the proper food to insure good health. Our illustration shows a pair of giraffes in the Bronx Zoo receiving food from their keeper, who it will be seen is perched high up in the branches of a tree in order that the animals may eat in an easy manner.

DIAMONDS FOUND IN CANADA

Those Discovered Thus Far Are Quite Small, but Further Search May Reveal Larger Ones.

New York.—The first definite announcement of the finding of diamonds in places in Canada has just been made by R. W. Brock, the director of the Canadian geological survey. Mr. Brock states that diamonds have been discovered in periodotite rock on the Olivine mountain, near the Tulameen river, British Columbia.

Samples of the rock collected by Charles Camsell of the survey were sent to Ottawa for analysis and were found to contain insoluble fragments of crystals which on being subjected to series of tests were pronounced to be genuine diamonds. They were all, however, of small size, none being larger than the head of a pin.

The discovery for this reason is not regarded as of much commercial importance. It is believed possible, though not very likely, that further search will result in finding larger ones.

WILL LOOK TO CANADA FOR WHEAT

ONE REASON WHY AMERICANS GO TO CANADA.

In the Chicago Inter-Ocean of a few days since reference was made to the fact that in 1909 the United States raised 737,189,000 bushels of wheat, and last year grew only 695,443,000, a decrease of 41,746,000 bushels. The article went on to say: "True we raised last year more than enough wheat for our own needs, but it is apparent that if production continues to decrease in that ratio we will soon be obliged to look to other countries for wheat to supply our rapidly increasing population."

The purpose of the article was to show that reciprocity was to be desired. This is a question that I do not propose to deal with, preferring to leave it to others who have made a greater study of that economic question than I have. The point to be considered is, with the high price of lands in the United States, and with the much lower priced lands of Canada, and their ability to produce probably more abundantly, is it not well for the United States farmer to take advantage of the opportunity Canada affords with its lower-priced lands and take a part in supplying the needs of the United States, which it is quite apparent must come sooner or later? It is probable there are now about 300,000 American farmers in Western Canada, cultivating large farms, and becoming rich, in the growing of 25- and 30-bushel-to-the-acre-wheat, in producing large yields of oats and barley, and in raising horses and cattle cheaply on the wild prairie grasses that are there, both succulent and abundant. All these find a ready market at good prices. Amongst the Americans who have made their homes in Canada are to be found colonies of Scandinavians, and all are doing well. I have before me a letter from an American Scandinavian, now a Canadian, an extract from which is interesting. Writing from Turtle Lake, Saskatchewan, he says:

"I came up here from Fergus Falls, Minn., October 24th, 1910, and thought I would let you know how I have been getting along. We had a very mild winter up to New Year's, but since then it has been quite cold and lots of snow, but not worse than that we could be out every day working, even though we had 65 below zero a few times, but we do not feel the cold here the same as we did in Minnesota, as it is very still and the air is high and dry. This is a splendid place for cattle raising and mixed farming. There is some willow brush and small poplars on part of the land, which is rolling and covered with splendid grass in the summer. Not far from here there is timber for building material. There are only 8 Norwegians here, 6 Scotchmen, 2 Germans. The lake is 20 miles long and full of very fine fish.

"There is a lot of land yet that has not been taken and room for many settlers, and we wish you would send some settlers up here, as there are fine prospects for them, especially for those who have a little money to start with. Send them here to Turtle Lake, and we will show them the land, if they have secured plats, showing the vacant lands, at the Dominion Lands office in Battleford. Send us up some good Scandinavians this spring."

The Canadian government agents will try to meet his wishes.

The Point of View.

"I notice that you have given up the fight for a cleaner city. You used to be one of the leaders in the opposition to the smoke nuisance."

"Yes. I've come to the conclusion that smoke cannot be abolished. It's useless to keep harping on the question."

"By the way, what business are you in now?"

"Oh, I've quit working for a salary. An uncle of mine left me a valuable interest in one of our biggest machine shops."

Care of the Child.

It is announced that Los Angeles county government will in future expend as much money upon societies for the care of children as it does now upon societies that look after the welfare of animals.

This is well. Perhaps, in course of time, we may come to regard children as of equal importance with horses and dogs.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders.

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet gives the cook the least trouble.

Irish Landmark Gone.

The famous Temple of Liberty, one of Ulster's best-known landmarks, was burned to the ground the other morning. Erected at Toomebridge, on the County Londonderry side of the River Bann, by the late Rev. John Carey, some 60 years ago, it had a romantic history. Its founder was a remarkable man, possessed of considerable wealth. He was a descendant of a Cromwellian family, and had been arrested and tried for murder, but was unanimously acquitted by the jury, whereupon he erected the building in question.—London Mail.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

SWEAR JOHN DEITZ FIRED FATAL SHOT

FIVE SO TESTIFY AS TO BULLET THAT PROVED FATAL TO OSCAR HARP.

MRS. DEITZ AND LESLIE IGNORED

One Witness Says He Saw a Winchester Protruding Through Roof. —Deitz Objects to Many Rulings.

Hayward, May 4.—Slowly the net of evidence appears to be tightening around John F. Deitz. Bit by bit the attorneys for the state are patching together pieces of damaging evidence, by which they hope to send the so-called outlaw of Cameron Dam to Waupun penitentiary for life. Not one scientilla of evidence has been submitted to prove even the complicity of Mrs. Deitz and Leslie in the shooting of Deputy Oscar Harp, on Oct. 8 last year, the apparent plan of it all being to prove John Deitz the intentional and deliberate murderer of the deputy.

Five men swore on the stand that they had seen the flash of the bullet which killed Harp, when it was fired from the hayloft of the Deitz barn. One witness even testified that he had seen the barrel of the Winchester rifle when it was protruded through a porthole in the roof of the barn.

Against this, the three accused members of the family set up only the defense implied in the question as to whether the shot could not have come from the other side of the barn through the roof. In every case the answer was that it was impossible.

Five witnesses were examined by the state and cross-examined by the defense. The testimony took in the entire story of the Cameron dam battle, the shooting of Harp, the postmortem examination of the body, the surrender, the warrants and general reference to the Deitz arsenal.

Thomas Pomerlo, 21, a deputy, and son of Thomas Pomerlo, town marshal of Winter, was the first witness.

"I did not see any smoke from the barn," he said. He testified that at the time his companions were Walter Sink, Oscar Harp and [illegible] Mewheorter. He said: "I only know that we were crawling up on the lumber piles and I looked around and saw Harp fall over on his face."

Deitz Objects to Questions.

Deitz made frequent but apparently random objections to the questions of Attorney Sturdevant. Most of the objections were overruled. Mewheorter told of the finding of the set gun among the lumber piles, and described the machine for the jury.

Deitz objected to the state's questions as leading, and when overruled surprised the attorneys on the other side of the table by asking that exception be taken to the rulings. His action was unnecessary, as it was stipulated in accordance with the Wisconsin law at the beginning of the trial that the defendant be given an exception to each of the court's rulings to protect the defendant before the supreme court.

Mewheorter also testified to having heard Mrs. Deitz declare immediately after the surrender that John had done all the shooting and that she and Leslie had not fired a shot.

J. A. Duncan, testifying from his own map of the Deitz farm and clearing, which had not at the time been offered in evidence, stated in answer to Attorney's Sturdevant's questions that owing to the elevation and the obstacles surrounding the spot on which Harp was shot, it was impossible for him to have come within range of the deputies' cross-fire. Surveyor Duncan said that he had drawn the map from information supplied by the deputies.

When asked directly by Deitz if he thought it would be possible for a bullet to have been fired through the roof to have killed Harp, Mr. Duncan said that it would have been necessary for the bullet to strike some object, be deflected downward and to one side in order that it reach the spot where Harp fell. He then offered his opinion that the double deflection would have caused the bullet to lose power.

John Britton on Stand.

John Britton, who was the first one of the principal witnesses of the afternoon, testified that he had fired the first shot at Leslie when the latter refused to throw up his hands and that later he had been fired on personally and members of his party had been fired on more than a dozen times from the Deitz cabin.

As in all of his cross-examinations, Deitz questioned the witness about the use of explosive bullets and received the answer from Britton that he had never used one.

Waite Ackley, who was in charge of the deputies' ammunition, testified that he had handled every box of cartridges and could swear that there were no explosive cartridges used.

Fired Not to Hit Leslie.

Waite Ackely testified to having fired between 75 and 80 times at the house on the day o fthe surrender. Deputy Britton testified that when he fired at Leslie it was not to kill him or even hit him. Other deputies testified to having found blood, presumably from the shot wound in Deitz's hand, on the rungs of the ladder leading to the hayloft and in the hay about the portholes.

A. M. Vinje, a newspaper photographer, and S. A. Johnson, a commercial photographer, were placed on the stand and made to identify pictures of Cameron Dam fortress and the spot where Harp fell. Al though Deitz brought nothing out in the cross-examination of these two men. He stated at recess that at least one set of the photographs had been manufactured to send him "over the road."

W. H. Appleby, deputy United States marshal, who while endeavoring to serve a paper on Deitz in 1905 was forced to leave the clearing with his hands above his head and at the point of a gun, arrived in Hayward with Carl Jones, former United States marshal of Wisconsin who is said to have been beaten by Deitz while trying to serve a paper in the latter's cabin.

Sheriff Fred Clark gave in to Deitz's repeated request for more liberty and took him for a walk from the county jail down the main street where the prisoner wanted to meet his brother-in-law, Herman Voigt of Cameron.

In one of the hotel lobbies the sheriff and his prisoner encountered the governor's private secretary and the attorney general and the two United States marshals. The two parties recognized each other immediately but no words were passed. Some one called the sheriff aside and spoke to him and he immediately took his prisoner back to his cell.

RIOTING IN JERUSALEM.

Sacred Relics Stolen From Mosque of Omar.

Jerusalem, May 4.—The inhabitants have been aroused to the point of rioting by the operations of a party of English archaelogists accused of having excavated beneath the inviolable mosque of Omar and removed relics reputed to include the ark of covenant, the censer and other sacred vessels that belonged to the tribes of Israel.

Azmi Bey, the Turkish governor, was mobbed on the streets for supposed complicity in the profanation, and hooted as a "pig." The mosque has been closed and is closely guarded, pending the arrival from Constantinople of officials of the government, who will make an investigation.

The expedition worked for two years on a large scale, beginning at the village of Siloam, which lies at the southeast end of Jerusalem, on the southern slope of the Mount of Olives, overlooking the Valley of Kedron and the Pool of Siloam. The explorers are credited with having excavated a passage from the Pool of Siloam toward the place where once stood Solomon's temple, built in 1012 B. C., pillaged and restored and finally destroyed by Titus, A. D. 70. Failing to reach the relics, sought in this manner, the explorers, according to the alleged confessions of the guards of the mosque, bribed the guards, entered the mosque and after digging six nights spirited away the treasures, "the whereabouts of which," says an Arabic paper, "none knew, except God and these English."

Mystery surrounds the expedition, whose operations have been of such magnitude as to make it evident that a large sum of money was invested. It is reported that wealthy Englishmen and Americans formed a syndicate, of which the Duchess of Marlborough (who was Consuelo Vanderbilt) was a member, on the strength of the discovery of the location of the relics by Scandinavian investigators.

BOTH SIDES WAIT IN STRIKE.

Neither Carpenters Nor Contractors Make Decisive Move.

Minneapolis, May 4.—The strike of Minneapolis carpenters has settled down to a waiting game, neither side yielding from the stand taken at the start, although both carpenters and contractors asserted they were gaining.

The carpenters say that contracts for two private residences formerly held by two members of the Master Builders' association, have been turned over to the union to complete, and that other contracts are being sought by carpenters.

As an evidence that they are winning, the contractors assert that 23 non-union carpenters were put to work on the Syndicate building.

WHITTIER DEFIES STATE

RED WING SUPERINTENDENT WILL NOT RESIGN.

Protracted Conference Ends With Matter Put Up to the Board of Control.

St. Paul. — Supt. Frank A. Whittier, superintendent of the State Industrial school at Red Wing, will not resign his position and a fight is on between the governor and the board of control. After a protracted conference in the office of the governor at which the governor, Mr. Whittier and his attorney, Frank Wilson, were present, Superintendent Whittier told the governor flatly that he would not resign, saying he would rely on his right to have a hearing before the board of control.

The governor accordingly put the matter up to the board of control, intimating that he expected that body to take action. Mr. Whittier's refusal to resign it is understood to have been made upon the advice of the members of the board of control.

Governor Eberhart went over the matter carefully with the superintendent. The governor made it clear that in his opinion the superintendent's usefulness had ended.

Mr. Whittier admitted that he could run the school without corporal punishment. In his conversation he admitted he knew of no other school where more than 25 blows was administered at one time, which Mr. Whittier's method was to beat a boy into submission.

Superintendent Whittier claims that the board of control knew about the administration of corporal punishment, and also claims the legislative report files no charges against him.

This is true; under the leadership of Senator Rockne, a report was adopted, which acknowledged that cruel and inhuman forms of punishment had been used, but cut out the paragraph criticizing Superintendent Whittier. Goernor Eberhart is apparently disposed to take no notice of the report.

BANDITS ATTACK BANK.

Anoka. — Four masked and heavily armed men battered in the front doors of the Anoka National Bank building with crowbars. Once inside, they lost no time in attacking the vault and soon had its outer doors open. They were then confronted with the inner doors of the vault and fired a charge of nitroglycerin in their efforts to break them down.

The charge was ineffective and the bandits, realizing that they could not get to the bank's treasure before daylight, if at all, retreated.

Frank Wethern, a young farmer of the northern part of the county, was passing the bank on his way to a hotel when the robbers appeared. When confronted by four heavily armed men Wethern endeavored to run away and give the alarm. The robbers took after him and ran him down. They handcuffed him and tied him to a telephone pole in the vicinity of the bank.

One of the bandits held a gun on Wethern while another made a thorough search of his clothes for money and jewels. They found $17 in cash in one of his pockets, but overlooked $210 that he had concealed in his underclothing.

ATTACK EXPRESS RATES

WELLS-FARGO COMPANY IS DEFENDANT.

Reduction to 75 Per Cent of Present Schedule Is Asked in Complaint.

St. Paul.—The state has opened its case against the Wells-Fargo & Co. Express in the office of the state railway and warehouse commission at the state capitol. Thirty-five experts, representing the state and various express companies and railroads, were present. The case promises to be one of the most important in its relation to express rates and interstate commerce ever tried in the country. Leading attorneys from all parts of the United States are representing the various companies.

The state contends that the rates charged by the Wells Fargo Company, as well as by every other company operating within the state, are unfair, unjust, discriminatory, arbitrary and unreasonable. In answer the company protests that its rates are uniformly fair and just, and that the solution asked by the state, that of charging 75 per cent of the present rates, would prove disastrous to the express companies.

The Wells Fargo Company was selected as the defendant company in the case because it operates over the greatest amount of mileage in the state. But it is generally understood that the decision in the case will apply to the other companies operating within the state, against all of whom the same charge has been made.

Ira B. Mills, chairman of the commission, is presiding. The state is represented by George T. Simpson, attorney general, and the Wells Fargo Company by C. R. Stockton, its general attorney and commercial representative.

The complaint charges that the schedule of rates, known as the "gradnate scale," now in use by the Wells Fargo Company is unfair and arbitrary, and it is demanded that an equalization of rates and classificationz be adopted, the state stipulating that 75 per cent of the present rates is fair and reasonable, and that this percentage should be obtained and enforced.

In answer the Wells-Fargo Company denies that the present schedule is unequal and unjust and maintains that the 75 per cent rate would be unfair to the company and would work a manifest injustice.

In opening for the state Attorney General Simpson said: "Possibly before this case is completed an interrogation may be advanced on the part of the other companies and they may desire to cross-examine the state witnesses. Where matters affect only the Wells-Fargo company no objection will be made by the state to such cross-examination, but where the questions would affect the other companies the state will demand that they be made a party to the complaint and that they be at least partially bound by the defendant in this case."

At this point R. E. Olds, representing the American, the Adams and the National express companies, informed the commission that his companies would not be bound by the decision in this case. He stated that they might wish to have their cases tried separately.

"It is barely possible," said Mr. Olds, "that after the testimony is in we may be ready to agree to a compromise, but we are not ready to do so now."

Companies Refuse to Be Bound.

H. E. Armstrong, representing the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific companies, explained that they could not be bound by any agreement made at this time.

The attorney general finally agreed to allow the cross examination of witnesses in this case, provided the question did not affect the case of the other companies.

Mr. Stockton, for the Wells Fargo Company, then asked that the computation of figures, secured by the experts employed by the state be furnished to the company's attorneys. He said the company had opened its books to the state without reservation and that he believed that this request was only fair.

The attorney general maintained that the agreement in this case was to the effect that the state might take off whatever the Wells Fargo books showed and that whether these figures were to be given to the company was optional with the state.

The commissioners finally agreed that Mr. Hillman, one of the experts employed by the state, should furnish the figures to the company as fast as they were prepared for the commission.

Among those present at the hearing, not heretofore mentioned, are T. E. McDonald, Western Express company; William Ellis, general commercial counsel for the St. Paul railways; Henry Harrison, general manager of the American and Adams companies; and Vice-President Cooper of the United States Express Company.

Red Wing Faces Contest.

Red Wing.—There are more or less well defined rumors about town that C. H. Tiedeman will contest the election of Mayor A. P. Pierce, who was re-elected to the office by the narrow margin of twenty-three votes. Mr. Tiedeman declines to make a statement, which is in itself significant. It is alleged that in one of the precincts the judges closed the polls during the supper hour and that this alleged irregularity is one of the points on which a contest might be based.

HANDS OFF FOREIGN LANDS

TAFT SAYS U. S. DESIRES ONLY TO AID WEAKER NEIGHBOR.

Suspicion of American Motives One Drawback, Declares the President.

Baltimore, May 4.—President Taft, in his speech at the third national peace conference declared that the United States would keep hands off and not seek to extend its domain or to acquire foreign territory.

The president made no mention of Mexico, but to those who heard him it was evident that the troubled situation here and the suspicion in the South American republics as to the intention of this nation in regard to its southern neighbors had inspired him.

The president had been speaking of the recurrence of internal disturbances in countries not so well able as the United States to maintain order and peace and had said that it was incumbent upon the great nations of "this hemisphere to exercise their kindly and peaceful influence as much as possible."

"One of the difficulties that the United States finds is the natural suspicions that the countries engaged have of the motives which the United States has in tendering its good offices," the president continued.

"Asservation of good faith helps little where the suspicion is real; and yet I like to avail myself of an opportunity in such presence as this to assert that there is not in the whole length and breadth of the United States among its people any desire for territorial agrandizement and that its people as a whole will not permit its government, if it would, to take any steps in respect to foreign peoples looking to a forcible extension of our political power.

Would Avoid War.

"We have had wars and we know what they are. We know what responsibilities they entail, the burdens and losses and horrors, and we would have none of them. We have a magnificent domain of our own, in which we are attempting to work out and show to the world success in popular government, and we need no more territory in which to show this. But we have attained great prosperity and great power. We have become a powerful member of the community of nations in which we live and there is, therefore, thrust upon us necessarily a care and responsibility for the peace of the world in our neighborhood and a burden of helping those nations that cannot help themselves, if we may do that peacefully and effectively."

The president spoke to several thousand people in the Lyric theater. Cardinal Gibbons, Secretary of War Dickinson, Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Andrew Carnegie and more than a dozen men prominent in the most eminent work for peace sat on the platform with the president.

Fog and Sound.

In a fog at sea the toll of a bell buoy is singularly grave and solemn, well matched by the weird note of a whistling buoy. Unfortunately the value of both is lessened in foggy weather from there being but little motion of the sea. Nothing, too, is more difficult than to distinguish in a fog the direction from which a sound comes. This is in part due doubtless to the interference offered to the straight course of the waves carrying the sound, but also probably to the absence of the normal, although unsuspected, co-ordination of eye and ear in locating the origin of sound. The assistance of the eye on sea and land is instinctively given to the ear in many different ways. In a fog the ear has only itself to trust to.—London Spectator.

Describing a Railroad.

The Pall Mall Gazette in 1880 asked its readers to name the worst railway in England. And one English kicker answered thus: "Sir—The Southeastern railway is the very worst railway in the world. The engines are asthmatic. Its lamps are trimmed by foolish virgins. Its fares are excessive. Its carriages let in the snow in winter and are furnaces in summer. Its motto is unpunctuality. Its principal station is approached through the neck of a bottle. It ruins the temper, destroys the digestion and enables one to realize the horrors of Dante's 'Inferno.' I am, sir, yours obediently, the Worm Who Turns."

A Small Horror.

The weasel is one small horror. Astonishingly strong, apparently fearless and as persevering as an ant, when once he has settled to the track of a rabbit that particular bunny is indeed in grave peril. The rabbit seems to know it, too, and the knowledge to half paralyze him, for he seldom attempts the one saving chance—a straightaway, long sustained run at top speed. And the end of the patient, if-we-do-but-wait-the-hour sort of pursuit! 'Tis indeed bloody murder. The fiend within angel garb finally toils within deadly distance. There is a snakelike stroke, most likely aimed at the big vein near the butt of the rabbit's ear. Once there, the brute sticks leechlike to the blood sucking, while the trembling, wailing rabbit totters aimlessly about till its drained body falls limply to pay its tax to mother earth.—Edwin Sandys in Outing Magazine.

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 24 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Durvance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

CURE THAT CATARRH

Our climate with its sudden changes is conducive to catarrh—which is a chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane surface of head—nose or throat.

One month's local treatment with Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic will convince the most skeptical that Paxtine is not a palliative but a specific for all catarrhal conditions.

Paxtine is a perfectly harmless antiseptic and germicide in powder form which contains all of the antiseptic qualities of liquid antiseptics, but with other valuable cleansing, germicidal, and healing ingredients added.

Just a little in a glass of water as needed—used as a spray and gargle, will not only remove the accumulated secretions, but heals the inflammation, destroys the germs of disease, and dispels the disagreeable odor caused by chronic catarrh.

For sale at all druggists, 25c and 50c a box, or postpaid upon receipt of price. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

Apprentice Carried Out Orders of His Employer, but the Result Was Sad.

"Now, William," the old farmer said to his new apprentice, "I want thee to mind what I do say to thee, to be sharp and attentive and to delay not in carrying out my instructions."

"Ay, ay, zur," replied William.

"First, now, I want thee to take out the old white mare and have her shod."

"Ay, ay, zur," said William, and departed.

He returned two hours later and the old farmer questioned him

"Thee hast not been quick, lad," he said, reprovingly, "but if thee hast done thy work as I ordered thee thou shalt be forgiven. Didst thee have the mare shod, as I telled thee?"

"Ay, ay, zur!" replied William, beaming. "Didst thou not hear the gun? I shot her myself and I've just buried her."—London Answers.

ALL RUN DOWN.

A Typical Case of Kidney Trouble and How It Was Cured.

A. J. Adams, 242 Rose St., Roseburg, Ore., says: "My back ached fiercely for hours and then eased up only to leave me so weak I could hardly move.

Kidney secretions contained heavy sediment and burned awfully in passage. Everything seemed to be gradually giving way; my limbs ached, sight became poor and blood circulation was so impaired that I reeled and had to clutch something to keep from falling. I grew worse and for weeks was unable to work. One thing after another I tried without relief and then I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. I now feel like a different person."

PLAN AERIAL LINE

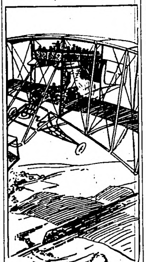
To Run Express From Boston to Washington.

Airships Which Will Make Long Runs Are to Carry at Least 20 Persons and Will Keep Regular Schedule.

Boston.—Charles J. Glidden, donor of the Glidden tour automobile trophy, is at work in the east on a new project. He is seeking landing sites for stations of the aerial passenger line that the Boston Aerial Navigation company purposes establishing throughout the east within the next two years and is examining Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore. He has already decided upon sites in Worcester, Springfield, New Haven and Bridgeport.

Mr. Glidden is president of the Boston Aerial Navigation company. He is a firm believer in the practicability of carrying passengers in great aeroplanes, and he thinks the time has come for commercial airships. He is positive that in the next ten years railroads will become back numbers as far as travelers and the mails are concerned.

"We stand ready," said Mr. Glidden, "to buy and start with anything that can carry 20 passengers, and I expect to see the first aerial fleet launched by the end of 1912. The company will begin with a route from Boston to Washington. It has already laid out the way from Boston to New York. Stops are to be made at all of the larger cities. I have looked over the ground in New York and virtually picked the site for our main station there.



The Aerial Express.

"All we are waiting for now is the reports of engineers upon various types of aeroplanes. The recent flights in France by an aviator who carried 12 passengers shows what aeroplanes can do.

"Personally I am banking on aeroplanes, for I believe heavier-than-air machines will be the mode of travel in the future. I am not impressed with the qualities of dirigibles, although I have one engineer in Germany studying with Count Zeppelin and another in France."

Mr. Glidden says the airship line will follow the railroad tracks in their inter-city flights wherever possible.

TROUSERS TAKEN ON "TICK"

St. Louis Man Gives Away Wearing Apparel and Then Wants Police to Find His Timepiece.

St. Louis.—Robert Newman, of 1414 Washington avenue, telephoned to police headquarters:

"I want you to find my trousers," he said.

"Did you look under the mattress?" asked the telephone clerk in the chief's office.

"No," said Newman. Then, talking very fast, he added something which the operator didn't catch.

"Give me the description," he said.

"All right," replied Newman. "The number on the case is 5574569 and the number on the works is 5,183,475."

"What are you talking about, anyway?"

"My watch."

"I thought it was your trousers."

"Yes, the watch was in the trousers pocket. A beggar called here and asked me to give him a pair of trousers. I did. After he was gone I discovered I gave him the one with my watch in them. Find that beggar, will you?"

"Sure," said the operator. "We'll run him down."

Wild Horses for Soap.

San Bernardino, Cal.—Within a few months 500 head of wild horses on the San Bernardino desert will have been transformed into cakes of soap and be in use in the homes of New York and Chicago.

Felipe Quieroz and George Tyler have contracted with Los Angeles agents for eastern soap factories for the sale at $5 a head of the mustangs that now roam the region between Victorville and Holcomb valley.

Most of the horses are scrubs and useless for anything but cattle driving.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

A Missionary Tree.

A missionary, during a Lenten tea, said, pointedly:

"I have established missionary trees all over the country. But perhaps you don't know what a missionary tree is? A missionary tree is one whose profit goes entirely to missions.

"A Roxborough farmer has in his apple orchard a golden pippin tree that helps to support the Chinese mission. A Florida woman has an orange tree that helps to uplift the cannibals of New Guinea. A California nut farmer devotes a walnut tree to the spread of the faith in Zanzibar.

"Missionary trees," the speaker ended, "are very good things, but the principle that underlies them need not be confined to farms and farmers."

Like Home Touch.

Tired and dusty, a party were returning by rail from a holiday trip. Simkins, a little bald man, seated himself to read, but dropped off to sleep. On the rack was a ferocious crab in a bucket, and when Simkins went to sleep the crab woke up, and finding things dull in the bucket, started exploring. By careful investigation Mr. Crab reached the edge of the rack. Down it fell, alighting on Simkin's shoulder, where it grabbed the man's ear to steady itself. The passengers held their breath and waited for developments, but Simkins only shook his head and said: "Leggo, Sarah! I tell you I've been at the office all the evening!"

A WIDOW'S LUCK

Quit the Thing That Was Slowly Injuring Her.

A woman tells how coffee kept her from insuring her life:

"I suffered for many years chiefly from trouble with my heart, with severe nervous headaches and neuralgia; but although incapacitated at times for my housework, I did not realize the gravity of my condition till I was rejected for life insurance, because, the examining physician said, my heart was so bad he could not pass me.

"This distressed me very much, as I was a widow and had a child dependent upon me. It was to protect her future that I wanted to insure my life.

"Fortunately for me, I happened to read an advertisement containing a testimonial from a man who had been affected in the same way that I was with heart trouble, and who was benefited by leaving off coffee and using Postum. I grasped at the hope this held out, and made the change at once.

"My health began to improve immediately. The headaches and neuralgia disappeared, I gained in flesh, and my appetite came back to me. Greatest of all, my heart was strengthened from the beginning, and soon all the distressing symptoms passed away. No more waking up in the night with my heart trying to fly out of my mouth!

"Then I again made application for life insurance, and had no trouble in passing the medical examination.

"It was seven years ago that I began to use Postum and I am using it still, and shall continue to do so, as I find it a guarantee of good health." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason."

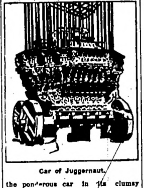
TO GAIN GATES OF HEAVEN

Natives of India Still Believe Death Under Wheels of Juggernaut Insures Eternal Bliss.

Orissa, India.—In the third week in June of this year, following a custom established over a thousand years ago, Hindus by tens of thousands will flock to Pouri, in Orissa, India, for the religious festival of Juggernaut. From the temple the famous car of Juggernaut will be brought forth and dragged through the streets. It will head the annual procession of devotees of the god Vishnu, or Juggernaut, Lord of the Universe, whose image, or statue, without legs and with stumps of arms, rests within the colossal car.

Hundreds of pilgrims will harness themselves to the stout cables by which the car is drawn. As they pull the ponderous car in its clumsy wheels, many will work themselves up to a degree of religious fervor little short of madness. And fanatics there will be, as of old, who will attempt to throw themselves to destruction under the murderous wheels, as a voluntary sacrifice to their idol. But this year, as for many years past, British civil officers will be on hand to prevent any act of suicide.



Car of Juggernaut.

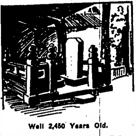
Hindus believe that to gain the favor of Juggernaut opens for them the gates of heaven. Therefore, in the days before the British occupation of India, natives occasionally cast their bodies under the car to be crushed to a pulp, the belief being that such self-immolation speedily would be rewarded by entrance into Paradise.

The car is 43 feet high. Its wheels are each more than six feet high. A wooden cage around the top, an addition of recent years, keeps fanatics from jumping upon the car in the hope of looking upon their idol within. Body and wheels are of wood beautifully sculptured and inlaid, and for the festival the car is draped with gold cloth.

OLDEST WELL IN THE WORLD.

Place Where Confucius Drew Water as Boy Now Used as Shrine.

Pekin.—Confucius, who lived from 551 to 479 B. C., was a moralist rather than a religious founder, his method of teaching being like that of Socrates. It was not till about 500 years later that he was deified. His nearest lineal descendant has the title of duke and ranks next to princes of the blood. The well from which he drew water as a boy is 2,450 years old and is now used as a shrine.



Well 2,450 Years Old.

The well is in the grounds of the Confucian temple at Kufow. Confucius, although of very ancient lineage, was brought up in poverty. At the age of 50 he became minister of crime in his native state of Lu (modern Shantung), but his uprightness made him unpopular, and he was banished. Later, he returned and spent his last days writing his famous maxims.

NEW GUNS ON CONNECTICUT

Four New Fangled Pieces of Armament Are to Be Put Aboard Flagship of Atlantic Fleet.

New York.—Four new fangled 12-inch guns are to be given a tryout on the big battle ship Connecticut, flagship of the Atlantic fleet, which has just tied up at the Brooklyn navy yard for overhauling. The work of taking out the old guns and placing the new ones will take about two weeks.

The Connecticut has an enviable record at target practice and the new guns will be handled by a crew of experts, who are regarded as nearly world's champions. Their good work is shown by the score of thirteen hits out of fourteen shots from one of her 12 inch turrets at a range of 14,000 yards, or nearly eight miles.

New Carpets Heat Rooms.

Paris.—Electric carpets for heating rooms are, according to La Liberte, shortly to come into fashion in Paris. The under side of the new carpets consists of a network of steel wires, forming a contact, and insuring that the current shall be equally distributed in all directions. It is said that the cost of the new system of heating will be less than that of any known system. It is estimated that a room fitted with one of the new electric carpets can be heated at a total cost of 1 cent an hour.

Two Cents a Week for Children.

London.—Two cents per week pocket money is to be allowed by the guardians to the children boarded out from Sheppey (Kent) union workhouse, so as to place them in the same position as other children.

SCRATCHED TILL BLOOD RAN

"When my boy was about three months old his head broke out with a rash which was very itchy and ran a watery fluid. We tried everything we could but he got worse all the time, till it spread to his arms, legs and then to his entire body. He got so bad that he came near dying. The rash would itch so that he would scratch till the blood ran, and a thin yellowish stuff would be all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to prevent him tearing his skin. He was so weak and run down that he took fainting spells as if he were dying. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were thin like claws.

"He was bad about eight months when we tried Cuticura Remedies. I had not laid him down in his cradle in the daytime for a long while. I washed him with Cuticura Soap and put on one application of Cuticura Ointment and he was so soothed that he could sleep. You don't know how glad I was he felt better. It took one box of Cuticura Ointment and pretty near one cake of Cuticura Soap to cure him. I think our boy would have died but for the Cuticura Remedies and I shall always remain a firm friend of them. There has been no return of his trouble. I shall be glad to have you publish this true statement of his cure." (Signed) Mrs. M. C. Maitland, Jasper, Ontario, May 27, 1910.

JUAREZ CAPTURED

NAVARRO SURRENDERS SWORD AFTER BEING DRIVEN TO LAST CORNER.

NOW THE REBEL CAPITAL

150 of Captured Soldiers Join Insurrectos—Rejoicing Is General in the New Revolutionary Citadel.

Juarez, Mexico. — This little bullet-riddled city is the provisional capital of Mexico and Francisco I. Madero, Jr., provisional president, and his staff have taken complete possession after winning the bloodiest battle of the Mexican revolution.

In a corner room of the barracks, which for two days he held out against the terrific fire of the rebels, sits General Juan J. Navarro, the federal commander, a captive, having surrendered with almost his entire garrison of several hundred men. His sallow face is sunken, his head is bowed and he does not talk, for the bitter sting of defeat has disheartened him.

In contrast, in another part of the little town, is Francisco I. Madero, Jr., the conqueror, surrounded by members of his family and his staff, joyous, exultant and flushed with victory, yet ready, he says, to make peace with the Mexican government if it is disposed to deal frankly and sincerely with the evolutionists and without such vague promises as "President Diaz' manifesto contains."

In hotel lobbies, store fronts and hallways, the improvised hospital of the battlefield, are scores of wounded, attended by a host of physicians and nurses from El Paso, who have volunteered medical relief. The floors of the Porforio Diaz hotel, where 30 wounded lay, are covered with blood and gore-soaked clothing.

All the dead are being buried. A conservative estimate by physicians as well as by insurrecto leaders who surveyed the fighting, place the federal dead at nearly 50 and the rebel loss at about fifteen, with a total of nearly 250 wounded on both sides. The actual number lost probably never will be known, as deserters were many and the dead have been buried quickly. Among the dead were Colonel Tamborel and Captain Sachudo, the former, the man who a few days ago taunted the rebels as cowards.

On the American side of the line five have been killed and about 17 wounded, many of them being innocently engaged at a distance from the river front.

The actual surrender of the town by General Navarro took place about 1 o'clock, General Navarro giving his sword to Colonel Garibaldi of the insurrecto army after the rebels had completely surrounded the barracks and threatened to annihilate the garrison within.

General Madero himself, when he arrived at the corral where the federal prisoners are quartered, made an address full of sympathy and encouragement, lauding them for their bravery and assuring them that in his heart as well as in those of his men there was no feeling of enmity, but of uniform friendliness.

With shouts of "Viva Madero," the vast throng of prisoners and insurrectos who gathered to hear him threw their hats skyward and shouted in deafening applause.

A few momens later down the main thoroughfare was heard the galloping of horses and soon the insurrecto standard, the Mexican national colors, flashed in the sunlight. Behind it rode Mrs. Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and an escort of cavalry. Her face was beaming with joy, her black dress covered with dust, and she purred her horse to the scene of her husband's triumph.

The shouting increased as the pair embraced and entered the municipal building, now the Madero headquarters.

Orders were being issued all afternoon to his men to guard stores and houses to prevent looting. General Oronzeo himself shot at two of his men whom he caught trying to make away with some booty.

After the attack was renewed and the rebels had brought their machine gun within deadly range the federal retired to the barracks and insurrectos by the hundred occupied the houses within 100 yards of every side. Their fire was rapidly demolishing the building. There was no other alternative for General Navarro but to yield.

Shrapnel was being poured into the hollow square of the barracks. Many federal cavalry horses were killed. The soldiers crowded the place to its capacity. Only a few loopholes from which to shoot at the insurrectos pierced its sides. Finally at noon General Navarro hoisted a white flag. He first attempted to send a messenger to Senator Obregon, one of the go-betweens in the recent peace negotiations asking him to arrange for a cessation of hostilities or for an armistice, but the rebels would accept nothing except immediate surrender.

BIG RUSH FOR LAND.

Notice Is Given That 13,000 More Acres Near Cass Lake Is Open.

Cass Lake.—Notice was given by William O'Neil, superintendent of logging, that 13,000 more acres of land will be opened to settlement in the near future. This makes 40,000 acres that have been opened in the last four days. The land lies mostly around Cass Lake.

As soon as the news arrived, automobiles, launches, switch engines and horses were brought into service by hundreds who were eager to get on a certain piece of land before some one else. In a number of instances there were several after the same property, and some lost out by a few seconds, others by several minutes.

Another interesting feature was the shooting of dynamite across the lake to notify people several miles away what had happened. The land opened is the best that has been opened for some time.

MUCH LAND PUT ON MARKET.

About 8,000 Acres in Beltrami to Go on Sale Wednesday.

Under this act, new appraisals will be made every month until November in the counties of Beltrami, Cass, Koochiching, Itasca, Aitkin, St. Louis and Roseau.

Land which is to be sold in this county is located in the towns of Taylor, Frohm, Port Hope, Hagali, Turtle River, Grant Valley, Jones, Eckles and Liberty and most of the offerings are of very good quality.

Many inquiries were received by County Auditor George and many of the local land men, concerning the character of the soil on the lands that will be offered.

Washington.—Bids were offered in the office of the supervising architect for the work of constructing a public building at Faribault, Minn. The proposal of the P. M. Hennessey Construction Company of St. Paul, which was $58,500, and that of W. D. Lovell of Minneapolis, which was $59,000, were the two lowest offers.

Other bids received were as follows: Northwestern Construction company, Wahpeton, N. D., limestone, $59,500; Harmon Brothers, Williamsport, Pa., limestone, $68,100; sandstone, $70,766; J. W. Miller, St. Paul, $61,310; Boyd Construction company, St. Paul, $60,925; William O'Neill Sons' company, Faribault, limestone, $61,800.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Winona Man Near Watery Grave When Skiff Capsizes.

Winona.—Edward Richter, employed at the Northwestern shops, escaped being drowned in the Mississippi by a narrow margin. In company with a companion, Richter went out fishing. While in the act of shifting seats in the boat, the craft capsized. Richter was thrown clear of the overturned boat while his companions clung tightly, at the same time shouting for assistance. The cries were heard by two men in a launch near by who went to their assistance. They arrived when the drowning man was going down for the third time, and succeeded in rescuing him. He was unconscious but was resuscitated.

WORRY CAUSES SUICIDE.

Farmer, Fearing Loss of Homestead, Takes His Life.

Thief River Falls.—Ole O. Bjorge, a farmer living six miles southeast of this city, committed suicide by hanging. Bjorge came here from Moorhead seven years ago and purchased land on the newly opened Indian reservation. The time for making final proof having almost expired the government started proceedings to cancel the entry on account of non-residence.

ORE SHIPMENTS DECREASE.

Range Roads Show Falling Off in Receipts Over Last Year.

Duluth.—Figures given out from the offices of the iron ore hauling railroads operating on the Mesabi range in Northern Minnesota for April's hauling show that 777,000 less tons of ore were hauled during the past month than during April of 1910.

The largest decrease was during the latter part of the month. The decrease was especially noticeable in the cases of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Great Northern roads. The season of navigation was officially opened on the same date last year as this, April 15. During the past month, however, only 51,042 tons of ore was taken from the docks.

The lull in general business, a slow demand for ore and the retarded season of navigation are the reasons assigned for the small shipments, both by railroad and boat thus far this year. The May ore shipments will not come up to what they were last May, it is believed.

$20,000 SOLD FOR $2.

Bookseller Let Fortune Slip in Sale of Colonial Law Book.

St. Paul.—Charles K. Pottle, son of Earl K. Pottle, veteran bookseller of Wabasha street, let a fortune of $20,000 get out of his hands (or $2 by the sale of an ancient volume of the Colonial Laws of Massachusetts, to a stranger about two months ago.

Mr. Pottle, Sr., learned, he says, that the same volume was sold in New York City recently for $20,000, which had brought only $2 in St. Paul.

"I was not in the store at the time," said Mr. Pottle, "and my son, who was in charge, was approached one day by a man who seemed to be an authority on old books. He saw the volume of laws, which was printed in 1642 and contained the laws of that time for about eight years. The volume brought only $2.

"Saturday Major Holcomb came into the store and showed me a newspaper clipping, telling of the sale of the same volume for $20,000. It was a pretty good fortune to let go of, but we did not realize at that time it was so valuable."

ENGINE CUTS HOSE.

Grand Rapids Scene of $80,000 Fire—Switchmen Cause Loss of Control.

Grand Rapids.—Because a Great Northern switch engine ran over the fire hose laid across the tracks here after the starting of a fire in the Henry Hughes block, the new brick structure, with all of its contents, was entirely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $80,000. The firm of Hughes & Co., which occupied the lower floor and transacted a general merchandise business, owned the building.

Among the losers were Attorneys Spear & Stone, Frank F. Price, B. C. McCarthy and James Doran and Doctors Gendron and Costello, who occupied offices in the upper floors. B. F. Munson and Gilbert & Finnigan, lumber dealers, also were burned out and lost all of their records and books.

The fire, it is said, was under control when the switch engine cut off the water supply, thereby giving the flames a fresh start.

PIONEERS MEET AGAIN.

Men and Women of Territorial Days Gather At Old Capitol.

St. Paul.—The Minnesota Territorial Pioneer association held its annual meeting at the old capitol. For the first time the meeting this year was combined with a banquet. The association celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of the day on which Minnesota was admitted to the Union as a state, May 11, 1858.

In conjunction with the Territorial Pioneers, the Territorial Pioneers' Woman's club held its annual meeting. The women occupied the Senate chamber while the men held their sessions in the House chamber. At the social hours they met together.

Among the many pioneers who were present were Captain Ike Moulton, former Governor C. A. Gilman of St. Cloud, former Congressman Loren Fletcher of Minneapolis, George A. Brackett and J. B. Gilfillan.

Minneapolis.—For the second week of the spring season at the Bijou, Minneapolis, starting Sunday, May 14th, the Klimt & Gazzolo company of players will present Edwin Milton Royle's four act comedy drama, "The Squaw Man," one of the most successful plays produced in recent years.

YOUNG MAN MAY LOSE SIGHT.

W. O. Earle Injured by Delayed Blast Near Watab.

St. Cloud.—W. O. Earle was brought to the hospital here with one eye drawn from its socket and the loss of the other eye threatened. The young man was employed with a blasting crew near Watab. Two charges of dynamite were placed in a large stump. One exploded but the second failed. As Earle reached the stump the dynamite exploded.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

St. Paul. — The state treasurer's office reports a collection of $1,850 in liquor licenses for dining cars operated within the state of Minnesota.

Fergus Falls.—The oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Kreebs, of Perham, died here from lockjaw. The boy had been ill of what appeared to be stomach trouble and lockjaw developed.

Minneapolis. — State automobile licenses for 3,184 cars for Minneapolis have been issued by the secretary of state. This being by far the largest number reported by any city or county in the state.

Winona.—Ole Johnson, single, 30 years old, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart at Fremont, Winona county. He had been in poor health all winter, and worry over it is supposed to have been the cause.

Winona.—Northwestern employes from the Minnesota division met at a dinner at the Northwestern hotel. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways in which the efficiency of the service of the road may be bettered. Those present composed the heads of the various departments of the road.

Stillwater. — Thomas J. Yorks of Stillwater, register of deeds for Washington county from 1856 to 1861, has presented a bill for $1,265.22 to the county—$319.50 for wood which he says he furnished the county during his incumbency of office and $945.72 interest at 6 per cent for forty-nine and a half years.

Minneapolis.—Professor Svante Arrhenius of the University of Stockholm, president of the Nobel Institute and one of the greatest living authorities on chemistry, astronomy and physics, will be in Minneapolis, Wednesday and Thursday, May 10 and 11, will deliver two lectures at the university and be a guest at several social gatherings.

Winona.—Leon Thomas, the youth who was alleged to have stolen money and clothing from the residence of Roy Krause here last winter while playing the role of a "nurse," was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the St. Cloud reformatory after he had gone before Judge Snow in the district court with his plea of guilty.

Winona.—Rev. Father Gruppa, son of John Gruppa of this city, celebrated his first mass here on Sunday at St. Stanislaus church. He has been pursuing his studies abroad for the last three years, spending most of his time in Switzerland. He was ordained to the priesthood at Milan, on the first of April by the Abbot of St. Morris at the St. Bernard hospital in the Alps.

Faribault.—Rice county crop conditions are excellent. Several heavy frosts occurred here during the past few nights, but not much damage to grains or fruit buds has been reported. Wheat and other grains are coming along nicely and the outlook is very promising. Most of the grain is up. The planting of corn will be started during the coming week. A larger acreage of this product will be put.

Duluth. — The charred remains of Kitto Mikalla, a bachelor farmer residing in the Mud Hen district near Eveleth, was found in the burned buildings on his place. A forest fire swept over his place and it is presumed that he died fighting it. Mikalla was 47 years old and was well to do. The home of Mrs. Fred Bowman of Mooselake was destroyed by fire from the woods. The fires are quite general.

St. Paul. — State Auditor S. G. Iverson predicted today that the revenue to state trust funds from iron ore royalties will break all records this season and will double last year's revenue. "The Grant mine," said Mr. Iverson, "has shipped half a million tons this season. This is a state property. It shipped very little last year. That being the case, I except the shipments from state properties to double last year's, when they amounted to 1,100,000 tons. The income to the state this year, at 25 cents a ton, I estimate, will be $550,000."

Roseau.—President Burkee of the village council will get his share of the reward offered by the Banker's association for the capture of the Stephen bank robbers a year ago. The day after the robbery M. M. Mattson drove two men into Roseau, whom he suspected of being the robbers, and upon his arrival in town he told President Burkee of his suspicions. Burkee caused them to be arrested. A difference of opinion arose over the reward, Mattson claiming that Burkee in his capacity of village president was merely doing his duty. The supreme court has decreed, however, that it is not a part of the official duty of the presidents of villages to detect and apprehend criminals.

Walker.—Fire destroyed property at the Indian agency, two miles from here, to the value of over a thousand dollars, the laundry building, tool and engine house and water tank being consumed. The fire was caused by a defective chimney.

St. Paul. — Arthur Guinn and his divorced wife of North St. Paul are in the St. Paul city hospital with which are believed to be fatal bullet wounds as the result of a shooting affair in the Guinn home. The dual crime on the part of the husband is said to be the result of jealously. Mr. Guinn has two bullet wounds.

The Lesser Evil.

Gresham college in 1719 was the scene of a famous serio-comic duel between two celebrated doctors, Doctor Mead and Doctor Woodward, both of whom were lecturers at the college. While walking down Bishopsgate street one morning they quarreled over some medical question and adjourned to the square of the college to fight it out with swords. Woodward fell, wounded in several places, whereupon Mead magnanimously said, "Take thy life." "Anything but your physic," hissed back the chagrined Woodward ere he swooned away.—London Chronicle.

SCALP WAS BADLY AFFECTED

"I am more than gratified by the successful results I obtained by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. For several years my scalp was very badly affected with dandruff and scales. My scalp itched terribly at times and my hair fell out. My coat collar would be actually white with the dandruff that had fallen from my head. My profession being that of a barber, I was particular about having my hair in good condition, and was also in a position to try many lotions, etc., for the scalp. These had little or no effect. I had heard so much about the Cuticura Remedies that I resolved to try them. I shampooed my head with Cuticura Soap twice a week and after drying my head thoroughly, I anointed parts of my scalp with Cuticura Ointment. I was pleased from the outset, and continued to keep up this treatment. To think that only three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and one-half boxes of Cuticura Ointment rid my head of this annoying trouble made me feel quite contented. I have now got a thick growth of hair and I am never troubled with any dandruff or itching of the scalp. There is no question but that the Cuticura Remedies cured me. I frequently recommend them to my customers, and they think a great deal of them." (Signed) John F. Williams, 307 Norfolk Street, Dorchester, Boston, Mass., July 28, 1910.

The Most Beautiful Thing.

A newspaper recently invited its readers to state in a few words what they considered the most beautiful thing in the world. The first prize was awarded to the sender of the answer: "The eyes of my mother." "The dream of that which we know to be impossible" suggested an imaginative person, and this brought him second prize. But the most amusing thing was that which said, "The most beautiful thing in the world is to see a man carrying his mother-in-law across a dangerous river without making an attempt to drop her in."

A Classic Note.

"Archimedes," read the pupil, "leaped from his bath, shouting, 'Eureka! Eureka!'"

"One moment, James," the teacher says. "What is the meaning of 'Eureka!'"

"'Eureka' means 'I have found it.'"

"Very well. What had Archimedes found?"

James hesitates a moment, then ventures hopefully:

"The soap, mum."—Christian Intelligencer.

Horrors!

"She is always doing something original."

"Yes, but her latest stunt, if it becomes a fad, will upset society."

"Why, what is it?"

"She has employed a nurse to look after her poodle and insists on looking after her baby herself."

FOOD IN SERMONS
Feed the Dominie Right and the Sermons Are Brilliant.

A conscientious, hard-working and successful clergyman writes: "I am glad to bear testimony to the pleasure and increased measure of efficiency and health that have come to me from adopting Grape-Nuts food as one of my articles of diet.

"For several years I was much distressed during the early part of each day by indigestion. My breakfast seemed to turn sour and failed to digest. After dinner the headache and other symptoms following the breakfast would wear away, only to return, however, next morning.

"Having heard of Grape-Nuts food, I finally concluded to give it a trial. I made my breakfasts of Grape-Nuts with cream, toast and Postum. The result was surprising in improved health and total absence of the distress that had, for so long a time, followed the morning meal.

"My digestion became once more satisfactory, the headaches ceased, and the old feeling of energy returned. Since that time I have always had Grape-Nuts food on my breakfast table.

"I was delighted to find also, that whereas before I began to use Grape-Nuts food I was quite nervous and became easily wearied in the work of preparing sermons and in study, a marked improvement in this respect resulted from the change in my diet.

"I am convinced that Grape-Nuts food produced this result and helped me to a sturdy condition of mental and physical strength.

"I have known of several persons who were formerly troubled as I was, and who have been helped as I have been, by the use of Grape-Nuts food, on my recommendation." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Boost for Minnesota

The Northern Minnesota Development association will hold its fourth convention in Duluth June 1 and 2, 1911, at which time plans will be perfected for carrying on a campaign of education, to place before prospective homeseekers the advantages of our state, and also to further advertise our northern resources and requirements among our own people. Among the many matters to discusr will be:

State development, development of state lands, conservation of soil fertility, land show in St. Paul, December, 1911, commission plan of state government, national corn show, Minneapolis, 1912, and other important matters.

Among the organizations who will send delegates are thirty-four Northern Minnesota County Development associations, the Wisconsin Advancement association, Upper Michigan Development association, Western Michigan Development bureau, and others.

A determined effort is now under way to show those seeking homes from other states that our own state holds inducements superior to others, which our close proximity to market indicates; the next five years hold great possibilities to those states that are up and doing. Minnesota is the banner western state and should be in the lead of this great land movement. Duluth is making great preparations to take care of all who will come. Those who attend will enjoy not only the business of the meeting, but from the social side an especially enjoyable time is anticipated.

Rural School Notes

Speaking of contest work, here is an opportunity especially for boys and girls in our rural schools. We want to see how well you can do as farmers in raising corn. This has been a great contest among schools in other counties; yes, even in Pennington county. Why should we not be able to produce corn as good in quality and quantity as our next neighbors, or to make the baby county in our state hold its own in the production of corn and vegetables?

Our boys and girls will give the answer next fall by the next display of products; for we are going to offer prizes in this contest. The boys and girls on some of our well tilled farms did splendidly last year, and let us make an effort to do even better this year. Northern Minnesota has enough of sunshine and fresh air and—moisture. Conditions are the best for raising these products. Send to Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn., for extension bulletin No. 3, and you will get full information about the county industrial contest.

As for this county—we will distribute to the boys and girls who will promise to plant and care for a patch—we will send them some seed corn FREE OF CHARGE for planting. Ask your parents for a good patch, a patch that will show the best qualities of that farm, and plant the corn sent you and care for it. You will be surprised to see what elegant corn you can raise. Be sure to carry home that best prize. It will be yours next fall as an apperciation of yous best efforts.

Let us have the names and addresses right now and we shall send you the seed, the best corn we can obtain for the purpose. Boys and girls in a family can club together to cultivate and care for the garden farm. Send for the seed at once, as the season is getting late. Let us have the satisfaction of giving you boys and girls many prizes next fall; and then, possibly, some of you as a result will have a chance to go to the university farm, Minneapolis, for a week's study and observation at the agricultural school, expenses paid and all free; that is, if you can win the best prizes. I cannot promise this for sure, but we will see what can be done in this regard. All depends on winning prizes now, so be sure at once to send in your request for seed corn.

Another Victory

The St. Hilaire Gophers added another victory to their base ball record last Sunday afternoon, when they defeated the Red Lake Falls aggregation by the one sided score of 18 to 8. The St. Hilaire team obtained a good start on the down river players in the first inning when they ran in six scores, and although their opponents played valiantly during the rest of the game to even up scores, it was clearly evident that they would not be able to do so. The Red Lake Falls team were a bunch of perfect gentlemen in the opinion of the St. Hilaire "Tossers."

A return game will most likely be played in the near future, when Red Lake Falls will endeavor to show a stronger line-up. Manager Wallen has made arrangements with Ed. Corwin, manager of the Thief River Falls "Tigers," for a game tomorrow afternoon which promises to be a fast one as the Tigers have the reputation of being one of the strongest squads that the up-river city can put in the field.

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

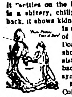
KIDNEY CHILLS AND BACKACHE.



If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys" and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness which is often the beginning of serious disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the backache and other symptoms disappear.

Mrs. D. K. Jeffers, Colfax, Wash., says: "For two weeks I had to be propped up in bed and I lost 50 pounds in weight. I was in terrible condition, in fact, I came very near dying. As a last resort I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Since then I have gained back my lost weight and feel wonderfully improved."

THAT WAS THE LAST STRAW

Many Women There Are Who Will Understand Just Why Long-Suffering "Worm" Turned.

Several years ago an Atchison couple were living happily together. The community was shocked one day when the wife applied for a divorce and got it. The story of the divorce has come out. It seems that the wife went into the kitchen and "slaved" all day. She made bread, pies, cake, cookies and pork and beans. She boiled a tongue, made a potato salad, stuffed eggs, made a custard and brown bread.

When her husband came home at 6 o'clock in the evening he found her dressed up. And on the table was cold tongue, pork and beans, fresh bread, cake, cookies, pie, potato salad, stuffed eggs, brown bread and custard. The wife thought her husband would say: "You poor darling, how you have worked today!" Instead, he said in a surprised way: "COLD supper! Lord, but you have an easy time!" His wife did not answer him. She was speechless with rage, and he does not know to this day why she asked the court to be divorced from a BRUTE.—Atchison Globe.

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time

—not a year from now, when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 50 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Now What Did She Mean?

At a recent wedding a baby had shrieked without intermission to the great annoyance of the guests, etc. As the bridal party was leaving the church a slight delay occurred. One of the guests seized the opportunity to say to the first bridesmaid:

"What a nuisance babies are at a wedding!"

"Yes, indeed!" answered the bridesmaid, angrily. "When I send out invitations to my wedding I shall have printed in the corner, 'No babies expected.'"—Judge.

A READER CURES HIS CONSTIPATION—TRY IT FREE

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practised the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Gravelino of 86 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

The HOME DEPARTMENT

FOR FANCY SLIPPERS

EASY TO HAVE PAIR TO MATCH EVERY GOWN.

By the Use of Rosettes the Pardonable Deception Cannot Be Discovered—Plaited Ribbon Another Style of Trimming.

One of the delights of the present day girl is to have a collection of fancy slippers—a pair for almost every gown. None of these slippers are plain and many of them are very much decorated. These decorations can be changed so as to make the same slippers look like something entirely different. The girl who cannot have as many pairs as she has gowns can make for herself a large collection of rosettes, bows with buckles and various little fancy trimmings.

Black velvet slippers are used with many gowns and they can have flat white bows with rhinestone buckles or colored chiffon and satin roses. These little flowers are not hard to make. A strip of the material is folded over and gathered, then twisted in such a way that it looks like the petals of a rose. There is a certain knack in the twisting, and the girl who does not succeed in doing it might take a lesson in making the flowers at an embroidery shop.

Another style of trimming is a flat rosette made of finely plaited ribbon. This is sewed around a small circle of the same ribbon, stiffened and edged with beads. For very full dress occasions a pretty way to trim the slippers is with little rhinestone butterflies, whose wings stand up. These may be right on the slippers or have a rosette under them. The trimming is often in a different color from the slippers, so the girl who has a white pair can have chiffon rosettes or flowers in pink, in blue and in yellow to go with gowns of those colors. If the gown has touches of black in its trimming (as so many do now) a better effect is given by using black slippers, either of velvet, satin or patent leather. The same decorations can be used on those as on the white slippers, and a few strong stitches will hold them in place, so it is quite easy to change them.

FRILLS FOR THE LITTLE ONES

Small Maidens and Their Beaux Have Distinct Fashions as Have Their Elders.

Belts are the thing.

Even on the frilliest frocks they are seen.

For tiny boys and girls, as for their elders, there are distinct differences in effects to be worn in the morning or afternoon.

For the former time belts are a heavy grade of leather.

Black and tan are the smartest colors.

Buckles, leather covered, to match, are more in vogue than metal.

The former variety costs more, and therefore, is not so common.

Bright colors, red, blue and green, may appear on dresses in belts.

They should be seen before noon only, to make variety.

For afternoon, little girls who scorn sashes have their frocks finished with a delicate color by the introduction of kid, not leather belts.

These come in light blue, pink, yellow, and indeed every hue of the rainbow.

They are as wide as the leather bands, but the kid is extremely soft.

It may be "dressed" or suede finish.

With such belts silk stockings, and kid shoes of the same color must be chosen, and, of course, hair ribbons are to match.

The same rule for little girls applies to tiny boys, but after the age of five years the latter should wear belts made only of leather.

ROCOCO ROSES FIND FAVOR

Worth of Idea, Originating in Paris, Recognized by the Women of America.

Those tiny rococo silk roses that have been the passion of the Parisienne for the past two years have found the way to American feminine hearts as well, and have played a large part as a decorative motif on hats, blouse, girdles and neckwear during the past season. They are so piquant in coloring and so adaptable to dainty design that plain satin and gold evening shoes and slippers are decorated with them, either in little clusters or dainty wreaths, instead of the long-used buckle or bow.

Silk stockings also flaunt them gayly, and little sprays of these dainty roses in dull tints add a note of elegance and suggest a foreign touch that is very "fetching." Of course, the handbag of velvet that has been so important an accessory to the street costume has also been enlivened by this means of embellishment, done in black moire or satin ribbon, with a mere dash of gold to blend in with the long gold cords that are so fashionable.

The longer the cords attached to these bags and the handsomer the tassels, the more desirable they are, although when a bag swings at so great a length it is found to be impracticable, so that many women carry silver or gold mesh bags besides, which hold a tiny handkerchief and the necessary small coins.

The Peasant Coiffure.

The peasant coiffure, which is gaining votaries, is a very picturesque and common adaptation of the original design. After parting the tresses in the center, above the brow, the long locks at the sides are plaited and rolled round over the ears in a spiral mound. Those at the back are curled, and it is noticeable that they are piled higher upon the crown of the head than a month or more ago. Little children are wearing their hair in just the same way, but there are no curls at the back; all the locks are crispy plaited and twisted in spirals above the ears.

DAINTY BITS OF ORNAMENT

Old Gold and Some Prized Family Stone Are All the Articles Really Needed.

In any big city where there are arts and craft workers in metals old gold and some family stone or other can be made up into beautiful ornaments, these having special value through their association.

One ring of this sort seen recently had been made from an old thimble, a small yellow diamond and a deep, yellowish brown cairngorm pebble that had little value except its pretty color and the fact that it came from an old pin the mother had bought in Scotland on her honeymoon tour.

A neck chain pendant was made up in round disk shape, the filigree of the silver setting holding a central bit of turquoise matrix in irregular shape. If there is an antique store handy and there is money enough for the purchase, look for an old Mexican earring, or some quaint round earbob and have it made up into a ring. At these places rose diamonds, which are without the faceting of other stones, sometimes sell very cheaply. And when a girl has come to the age for wearing it, she loves a bit of real jewelry.

Of course all these suggestions are suitable for other gala occasions, such as birthdays, and especially the birthday when daughter is able to announce to father and mother: "Today I am sixteen."

Mourning Accessories.

A woman in mourning often misses it in her accessories. Her gowns and hats may be quite correct, but she wears jewelry or carries bags and other belongings that are not suitable.

For the deepest black it is good form to wear nothing but black jewelry. This means a new supply, as none of the old is permissible save one's engagement ring. Some women even dispense with that.

The Neighbors.

"I thought you were going to put some money into hens this spring?"

"Well, don't you see me making a garden?"

325,000 IN ONE YEAR

THE IMMIGRATION TO CANADA SURPASSES ALL RECORD.

The returns recently issued by the Canadian Immigration Branch shows that upwards of 325,000 persons arrived in Canada during the past twelve months, declaring their intention of becoming settlers in that country. Of this number about 130,000 were from the United States, the balance being from the British Isles and Northern Europe. It will thus be seen that the sturdy farming element that has gone forward from the United States is being splendidly supplemented by an equally sturdy settlement from across the seas. The lure of Canadian wheat, oats, barley and flax grown on the rich prairie of Western Canada is constantly attracting more and more, and year by year the tide of immigrants to the Western Canada plains increases; there is no ebb to this tide. The Canadian authorities are not surprised at the number from the United States being as large as it is but they did not look for so large an immigration from the old countries. Still, they will not be found unprepared. Reception halls are in readiness at all important points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, surveyors were at work during the past season opening up new districts on which to place those seeking free homesteads of 160 acres each, railways have been projecting laterals from their main lines, and every provision has been taken to accommodate the newcomer. A recent dispatch from Antwerp reads: "The diversion of European emigration from the United States to Canada is said to be seriously affecting the Atlantic steamship lines. The Red Star today gives up to the America-Canada line two of the best special emigrant steamers afloat, the Gothland and the Samland. These vessels heretofore in the Antwerp-New York service are now to be operated from Rotterdam to Canadian ports."

On the date of the above dispatch word came to the Immigration branch that the "Vanguard of the 1911 army of United States settlers reached Winnipeg at 1:30 o'clock this morning. There was a solid train load of effects, comprising 41 carloads and two colonist sleepers attached to the train, which contained the members of 25 families. Every man Jack in the party is a skilled farmer, and all have come north prepared to go right on the land, which was purchased last year. They are equipped with everything that experience has shown is necessary to make a start on virgin prairie. In addition to machinery and household effects there were a large number of horses and cattle. Some of the farmers had also brought along gas tractors, which will be put right to work on ground breaking."

One of the agents of the Canadian government advises that it would appear as if each month of the present year would show a large increase over the past year. The demand for the literature of the department, describing the country and its resources, is greater than it ever has been.

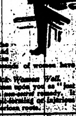
Strong Healthy Women



If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

The Lesser Evil.

Gresham college in 1719 was the scene of a famous serio-comic duel between two celebrated doctors, Doctor Mead and Doctor Woodward, both of whom were lecturers at the college. While walking down Bishopsgate street one morning they quarreled over some medical question and adjourned to the square of the college to fight it out with swords. Woodward fell, wounded in several places, whereupon Mead magnanimously said, "Take thy life." "Anything but your physic," hissed back the chagrined Woodward ere he swooned away.—London Chronicle.

"No," answered the Englishman, eagerly, "but I'll wager it was good. What was it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AGAINST STANDARD

Oil Trust Ordered Dissolved By Decision of The Supreme Court.

SUMMARY OF DECISION.

In the Standard Oil Decision, the supreme court holds:

That the Standard Oil Company is a monopoly in restraint of trade.

That this giant corporation must be dissolved within six months.

Corporations whose contracts are "not unreasonably restrictive" of competition are not affected.

Washington, D. C. — The Standard Oil company of New Jersey and its 19 subsidiary companies were declared by the supreme court of the United States to be a conspiracy and combination in restraint of trade. They also were held to be monopolizing interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The dissolution of the combination was ordered to take place within six months.

Thus ended the tremendous struggle on the part of the government to put down by authority of law a combination which it asserted was a menace.

At the same time the court interpreted the Sherman anti-trust law so as to limit its application to acts of "undue" restraint of trade and not soning of the court in arriving at its this point that the only discordant note was heard in the court.

Justice Harlan's Contention.

Justice Harlan dissented, asserting that cases already decided by the court had determined once for all that the words "undue" or "unreasonable" and similar words, were not in the statute. He declared that the reasoning p fthe court in arriving at its finding was in effect legislation that belonged in every instance to congress and not to the courts.

The opinion of the court was announced by Chief Justice White. In printed form, it contained more than 20,000 words.

Distinguished Audience Present.

Before him sat a distinguished audience of the most famous men of the country. Senators and representatives left their respective chambers in the capitol to listen to the epoch-making decision of the court. Most eager to hear were Attorney General Wickersham and Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel of the government, who had conducted the great fight against the Standard Oil. None of the brilliant array of counsel for the corporation or individual defendants were present.

By far the greater portion of the opinion of the chief justice was devoted to the justification of the court in requiring that the "rule of reason" be applied to restraints of trade before they were held to be violations of the Sherman anti-trust law. The court found this justification in the common law of the forefathers and in the general law of the country at the time the Sherman anti-trust law was passed. This meaning of the words, according to the court, called for exercise of reasoning in determining what restraint on trade were prohibited.

Chief Justice Reviews Proceedings.

Chief Justice White in his opinion first reviewed the preliminary proceedings in the case in the circuit court of the United States for the Eastern district of Missouri. He restated the essential points in the bill of the government asking for the dissolution of the Standard Oil and the answer questioning the jurisdiction of the court and denying the claims of the government.

He then came to the arguments as to the law and the facts in the case, saying that out of the "jungles" of law and facts both sides were engaged only in one thing and that was that the determination of the controversy rested upon the proper construction and application of the first and second sections of the anti-trust acts. The views of the two sides, as to the law, the chief justice said, were as wide apart as the poles. The same he said, was true as to the facts.

Prosecution's View Considered.

"Thus on the one hand with relentless pertinacity and minuteness of analysis," said the chief justice, "it is insisted that the facts established that the assailed combination took its birth in a purpose to unlawfully acquire wealth by oppressing the public and destroying the just rights of others, and that its entire career exemplifies an inexorable carrying out of such wrongful intents, since, it is asserted, the pathway of the combination from the beginning of the time of the filing of the bill is marked with constant proofs of wrong inflicted upon the public and is strewn with the wrecks resulting from crushing out, without regard to law, the individual rights of others. . . . It is asserted that the existence of the principal corporate defendant, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, with its vast accumulation of property, because of its potency for harm and the dangerous example which its continued existence affords, is an open and enduring menace to all freedom of trade and a by-word and reproach to all modern economic methods.

Lawful Competition Questioned.

"On the other hand, in a powerful analysis of the facts, it is insisted that they demonstrate that the origin and development of the vast business which the defendants control was but the result of lawful competitive methods, guided by economic genius of the highest order, sustained by courage, by a keen insight into the commercial situation resulting in the acquisition of great wealth, but at the same time serving to stimulate an increased production, to widely extend the distribution of the products of petroleum at a cost largely below that which otherwise have prevailed, thus proving to be at one and the same time a benefaction to the general public as well as an enormous advantage to individuals."

Government Fully Upheld.

Commenting upon the Standard Oil decision, Attorney General Wickersham said that the court unanimously affirmed the decree rendered by the circuit court in favor of the government in every particular, save that give the defendants six months instead of 30 days' time in which to comply with the decree.

President Mum on Decision.

President Taft and his cabinet in the regular session today will take up the solution of the "trust question" brought sharply before them by the Standard Oil decision.

The president himself had nothing to say about the decision. He wished, he told callers, to read it carefully, to discuss it with the cabinet and to dissect it with Mr. Wickersham. Until these things had been done, he had no opinion to voice.

Frank B. Kellogg Satisfied.

"It is a complete victory for the government," said Frank B. Kellogg, of St. Paul, who, as special counsel for the government, has assisted in the prosecution of the case.

Standard's Head Won't Talk.

New York, May 16.—On the steps of the Standard Oil building at No. 26 Broadway there stood a newsboy crying "Standard Oil loses!" Inside not an officer of the company would speak. William Rockefeller seldom talks and did not break his rule. John D. Archbold is ill at his home in Tarrytown. Mortimer F. Elliott, solicitor general for the company, said that he could have nothing to say until he had read the full text of the decision.

Many brokers' offices kept open late into the night for London accounts. In similar previous decisions handed down after the market closed, the financial powers had been able to get together overnight and formulate plans for action in the market the following morning.

John S. Miller, who was chief counsel for the Standard Oil company in the case in which a fine of $29,240,000 was assessed against the corporation by Judge Landis, announced that the decision was not of general application.

DEITZ GETS A LIFE SENTENCE

DEFENDER OF CAMERON DAM IS CONVICTED BY JURY AT HAYWARD.

WIFE AND SON ARE ACQUITTED

First Serious Rebuff to Noted Backwoodsman in Celebrated Case Which Has Been in the Courts For Nearly Ten Years.

Hayward.—John Deitz, guilty of murder in the first degree, and his wife, Mrs. Hattie Deitz and his son Leslie, not guilty. Such was the verdict of the jury in the famous case of the Wisconsin backwoodsman. For the killing of Oscar Harp, a sheriff's deputy, for which crime he has been convicted, John Deitz was sentenced to prison for life, and will be in solitary confinement one day each year, Oct. 8, the anniversary of Harp's death.

Deitz announced his intention of filing an appeal, and will employ an attorney. He acted as his own attorney in the present case.

Clerical Error Cause.

A clerical error, the omission of a mention of a reservation of rights for the Mississippi River Logging company and the Chippewa Lumber and Boom company, the original owners, to maintain Cameron dam and flow the land after it had been transferred to Mrs. Cameron, is declared by many to have started the controversy which ended with the jury's verdict today. The rights of the dam and the flowage of the land has always been the contention of John Deitz on the grounds that it is located on the property which is in his wife's name and as much has been ascertained by surveyors for the lumber company.

The company claimed that when the land was deeded over to Mrs. Cameron, who later sold it to Mrs. Deitz, they retained the perpetual rights to the dam and flowage, but this reservation was left out of the warranty deed which Mrs. Deitz now holds and it is on this omission that the Deitz family base their claims to the dam.

Since 1904, at which time the trouble began, when Deitz refused to allow the lumber companies to send the logs over the dam, there have been ten efforts to capture. In the wholesale violence which attended these attempts one man, a deputy sheriff, met his death, three were wounded, on the one side, while with the defenders of the property Myra Deitz was wounded in the back, Clarence shot in the head and John Deitz wounded through the hand. The shooting of Bert Horel is an additional outgrowth of the trouble.

Lumber Held Up.

The lumber piles which proved such points of vantage in the battle of last October are composed of lumber sawed from part of a drive of 6,500,000 feet which Deitz held up when the lumber companies refused him $8,000, which he claimed as his due for about 80,000,000 feet of logs which had passed over the dam since his wife bought the quarter section on which it is located. When an injunction was issued by Judge Parish, Sheriff Peterson, instead of personally serving it on the members of the Deitz family, mailed it, with the result that it was burned. For not doing his duty and serving the paper, Sheriff Peterson was deposed, fined and sentenced to imprisonment, but was later released from the fine and sentence.

Sheriff Fred Clark during a previous term was the next officer of the law to call upon Deitz. Without papers Clark went to the cabin and tried to get Deitz to go with him to the county seat, but no attention was paid to him.

Sheriff William Giblin, with William Elliot and armed posse, moved on Cameron Dam, May 10, 1904, but were met in the woods and after an exchange of shots without injury gave it up as a bad job. Valentine Weisenbach, who assisted Deitz in resisting this service, is now serving a ten-year sentence at Waupun for his complicity.

A warrant brought to the cabin by Thomas Grist, a G. A. R. man and the next sheriff, was promptly consigned to the flames.

Posse in Vicinity.

A posse hovered in the vicinity of the Deitz clearing for several days in 1905, but left without accomplishing anything, and later Sheriff Colon visited the occupants of the cabin and accomplished as much. He was followed by Deputy United States Marshals Jonas and Merklin, who were thrown out of the cabin bodily when they tried to serve their papers. When they were ordered from the clearing at the point of a gun Deputy Sheriff Waite Ackley and another man who were the next legal visitors did not waste time in fond good-byes.

Then Deputy United States Marshal Pugh of Superior came and deposited on a stump some more papers which were thrown into the Thornapple. Sheriff James Gylland with John Rogish and John Hein and armed posses hired in Milwaukee and disguised in the uniforms of Wisconsin National Guardsmen, crawled on the cabin.

Rogish was shot three times and Clarence was shot in the head. The posse left for Milwaukee just ahead of a fusillade of Deitz' bullets and ahead of them was Sheriff James Gylland. Last December in the municipal court in Hayward, John Deitz, Mrs. Deitz, Leslie, Myra and Clarence were bound over for trial on charges of assault with intent to kill.

Bert Horel Affair.

Then came the Bert Horel affair, September 6, 1910, which changed the sentiment of the community against Deitz and his family. During the primary election in Winter on that day, Deitz was arguing with G. G. O'Hare of the school board, when Bert Horel interfered. Blows were exchanged and Deitz was knocked in a ditch. Deitz arose and shot Horel through the neck and the shoulder. On the charge of assault with intent to kill Bert Horel, Clarence was freed last year.

With the growing determination in Sawyer county to capture John Deitz at all hazards, the armed posses under command of Sheriff Mike Madden, Fred Thorbahn and Roy Van Alstyne, the latter one of Deitz' worst enemies, surrounded the cabin and laid siege to it for three days, ending Oct. 8 on the surrender of the head of the family after he had been shot through the hand and Deputy John Harp had been killed by a bullet.

A coroner's jury at Winter attributed Harp's death to John Deitz, his wife and his son Leslie. Myra was in the hospital at Ashland and Clarence Deitz was in jail at Hayward, where they had been taken after they had been captured on the road to Winter one week before the fight, when they ran into an ambuscade of deputies.

The members of the family appeared in the municipal court of Hayward on the various charge and were bound over to the circuit court. All were later released on bond. Deitz retained but one attorney, and when his efforts to secure a change of venue had failed Deitz severed connection with him and took up his own defense before the law.

Famous Athlete Is Married.

Lenox, Massachusetts. — Percy D. Haughton, famous as the coach of Harvard's football teams of '08, '09 and '10, and Mrs. Gwendolin Whistler Howell, a popular society woman of New York, were married today at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Joseph S. Whistler, in this city. The wedding was a brilliant affair and was attended by many Havard alumni from New York and elsewhere. There will be a large reception this evening, after which the couple will leave for a honeymoon in the south.

START OF CORONATION FETES.

King George Dedicates Victoria Memorial.

London, England.—The presence of the German emperor and empress and their daughter, Victoria Louise, who, rumor says, is to be given in marriage to the prince of Wales, at King George's dedication of the great Victoria memorial, and the opening of the Festival of Empire marked the beginning of the three months' reign of merrymaking with which the British empire will celebrate the coronation of the king and queen in June—incidentally putting millions of dollars into the pockets of British tradesmen.

The dedication ceremonies took place near Buckingham palace, where the great monument to the late queen overtops the Mall and rears its stately proportions high in the air, crowned by a gigantic bronze statue of Peace. A troop of the famous Life Guards preceded the open carriage of the king and queen, then followed many more carriages bearing the prime minister, members of the parliament and many other persons of note. At the foot of the monument a great platform had been erected and it was there that the actual ceremonies attendant upon the dedication took place.

IRON SAFE BEFORE GRAND JURY.

Taken From Closed Offices of Carnegie Trust Company.

New York, N. Y. — A big steel safe was taken by force of law from the closed offices of the Carnegie Trust Company and hauled into the grand jury room at the criminal courts building, where it will be examined for evidence it may contain regarding the affairs of the defunct institution.

William J. Cummins refused to open the safe and professional safe workers were called in to open the doors. District Attorney Whitman declined to say whether papers valuable in the grand jury investigation had been found.

Provisional Officers for Cananea.

Cananea, Mexico. — The major portion of Juan Cabral's army moved away from Cananea, marching westward. It is not known whether the force is headed against Hermosillo or Nogales. Cabral himself has not left Cananea. The revolutionary leaders at a meeting presided over by Judge Cabral, selected the provisional officers of Cananea.

Berkshire Fires Out.

Millers Falls, Massachusetts. — A heavy shower extinguished the forest fires which have been burning in this region. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Will Be Sentenced to Be Hanged.

Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. — It took a jury in Sault Ste Marie, Ont., but 40 minutes to find William Carroll, 65 years old, guilty of the murder of George Thibault. Carroll will be sentenced to be hanged by Justice Britton. Carroll, after accusing Thibault, a much younger man, of persistently annoying him and stealing his clothing, practically decapitated the younger man with an ax while the two were in the bunk house of a lumber camp, 59 miles northeast of Blind River, Ont., on Jan. 18.

"SINBAD" TURNS SAD.

Former Prison Gardener Who Couldn't Stand Freedom Tends Main Gate.

Stillwater.—Not even at return to prison walls could restore his former gayness to "Sinbad the Sailor," whose freedom made him sad.

Charles Price—that's his registered name—now does duty as a trusty from morning till night at the main gate of the prison yard, but his blithesomeness had departed. No more of those South sea stories trickle from his South sea lips.

Price used to be in charge of the prison greenhouse. There he developed hybrid plants that rivaled Burbank's marvels, and grew the mammoth lemons that made the greenhouse famous. Last August 5 his life sentence for murder was commuted and he went to St. Paul to engage in gardening. For a while all was well, but when the family that employed him left home for months "Sinbad" grew lonesome and morose. Finally he appeared at the prison office and asked to be readmitted.

They let him in, but his old job, amid the plants and flowers, had been given to another. They made Price keeper of the main gate, but he sits there all day unsmiling, languishing for lack of the prison joys that once were his.

'Tis said he hopes a second application for parole may be made when the woman who was his benefactress returns to her St. Paul home. But he doesn't want to leave prison again unless he is permitted to return to the Malay islands, the scene of his heyday exploits.

RESTORE THE 3-CENT FARE.

Probably Every Road Will Have Permission by Saturday.

St. Paul.—By next week, it is expected, every railroad doing business in Minnesota will have been granted permission to resume the three-cent fare in this state pending the outcome of the appeal in the rate cases to the United States supreme court.

The stockholders of the five roads not affected by Judge Willard's decision allowing the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Minneapolis & St. Louis to resume the old rate have filed a petition for a temporary injunction against the state to restrain the enforcement of the present rate pending the outcome in the higher court.

Papers in the suits were submitted to Judge Sanborn. According to the attorneys this action is simply a protective move on the part of the stockholders, and is taken in accordance with actions already filed by the Minnesota & International and Big Fork & International Falls railroads.

The officers have been unable to get trace of the man.

St. Paul.—Three new army divisions have been decided upon by the United States government, and the war department is busy looking for three men who will be given charge of the districts and who will be given the rank of major general. At present there is but one division, that of the Philippines, where it is thought Major General Bell will be left in command. The headquarters of the Eastern division will be at Governor's island. Chicago will be made the headquarters of the Central division, with departments at several stations, including one at St. Paul. The center of the Western division will be at San Francisco. It is announced that the changes are to go into effect July 1.

SHOWERS BENEFIT CROPS.

Large Area of Northwestern Grain Fields Deluged.

Winona.—A quarter of an inch of rain and a warm clear day was a combination of conditions that brought great rejoicing to Winona county farmers. The warm rain began falling slowly about 2 o'clock Sunday morning and continued until daybreak, giving abundant moisture to the soil and placing it in excellent condition for growth of infant crops under the influence of sunshine which brought the temperature up to 80 degrees as a maximum.

Reports from over Southern Minnesota declare the rainfall very beneficial to vegetation of all kinds. Barley and oats have made great progress in a single day here, and wheat farther west has been given a splendid impetus. Indications tonight, according to the local weather observer, are for additional rainfall before daybreak.

Mankato Is Favored.

Downpour Around Duluth.

Duluth.—A heavy shower visited Duluth and vicinity. Crop conditions are very satisfactory at present, through many farmers have been anticipating another dry season and have tilled their ground with great care. A much greater acreage is being planted in Northern and Northwestern Minnesota than ever before.

Big Rain at Sauk Center.

Sauk Center.—Farmers and citizens were delighted when the first big rain of the season fell. There was lightning and thunder for hours and intermittent rains, and then a steady rain, which has made the dry parched ground look green. Even the lakes were drying up and Sauk lake is five feet lower than usual. This rain will do much to help fill the wells and the streams and lakes. Farmers everywhere were rejoicing at the showers of rain, for which prayers had been made.

Red Wing.—Light rains fell here. Crop conditions are excellent.

VINCENT ON INSPECTION TOUR.

"U" Head Says He Has Learned Much on Trip to Upper Minnesota.

Minneapolis.—Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the Minnesota State university, and party, who have been visiting the agricultural schools at Morris and Crookston and the experimental station at Grand Rapids, are home again.

The party had intended to inspect sites for the Duluth demonstration farm, but this will be done next week.

"This visit to the agricultural schools and experimental farms has interested and instructed me much," said President Vincent.

"I cannot speak of upper Minnesota agriculturally, for I am just learning things relating to that industry, but I am much impressed with the people of this section and the fine type of school children in the several districts that we have visited."

RED LAKE INDIANS PAID.

No Ill Feeling Shown and No Intoxication Seen at Agency.

Bemidji.—The Red Lake Indians, both adults and minors, received a payment of part money due them for sale of lands on their reservation. Agent Bishop, who is in charge at Red Lake agency, says that each Indian gets $40.70. There are 1,400 members of the Red Lake band, and many of the families number five or more.

The payment was conducted in a quiet and businesslike manner, their being no disturbances of any kind, and nothing but the best of good feeling has prevailed at the agency.

There is an entire absence of anything resembling intoxication among the Indians, as the law relative to selling or giving away liquor to persons of Indian blood is being rigidly observed.

Care of Cream

St. Hilaire, Minnesota, May 8, 1911.

ESTEEMED PATRON;—The grading of cream and paying for same according to quality is the system that is being adopted by one creamery after another thruout the state. That, no doubt, is the proper system; but you, I am sure, would not like to accept "Grade 2" price for your cream when thru a little extra care in milking, separating, and cooling your cream you could just as well bring an "A No. 1" product to the creamery.

To avoid the extra labor and consequent expense connected with the "paying for cream according to quality" system we are trying to get all our cream to the creamery in "A No. 1" condition—perfectly sweet, clean, and wholesome; and with your hearty cooperation I know it to be possible to achieve this end. You may ask, "Will it pay?" In answer to that question I must say, most emphatically: "Yes, it will pay; a great deal better than most people imagine.'

Just one illustration to prove that assertion: We have offers from several concerns who are willing to pay 10 cts. above New York Extra per pound of butterfat contained in perfectly sweet cream. "Does it pay?" Well, I guess.

This creamery has a "gold medal" reputation, but in order to keep it up—yes, better it, if possible—we must not allow past glory to blind us to the fact that if we are to produce the best finished product we must be forever on our guard against impure bacteria as they are found in unclean utensils, such as milk pails, strainers, cans, separators, and the like; also, from unclean udders and flanks of the animal. Udders should be wiped clean with a damp cloth before every milking. Pails and strainers should be thoroughly washed and scalded after using. The separator should be taken apart and washed clean after every skimming, and should not be put together again until all parts have dried thoroughly.

The cream should be placed in cold water immediately after skimming and should not be covered tightly until free from animal heat. Put a cheese cloth over can and stir occasionally; and don't forget to cool batches separately, i. e., do not add warm cream from a morning skimming to that skimmed the previous evening until the fresh cream has been thoroughly cooled. If you do you will find it impossible to keep your cream sweet any length of time. Another thing: Try to skim a fairly heavy cream (between 25 and 35 per cent); by doing so you'll not have so much erum to take care of, and it is easier to keep a heavy cream after you have once cooled it than it is to keep a 15 or 20 per cent cream.

Cream should be delivered at the creamery at least three times per week in the summer and twice in winter.

Let our watchword be quality, and let us ever boost to make our creamery a manufacturer of "GoldMedal butter" every day in the week. Thanking you for your kind attention, I am yours truly,

A. J. HED.

As to the Taxes

The 1910 real estate tax is payable this year at Red Lake Falls and at Thief River Falls before June 1, 1911.

At Red Lake Falls are payable the township or village levies, the school district levies, and the state taxes, together with all special assessments, such as ditch, sidewalk, road, and other taxes. Under the law these taxes are payable to the old county of Red Lake—for this year only.

All back taxes are also payable to the old county of Red Lake.

The Pennington county tax is for county purposes only —5 mills for county revenue, 2 mills for road and bridge, and 1 mill for bond and interest

A penalty of 10 per cent will be added to the tax on June 1. This applies to both places, and the paying of one tax will not save the penalty at the other place. If one-half of the real estate tax is paid before June 1 the remaining one-half will run to Oct. 31 without cost. The tax must be for one dollar to take advantage of the one-half payments.

Lecture

This next number of the lecture course will be given Tuesday evening, May 23, at 8 o'clock, in Imperial hall, by Rev. J. B. Smith of Thief River Falls. His subject is "Philosophy in a 'Tater Patch," and is a hummer. Don't fail to hear him, for you will miss a treat if you do. Admission 15 cents to all.

Gunderson was warned of his coming and successfully hid himself and after a three days' hunt the sheriff gave up the chase. Last Thursday he went out and captured his man. Meanwhile the complaining witness had disappeared, but he located her at Hazel and passed through town yesterday taking her back to Red Lake Falls.

Joint Meeting of County Boards

After their regular meeting Monday the county commissioners went to Red Lake Falls, where they met in joint session with the board of Red Lake county that evening and concluded a settlement of affairs between the two counties.

The commissioners placed a valuation of $45,500 on the Red Lake county court house, jail, and sheriff's residence. Determining the amount of the Red Lake county debt to be assumed by Pennington county is now simply a matter of accounting. The debt is to be divided according to the assessed valuation of the counties. Pennington county having a larger assessed valuation than Red Lake, will assume a larger part of the indebtedness. Since Red Lake county retains the buildings, Pennington's indebtedness will be reduced by a like proportional amount of the valuation of the buildings as determined by the joint meeting.

The meeting was harmonious in every respect.

Out in the Streets

The entertainment given by home talent under the auspices of the United Lutheran church on the evening of May 17 was a notable one. The manner in which the play, "Out in the Streets," was presented does credit to each and every one of the actors. The preparations and rehearsals were conducted by the players themselves without any ony outside instruction. Myles Jackson acted as manager.

The orchestra, lately organized, did themselves credit by the music rendered by them. Last, but not least, was the swell lunch, to which all did ample justice.

The Imperial hall was crowded to its fullest capacity.

Concert

There will be a concert in the Scandinavian Mission church Saturday evening, May 27, beginning at 8 o'clock. Tickets 25 cts. for adults, 15 cts. for children. Great pains has been taken in preparation for the program for this entertainment, and everybody may expect an evening of enjoyment.

Gophers Defeat Tigers

One of the most stubbornly fought ball games ever witnessed in this section was pulled off here last Sunday afternoon when the fast St. Hilaire Gophers won another laurel by defeating the husky Thief River Falls Tigers, the fastest squad that they have come in contact with this season.

The Tigers came down here with the intention of doing the locals up "brown" but when the smoke of battle cleared away they found to their sad surprise that they had been defeated to the tune of 8 to 9

Excluding the fourth inning when St. Hilaire ran in 5 scores and Thief River 6, mostly due to wild playing, both teams did first class work

Roy Wallen pitched a great game for the Gophers and Glenn Martz made good behind the bat. Dr. Owens acted as umpire and his decisions were entirely satisfactory to both sides.

The Gophers will go to Red Lake Falls tomorrow to play the strong down river team.

Married

The many friends of Mr. Franz F. Freund and Miss Talia Kreil were agreeably surprised Monday evening to learn of their marriage. The wedding was a very quiet affair. The parties to the happy event, without advising any of their friends of their matrimonial intentions, went to the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. L. T. Hughes, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Monday evening and were quietly married. However, the secret was out by the time the bridal party had returned to the bride's home and the band boys, assisted by others making more noise and less music, gave them a rousing serenade.

Mr. and Mrs. Freund are living in Mr. Freund's house in the west part of town and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.—Gazette.

J. W. Parviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. HEALTHY KIDNEYS ESSENTIAL TO PERFECT HEALTH.

When healthy, the kidneys remove about 500 grains of impure matter from the blood daily; when unhealthy, some part of the impure matter is absorbed, causing various diseases and symptoms. To attain perfect health, you must keep your filters right. You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills.

ECZEMA BROKE OUT ON BABY

"When my baby was two months old, she had eczema and rash very badly. I noticed that her face and body broke out very suddenly, thick, and red as a coal of fire. I did not know what to do. The doctor ordered castile soap and powders, but they did no good. She would scratch, as it itched, and she cried, and did not sleep for more than a week. One day I saw in the paper the advertisement of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, so I got them and tried them at once. My baby's face was as a cake of sores.

"When I first used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I could see a difference. In color it was redder. I continued with them. My baby was in a terrible condition. I used the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) four times a day, and in two weeks she was quite well. The Cuticura Remedies healed her skin perfectly, and her skin is now pretty and fine through using them. I also use the Cuticura Soap today, and will continue to, for it makes a lovely skin. Every mother should use the Cuticura Remedies. They are good for all sores, and the Cuticura Soap is also good for shampooing the hair, for I have tried it. I tell all my friends how the Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured my baby of eczema and rash." (Signed) Mrs. Drew, 210 W. 18th St., New York city, Aug. 26, 1910.

FRENCH IN PACT

TRIPLE CHARACTER OF ARBITRATION TREATY IS REVEALED AT WASHINGTON.

ARBITRATION IN PROSPECT

Tentative Drafts Are Handed to Ambassadors.—Settlement of All Disputes Between Nations Is Provided.

Washington, D. C. — The principle of arbitration of practically all disputes between nations, including even questions of vital interest and national honor, assumed vitality when Secretary of State Knox submitted to the British and French ambassadors at Washington the draft of a convention to serve as a basis of negotiations. The fact that this world movement would be inaugurated with France, as well as Great Britain, came as a surprise, as it was generally understood that only the United States and England were concerned in the initial steps.

When President Taft last December enunciated the doctrine of comprehensive arbitration he received a quick response from Ambassadors Bryce and Jusserand that Great Britain and France were willing to begin negotiations with this country for the peaceful settlement of practically all differences that may arise. The president instructed Secretary Knox immediately to crystalize the arbitral proposition which this government would offer to foreign nations.

The secretary has evolved a document which has received the approval of the president and the other members of his cabinet, providing that all differences which are internationally justiciable shall be submitted to arbitration. It expands the scope of the existing arbitration treaties by eliminating the exceptions referring to "questions of vital interest and national honor."

This elimination is the real accomplishment of the proposed treaty. The exceptions mentioned are found in arbitration treaties the world over and have constituted the chief obstacle to the application of the arbitration principle, for it is hard to conceive of a problem which in its essence cannot be regarded as having a controlling bearing upon "national honor" or "vital interest."

Recognizing that there may be questions of policy and other matters likely to force nations to the brink of war but which no people would be willing to arbitrate, the tentative draft of the treaty provides that differences that either party consider within this category shall be referred to a commission of inquiry empowered to make recommendations for their settlement. In this connection the treaty will take another advanced step by binding the disputants to arbitration in case the commission of inquiry declares that the controversy shall be arbitrated.

Arbitration in all cases will be a last resort. After the two countries have concluded that it is impossible to settle a dispute through diplomatic interchange the question will be submitted to a commission in inquiry charged with the office of suggesting a way to avoid arbitration if possible. Should the commission decide that the difference should be arbitrated, this decision is to be binding.

The submission of the drafts to Great Britain and France marks the actual beginning of negotiations. The foreign offices of the two countries will now make an exhaustive examination of the American proposition with a view to suggesting modifications or additions. It is the desire of the administration to complete the negotiations, if possible, in time for submission to the senate before the adjournment of the present session of congress.

New York, N. Y. — One hundred milliners employed in an old fashioned East Side factory poured out to the fire escape and down two flights of burning stairs when fire broke out today below them in the first floor. Several fainted and an unknown man braved the flames and carried out fourteen women from the building. There were serious injuries and the damage was slight.

Your communication will be treated in strict confidence, and your case will be diagnosed as carefully as though you had a personal interview.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, they do not gripe, they do not weaken, but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. In my opinion constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are 26 feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produce rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver ailment can expect to have a clear complexion or enjoy good health. If I had my way I would prohibit the sale of nine-tenths of the cathartics that are now being sold for the reason that they soon destroy the lining of the stomach, setting up serious forms of indigestion, and so paralyze the bowels that they refuse to act unless forced by strong purgatives.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic.

Regular size bottle, containing 45 pills, 25 cents. Munyon's Laboratory, 53d & Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia.

A Poetic Prosecutor.

John Burns, city prosecutor of St. Paul, was trying to show Judge Finehout why some young men ought to be fined for tearing pickets off the fence of Mrs. Joe Goesik. Mr. Burns said:

"I know Mike Chicket tore off that picket, and the lady took offence."

"No lady is charged with taking a fence," replied Judge Finehout, "and, besides, this is no place for poetry."

"Kicking the Bucket."

When we speak facetiously of some one for whom we have no reverence as having "kicked the bucket" we employ a phrase that would seem to be a piece of latter-day slang, but, as a matter of fact, it dates back to old England, when, about the year 1725, one Bolsover hung himself to a beam while standing on the bottom of a bucket and then kicked the bucket away. Although at first used only in cases of suicide, it has been applied in the course of years to any death, without distinction.

Age of Oysters.

Oysters grow only during the summer and especially during the long, warm summers at that, and are scarcely big enough for the mouth before the third year. It is easy after looking over a bunch of shells to tell how old an oyster is. A summer hump and the winter sink come across the shell every year, but after the seventh or tenth year full growth comes; then, by looking at the sinks between the humps it is hard to tell anything more about Miss Oyster's age. Oysters live to be 20 years old.

A Strange Situation.

"Humor is a funny thing," said Binks.

"It ought to be," said the Philosopher.

"Oh, I don't mean that way," said Binks. "I mean that it is a strange thing. Now, I can't speak French, but I can always understand a French joke, and I can speak English, but I'm blest if I can see an English joke."

"Most people are," said the Philosopher.

"Are what?" said Binks.

"Blest if they can see an English joke," said the Philosopher. "It is a sign of an unusually keen vision."—Harper's Weekly.

Socially Launched.

In his native town Jimmy had always been most popular with young and old, but when he was sent away to boarding school, he was for a time too homesick to make friends. His first letter was little more than a wail.

"I'm way behind the other boys in everything," he wrote, dolefully. "'Tisn't only studies, but it's gymnasium and banjos and everything. I don't believe they'll ever have much use for me."

But the second letter, written after a week in the new school, was quite different in tone.

"I'm all right," he wrote to his mother. "The boys say they'll teach me all they know, for they're proud to have me here. I can stretch my mouth half an inch wider than any other boy in school, and my feet are the longest by a full inch. So you needn't worry about me any more."—Youth's Companion.

Husband Who Had "Married Money" Acknowledged the Truth to His Friend's Query.

Apropos of a beautiful young wife, worth $40,000,000, who had just divorced her penniless husband in order to marry again, Henry E. Dixey, the comedian, said at a dinner in New York:

"The young man who marries for money has none too easy a time of it. His rich wife is likely to tire of him and throw him out in a few years, or else she is likely to limit his allowance to 25 or 50 cents a day.

"'I married money,' a man once said to me.

"'Wasn't there a woman attached to it?' I asked.

"'Yes, you bet there was,' he exploded. 'So much attached to it that she never parted with a penny.'"

A Question of Change.

A story is going the rounds of a couple of young people who attended church recently. When the collection was being taken up the young man commenced fishing in his pocket for a dime. His face expressed his embarrassmen as he hoarsely whispered: "I guess I haven't a cent, I changed my pants." The young lady, who had been examining the unknown regions of woman's dress for her purse, turned a pink color and said, "I'm in the same fix."

Some parents are a long while in finding out that money in a boy's pocket will do him little good, unless he also has brains in his head.

Can't Get Away From It

Is it possible to nourish, strengthen and Rebuild the Brain by Food?

Every man who thinks uses up part of the brain each day. Why don't it all disappear and leave an empty skull in say a month of brain work? Because the man rebuilds each day.

If he builds a little less than he destroys, brain fag and nervous prostration result sure. If he builds back a little more each day, the brain grows stronger and more capable. That also is sure. Where does man get the material to rebuild his brain? Is it from air, sky or the ice of the arctic sea? When you come to think about it, the rebuilding material must be in the food and drink.

That also is sure.

Are the brain rebuilding materials found in all food? In a good variety but not in suitable proportion in all.

To illustrate: we know bones are made largely of lime and magnesia taken from food; therefore to make healthy bone structure we must have food containing these things. We would hardly feed only sugar and fat to make healthy bone structure in a growing child.

Likewise if we would feed in a skillful manner to insure getting what the brain requires for strength and rebuilding, we must first know what the brain is composed of and then select some article or articles (there are more than one) that contain these elements.

Analysis of brain by an unquestionable authority, Geoghegan, shows of Mineral Salts, Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash) 2.91 per cent of the total, 5.33 of all mineral Salts.

This is over one-half.

Beaunis, another authority, shows "Phosphoric Acid combined" and Potash 73.44 per cent from a total of 101.07.

Considerable more than one-half of Phosphate of Potash.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows: Potassium and Phosphorus (which join and make Phosphate of Potash) is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This salt unites with albumen and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

The natural conclusion is that if Phosphate of Potash is the needed mineral element in brain and you use food which does not contain it, you have brain fag because its daily loss is not supplied.

On the contrary, if you eat food known to be rich in this element, you place before the life forces that which nature demands for brain-building.

Mind does not work well on a brain that is broken down by lack of nourishment.

A peaceful and evenly poised mind is necessary to good digestion.

Worry, anxiety, fear, hate, etc., etc., directly interfere with or stop the flow of Ptyalin, the digestive juice of the mouth, and also interfere with the flow of the digestive juices of stomach and pancreas.

Therefore, the mental state of the individual has much to do (more than suspected) with digestion.

Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumen and water.

Grape-Nuts contain that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required. Brain rebuilding material is certainly found in

Grape-Nuts

MOBS RIOT IN MEXICO STREETS

DELAY IN DIAZ RESIGNATION DRIVES THE POPULACE TO POINT OF FRENZY.

TROOPS ARE COMPELLED TO FIRE

Outbreak in Chamber of Deputies Is Carried to Streets—Seven Killed, Many Hurt by Bullets.

Mexico City, May 25.—Enraged by the announcement that President Diaz and Vice President Corral had not resigned, spectators in the galleries of the chamber of deputies precipitated a riot that resulted in at least seven deaths and many being wounded by volleys by police and soldiers. President Diaz has had fever for five days and is taking liquid nourishment only.

Early in the evening the mob encountered practically no opposition by the authorities, and apparently little restriction was necessary. Shouting vivas for Madero, they paraded the streets of the capital, but always in an orderly fashion except for the noise, and occasional instances of vandalism were immediately condemned by the thousands of marching men, who, joined in shouts of "order, order."

The main body had been broken into smaller groups, but at that time some of these had grown more demonstrative in the big plaza in front of the palace, and the police determined that the time had come for drastic measures to be taken. The shouting, gesticulating mass of humanity was warned to move on, but a confidence born of better treatment early in the evening caused them to receive with derision the order of the police. Again they were told to disperse, and again no attention was paid to the order.

Rain of Bullets.

Quickly their shouts of ridicule were turned into cries of anguish, for the guns of the police and the soldiers were throwing into their midst a hail of bullets. The living stumbled in a mad rush over the bodies of the dead and wounded.

The narrow streets leading from the Zocalo were jammed with fleeing men and many women. For a few minutes the guns of the government troops were stilled, but a regathering in the street corners of the now thoroughly enraged as well as frightened partisans of Madero resulted in another order to fire at will. Sharper and longer now came the shooting. The mob fled, but contrary to all traditions of Mexico the troops had not yet intimidated the rioters to the point where they were willing to submit. The force of the iron hand was weakening and despite the death it had brought the rioters refused to do more than scatter into miniature mobs, each shouting for Madero and yelling for the early downfall of the present government.

Crowds Throng Palace.

The presidential palace was crowded with visitors, mostly personal friends, who had called to pay their respects and to show their loyalty in the hours of the decline of his power.

Almost at the beginning of the demonstration, the American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, entered the palace. His visit was to pay his respects to the president. He chatted for some time with Madame Diaz, the latter expressing her regrets that the president was too sick to receive any visitors. The call lasted 20 minutes. When the ambassador emerged he found troops lined up in front of the palace and mounted police at both ends of the block.

HORAN HURT ON SPEEDWAY

AUTO SKIDS AND TURNS OVER THREE TIMES.

Driver and Mechanician Thrown Twenty Feet—Latter Is Badly Bruised.

Indianapolis, May 25.—An Amplex racing car driven by Joe Horan of New York skidded and turned over while going at high speed on the Indianapolis speedway; Horan suffered a broken leg and a gash in his forehead. His mechanician, Emmett, was badly bruised.

It was the first serious accident since the 46 entrants in the Memorial day 500-mile race began tuning their cars at the speedway. Horan only a few hours before had succeeded Walter Jones as driver of the Amplex car and was familiar neither with it nor the track.

Horan was coming into the home stretch when the accident occurred. He was well up on the bank and threw the steering wheel over to make the turn. The car swerved sharply, Horan lost control and the car plunged across the track to the infield. When the front wheels struck the sand and mud beyond the inner curb, the car somersaulted three times. Horan and Ward were thrown clear of the car 20 feet. The car was wrecked apparently beyond repair.

Several similar accidents have occurred at the same point on the course.

Walter Jones, who had been entered to drive the Amplex in the 500-mile race, lost control of it at the speedway a few days ago and withdrew. Horan, who is one of the best known racing pilots in the country and who won the 200-mile race at Atlanta last year, was engaged by the manufacturers of the car to take Jones' place.

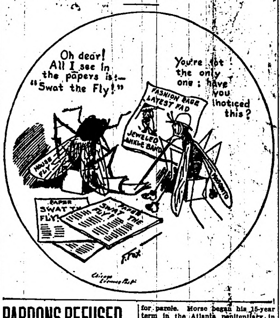
A BAD SEASON IN PROSPECT



PARDONS REFUSED TO BIG BANKERS

TAFT DECLINES TO EXERCISE ANY KIND OF EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

TURNS DOWN WALSH AND MORSE

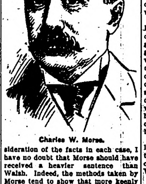
President Scores Convicted Financiers—Both Used People's Money For Their Own Gain, He Says.

Washington, May 25. — President Taft denied the applications for the pardon of Charles W. Morse of New York and John R. Walsh, of Chicago, the two most prominent bankers ever convicted and sent to federal penitentiaries under the national banking laws.

Not only did the president refuse to pardon either Morse or Walsh, but he also declined at this time to exercise any sort of executive clemency in these cases, or to shorten the sentences imposed upon the two men by the courts in which they were convicted.

In denying the pardon the president took the stand that the national banking laws must be upheld when they affect the rich man even more than when they affect the poor. The record in the Walsh case, the president said in a long opinion, "shows moral turpitude of that insidious and dangerous kind, to punish which the national banking laws were especially enacted."

In considering the case of Morse, the present said that "from a consideration of the facts in each case, I have no doubt that Morse should have received a heavier sentence than Walsh. Indeed, the methods taken by Morse tend to show that more keenly than Walsh did he realize the evil of what he was doing."



Charles W. Morse.

In his opinion in the Walsh case, the president protested against the failure to discriminate between legitimate business and improper gain.

Honest Methods Beclouded.

"The truth is," he said, "that in the mad rush for wealth in the last few decades the lines between profit from legitimate business and improper gain from undue use of trust control over other people's property and money has sometimes been dimmed and the interest of society requires that whenever opportunity offers, those charged with the enforcement of the law should emphasize the distinction between honest business and dishonest breaches of trust."

The president's denial of the pardon applications of Morse and Walsh does not mean that they must stay in prison until the end of their terms. Walsh began a sentence of five years in the Leavenworth penitentiary in January, 1910, and under the federal parole law is eligible for parole next September, the president's action having no bearing whatever upon future application for parole. Morse began his 15-year term in the Atlanta penitentiary in January, 1910, also. In denying his application the president granted leave to renew it after Jan. 1, 1913. Under the parole law Morse would be eligible for release in 1915.

The pleas of ill health and reimbursement of all depositors in the Morse and Walsh banks were made in both cases.

In denying the Walsh application, the president said in part:

"The facts are that Walsh owned a large interest in three banks—the Chicago National bank, the Equitable Trust company and the Homes Savings bank, the latter two Illinois state corporations. He absolutely controlled them, although there was a substantial minority interest in all of them held by others. He used them to furnish the money for the development of several railroads, limestone quarries, coal mines and other enterprises. Using his control of these banks, he took their funds and invested them in enterprises of the character mentioned either by direct purchase of the bonds which he had caused to be issued or by lending from the funds of the bank money on 'dummy' notes secured by such bonds as collateral. He risked nearly the whole funds of the three banks in the security of these enterprises and because of these investments the banks failed. The allied banks of Chicago, in order to prevent a panic, took over the Walsh bank holdings and Walsh's properties and paid the depositors in full, but in the liquidation the allied banks will sustain a substantial loss.

Can't be Glossed Over.

"The application for pardon must be denied. No reference to usual business methods, no suggestions of great business enterprises, no excuse of building useful industries and no subsequent attempt to make good the losses which his acts have brought upon innocent persons who trusted him can gloss over the fact that such a man is taking other people's money for his own use."

In the Morse case, Mr. Taft said in part:

"Charles W. Morse was convicted of misapplication of funds of the National Bank of North America and of making false entries in the books of the bank and in its reports to the comptroller of the currency. On appeal to the circuit court of appeals, his conviction on the false entry charge was affirmed.

"Although his conviction technically was on false entries, there is no doubt as to what the evidence showed generally, to-wit., that Morse was engaged in large private transactions in which the maintenance of the price of certain stock in the market was of capital importance to him and he procured control of this particular bank and other banks for the purpose of doing the specific thing mentioned, which was essential to the success of his speculations. The result of his operations was severe losses to the bank, which forced it into liquidation.

"Morse exhibited the same fraudulent and criminal disregard of the trust imposed upon him in the exercise of the control over the bank as Walsh did."

Bickford Case Is Transferred.

Bismarck, May 25.—The case of the State vs. G. L. Bickford, in which the defendant, who was formerly state treasurer, is charged with embezzling $60,000 while in that office, has been transferred from Bismarck and the Sixth district to McLean county in the same district. Judge Crawford of Dickinson has been called as presiding judge. When the case was called for trial here a change of venue was asked and an affidavit of prejudice was filed against Judge Winchester.

1,200 Lives Periled By Fire.

New York, May 25.—A lumber yard fire in Harlem imperiled the lives of 1,200 persons and started incipient blazes in sixteen houses. Besides enormous stacks of lumber in the yard proper, one corner of it was utilized for storage tanks for gasolene. When these exploded, the flames shot far over the roofs of houses and the elevated structure, making people miles away believe the entire upper section of New York was burning. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

BIG BANKRUPT STOCK SOLD.

Two Firms Share Assets of the Tibbs-Hutchings Store.

Minneapolis. — Lindeke, Warner & Sons, wholesale dry goods, and the Golden Rule Department Store company, of St. Paul, shared the entire assets of the Tibbs, Hutchings & Co. bankrupts, at public auction, bidding a total of $1,243,000, and their offers were confirmed by Alexander McCune, referee in bankruptcy.

The bids were separate, S. W. Dittenhofer, vice president of the Golden Rule, bidding $359,500, for the merchandise stock, and A. H. Lindeke bidding $1,243,000 for the entire assets. It was agreed at a meeting of those bidders with the trustees, officers of the Minnesota Loan and Trust company, that inasmuch as the Golden Rule would be satisfied with the merchandise, paraphenalia of the traveling salesmen, fixtures, furniture and machinery that that portion of the stock might go to that concern for $359,500. It was further agreed and concurred in by the referee that inasmuch as Lindeke, Warner & Sons were willing to take the accounts and bills receivable and all other unsold assets belonging to the estate except the cash on hand, for $883,500.

This proposition will be submitted to the creditors at a meeting May 31, at 10 a. m., before the referee in bankruptcy. The inventoried value of the merchandise was given as $575,000, the furniture and fixtures at $50,000, the real estate holdings of the company at $5,500 and the accounts at $1,164,000.

SUPREME COURT DECLINES.

Doesn't Care to Mix in Gov. Eberhart's Controversy.

St. Paul. — The justices of the Minnesota supreme court refuse to become involved in the Whittier matter; they decline absolutely to act as arbitrators in the situation that threatens the dismissal of the superintendens the dismissal of the superintendboys, at Red Wing. This leaves the whole matter up in the air again, and it will now be necessary for specific charges to be preferred against Mr. Whittier, in accordance with the opinion of the attorney general, if Governor Eberhart maintains his position.

In reply to the governor's suggestion that they act as arbitrators, the members of the supreme court, through the chief justice, Charles M. Start, sent the following letter to the governor:

"Your request of May 20 that the justices of the supreme court act as arbitrators in the matter of charges to be preferred against the superintendent of the state training school for boys, at Red Wing, has been duly considered and the conclusion reached that we cannot comply with your request. We have no jurisdiction of the matter as a court, and if we should consent to act as arbitrators, it would establish an undesirable precedent which would embarrass the court and directly tend to impair confidence in it. We are, therefore, constrained by our views of judicial duty and propriety to decline to comply with your request."

PLANS MODEL FARM.

Northern Pacific to Establish Demonstration Plots.

Brainerd.—Arrangements are under way for the establishment of one or more demonstration farms in the northern part of Minnesota, along the Minnesota & International railroad. A week ago a party of Northern Pacific officials covered the ground from International Falls to Brainerd in a special train, taking samples of the soil along the line looking for a favorable location for a farm to show the neighborhood how to get the most out of the soil.

This farm will be the first that the Northern Pacific has started in Minnesota. The road has been interested for a number of years in similar experiments in Montana and North Dakota, working with the officials of the state agricultural schools of those states. The farm in this state also will be under the joint auspices of the road and the agricultural school.

One of the farms probably will be located north of Bemidji, although the arrangements have not been completed.

Minneapolis.—Following "East Lynne" at the Bijou, the Klimt & Gazzolo company of players will present a big revival production of D'Ennery's "The Two Orphans," one of the best known of the old time plays. "The Two Orphans" has long been recognized as one of the best melodramas ever produced.

John Lind Under the Knife.

Minneapolis. — Hon. John Lind, former governor of Minnesota and prospective candidate for United States senator, is seriously ill at the Swedish hospital, where he was operated on. Dr. C. J. Ringnell, his family physician, said that he will probably recover if no complications set in. Mr. Lind, in the event of his recovery, will not be able to leave the hospital for several weeks. The operation was an abdominal one and was necessary to save the life of the former governor.

What Mamma Said.

When the new minister, a handsome and unmarried man, made his first pastoral call at the Fosdicks, he took little Anna up in his arms and tried to kiss her. But the child refused to be kissed; she struggled loose and ran off into the next room, where her mother was putting a few finishing touches to her adornment before going into the drawing room to greet the clergyman.

"Mamma," the little girl whispered, "the man in the drawing room wanted me to kiss him."

"Well," replied mamma, "why didn't you let him? I would if I were you."

Thereupon Anna ran back into the drawing room, and the minister asked:

"Well, little lady, won't you kiss me now?"

"No, I won't" replied Anna promptly, "but mamma says she will."—Exchange.

FEED YOU MONEY

Feed Your Brain, and It Will Feed You Money and Fame.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced I ate too rapidly, and failed to masticate my food properly.

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, afflicted with ailments of the stomach, and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business.

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape-Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., that had constituted my former diet.

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the heartburn and indigestion that used to follow my meals, that the pains in my back from my kidney affection had ceased.

"My nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and lethargic from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, had, not in a moment, but gradually, and none the less surely, been restored to normal efficiency.

"Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quicker and more acute than for years past.

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I began to use Grape-Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ART OF JUGGLING.

A Means of Recreation For the Sedentary or Bedridden.

Speaking of conjuring, the allied art of juggling is one of the most amusing and valuable of diversions, especially to the sedentary. Many physicians become expert in juggling, but it is to their patients that it is most useful.

The bedridden, if they retain the use of their hands, may beguile many a weary hour in learning to keep three or four tennis balls in the air at once and in balancing sticks and other simple objects on the forefinger or on the chin.

For the brain worker who does not care for walking there is no better recreation. It has often occurred to us that in cases where there is any reason to fear some form of paralysis the educating of disused cerebral, cerebellar and spinal centers by the rapid and complex movements required in juggling might serve to act as an efficient preventive.

We do not wish to claim too much for manual education of this kind, but we may point out that it tends to perfect nervous poise and that no juggling trick can be properly done if the performer indulges in dissipation even so mild as beer and cigarettes.—American Medicine.

Talking to the Doctor.

While making some professional calls in a sparsely settled district I came upon a little plump, rosy cheeked girl trudging toward home with her slate and dinner pail in her hand. I asked her to ride with me. I could see that she was a very timid child, and efforts to engage her in conversation were unavailing. She would meekly answer "Yes" or "No," but not another word would she speak.

A few weeks later I was called to the little girl's home to attend another member of the family for a slight ailment. When about to leave the mother spoke up smilingly and said: "Do you remember my little girl riding with you a few weeks ago? Well, when she got home she said, 'Mamma, I rode from school with the doctor, and he kept talking with me and talking with me, and I just didn't know what to do, for you know doctors charge you when you talk with them, and I didn't have any money.'"—National Monthly.

Explained In Italian.

A woman approached a policeman on Fourth avenue the other day and said, pointing to a wizened, foreign looking Italian, "This man has asked me the way to Fourteenth street, but I can't make him understand how to get there."

"Sure, I'll explain to him in I-talian," said the policeman. "Look-a, here, Michael-a, you walk-a right on-a this street-a two block-a, till-a you come-a to a beeg-a, wide street-a, and that is eet."

"Grazie!" acknowledged the Italian gratefully. "Me find-a heem!"—New York Press.

PATTI STOOD PAT.

The Diva Wouldn't Cut Her Rates but Suggested an Alternative.

Patti once was waited upon at her hotel by a famous minstrel magnate, Colonel J. H. Haverly, whose ambition had been aroused to secure the diva for a concert tour under his direction. Madame received him most graciously, and the two began discussing the details.

"May I ask your terms for fifty nights, Mme. Patti?" Haverly asked.

"For concert or for opera?" the diva asked.

"For concert," Haverly replied.

"Four thousand a night, or $200,000 for fifty nights, one-half to be deposited on signing the contract," was Patti's deliberate response.

Haverly tried to appear composed, but it was too much of an effort.

"Two hundred thousand for fifty nights! Heavens, madame, that is just four times as much as we pay our president of the United States," he cried.

"Well," the divine one answered, "why don't you get the president to sing for you?"

Washed Out Blood Stains Cannot Escape the Ultra Violet Rays.

Even before it had been adopted exclusively by means of special lens construction and combination, to the reception of the invisible ultra violet rays, the camera eye, owing to its peculiar sensitiveness to this light, has played a strikingly dramatic role on various occasions. One of these occurred a few years ago in Lausanne, Switzerland.

It appears that a handkerchief formed an exhibit at a murder trial and was regarded as a crucial bit of evidence. The closest inspection failed to reveal a stain on the immaculately white cloth even with the aid of a powerful microscope. But it occurred to a professor of Lausanne university to photograph the handkerchief, when the image obtained clearly disclosed the presence of great splotches, or, rather, of what had been such, showing ghostlike in the carefully washed fabric. The photograph proved the turning point of the trial, and the result was conviction.

Blood, as was scientifically explained at the time, happens to be one of the substances that absorb ultra violet rays, and when any of these substances have found their way to a receptive surface no amount of erasing or cleansing can hide its presence from the camera eye. When the latter is equipped to utilize only this invisible light the result is much more marked. Should the neatest erasure be made in writing done with substances specially absorbent of the rays the ultra violet photograph would show the traces of the erasure as plainly as the writing itself.—New York Tribune.

Follows Instructions.

The father of a small family tells us this one:

"My wife instructed our little boy when he was invited out to lunch the other day that when he was asked to have a second helping of cake he should refuse. 'You must say, "No, I thank you, I've had enough,"' said she. 'And don't you forget it.'

"He didn't. When asked if he'd have some more cake he said, 'No, I thank you, I've had enough, and don't you forget it!'"—Toledo Blade.

DOCTORING A DIAMOND.

Trick That Makes a Yellow Stone Appear Clear Blue White.

Let me show you a little trick that I would advise you not to put into practice, said a jewel fancier to a number of friends the other day.

The conversation had turned to diamonds during the midday luncheon, and the expert had been holding forth on his favorite subject. The little group of St. Louisans were interested still more when the speaker drew a big solitaire from his finger and beckoned a waiter across the cafe.

"Bring me a glass of water and an indelible pencil," said he when the servitor came over to the table.

"This is a trick that is essentially crooked," said the jewel fancier, "and will get by nine times out of ten even when the examiner is an expert at judging precious stones and detecting trickery. It will make a yellow 'off color' diamond look like a stone of the very first water. Pawnbrokers innumerable have been fooled by this same trick, as it is extremely difficult to detect even with a powerful glass."

The expert took the pencil and allowed the indelible lead to dissolve in the glass of water. In a couple of minutes the water was as blue as indigo water.

"Now watch," said the man who knew the lore of jewels.

He took the ring and dropped it into the glass. Its brilliancy was dimmed by the hazy, bluish water until it looked like a dead stone.

"Now, you noted," said the demonstrator, "that the diamond I placed in there was a bit yellow. It will be a clear bluish white when it comes out of its bath."

At the end of a minute the stone was taken out. The top of the gem was dried with a soft handkerchief and then the ring was waved to and fro for a few moments. It was held up for inspection. Not a gleam of yellow was to be seen. The stone was apparently a magnificent blue white gem that any one would be proud to own and loathe to pledge.

"It is the blue pigment deposited on the back of the stone that has made the difference," said the jewel expert. "The deposit is so filmy that a strong glass cannot detect it. You cannot see it from the rear of the mounting and only a bath of alcohol will remove it. It will stay on the gem for weeks if it is not removed in that way. It used to be a favorite trick of many folks who now and again had to put a diamond into the hands of a pawnbroker.

"The trick is called 'doctoring a stone,' but, as I said in the beginning, I would not advise you to try it. I don't know what the law on such matters is in Missouri, but there are states where a person convicted of such an offense would serve a long penitentiary term for his cleverness."—St. Louis Republic.

How Artificial Furs Are Made.

The raw pieces of pelt are frozen and the skin carefully shaved off, thawed and sent to the tanneries to be made into leather. The frozen fur which remains is allowed to thaw slightly at the bottom, so that a small part of the hair is freed from ice. This thawed portion is then covered with a solution of rubber, which is allowed to set.

The result is that large seamless pieces of fur are obtainable much cheaper than those which come with the natural skin. These same artificial furs are said to be more lasting than the real, because they are immune from the attacks of moths.—Paris Nature.

CORDED A CROCODILE.

Turning a Greedy Water Devil Into a Trussed Up Mummy.

It is known that a crocodile will sometimes leave a river stocked with food, explore for miles an unsuitable tributary, then wander inland until it finds a pool.

In this way three crocodiles once found their way to Taiping lake, in the Malay peninsula. So long as they confined their attention to the fish and an occasional duck no one objected to their presence, but when one of them began to take sheep off the bank as they came down to drink it was felt that the saurians ought to be exterminated, and an Englishman and his servant made the attempt.

Obtaining a dugout, they paddled into deep water. The servant was already barefoot, and the Englishman himself took off shoes and stockings, so that his bare feet might have as good a hold as possible on the smooth bottom of the canoe. A bait was attached to a heavy rattan, and soon a tug and a plunge indicated that the crocodile was fast to one end. Immediately the canoe began to move through the water. After a protracted struggle the Englishman managed to get the crocodile within a few yards of the canoe. At one moment the open jaws would surge out of the broken water and snap together in unpleasant proximity to the men's legs; the next moment the heavy tail would swing free of the water and with the weight of a falling pole would hit the side of the canoe a blow that made it shiver.

As the crocodile surged close to the canoe and the open mouth appeared above the water the servant slipped a noose of stout cord over the upper jaw and pulled it tight some six inches behind the point of its nostrils. Then, with a quick turn of his wrist, he slipped the slack of the cord round under the lower jaw. He drew the cord tight, and the teeth of each jaw pressed home into the sockets of the other. The servant now grasped the point of the long, narrow head with one hand and with the other rapidly wound the cord round the clinched mouth.

Another noose was slipped over a fore leg. It pulled the leg up to the animal's side. The servant slipped the line over the creature's back and caught up the other fore leg. Then he noosed and tied together the hind legs.

The effect he had achieved was wonderful. In a few minutes he had transformed a ravening water devil into a trussed up mummy, and his only weapon had been three pieces of box cord.

The beast was afterward dispatched, and the servant received the government reward.—Harper's Weekly.

STOPPING A NOSEBLEED.

By This Method It Is Simply a Matter of Imagination.

In many experiments carried on during the last few years it has been ascertained that the mind controls to a wonderful extent the flow of blood to any particular part of the body. The following experiment has been tried as many as ten times by me and has not failed once.

When the nose starts to bleed, immediately persuade yourself to believe that you are running with all your might up the steepest flight of steps you can think of or up a high hill—that is, just think of doing either of these things and doing it fast. Think at the same time that you are carrying a heavy piece of baggage with both hands and add thoughts of any other bodily exertion. You will be surprised at the quickness with which your trouble ends.

The explanation is that when we really start to run more blood is given to the arteries supplying the muscles of the legs than they were receiving while at rest. This has been proved. As the same thoughts in the mind produce approximately the same bodily effects, if one merely thinks to run, but does not run, the blood will go to the legs anyhow and away from the head, as desired.

There are many common experiences of secretions started by thoughts. If one looks at a lemon and thinks of sucking it his mouth immediately waters, and I have no doubt that many people who read this will have their mouths watering from the simple reading.—Lawrence Hodges in Chicago Record-Herald.

A Bridge of Ants.

A species of ants which spin silk is common in hot countries. The ants nest in trees, binding the leaves together to make their nests. The silk used for this purpose is not secreted by the adult ants, but by the larvae. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together the ants must carry the larvae about from leaf to leaf. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable method is employed. Five or six ants form a chain bridging the gap between the leaves, each gripping the waist of another in its mandibles. A number of such chains will co-operate in bringing two leaves together.

A Legend of Lace.

According to Melchior de Vogue, the legend of lace is as follows: A Venetian sailor gave his ladylove a frond of spreading seaweed to keep him in memory while at sea. But the girl found that the seaweed was rapidly drying up and disappearing. So she caught the fine branches and leaves of the plant with thread against a piece of linen and, working on, with her thoughts following her lover, invented lace.

Naval Arithmetic.

Teacher—How many do two and three make? Schoolboy—About fortyish. Teacher—Absurd! How do you make that out? Schoolboy—Well, dad went fishing last Sunday and caught two big fish, then three little ones, and when my uncle asked him how many he had caught he said, 'About forty!'

PREPARED FOR DEFEAT.

Precautions General Taylor Took Before Meeting Santa Anna.

Santa Anna was the greatest military leader the Mexicans have ever known. Santa Anna, with 25,000 veterans, went into the battle of Buena Vista with the avowed purpose of exterminating the entire army of the United States, and there was no doubt in the mind of Santa Anna that this great feat could be accomplished with comparative ease. General Taylor, with his 5,000 men, prepared for the unequal contest, and not only defended himself successfully, but won a substantial victory from his aggressive antagonists and drove them from the battlefield of Buena Vista.

Some time after the battle was fought and the Mexican war concluded General Taylor was criticised for having made no preparations for the retreat of his army in the event of defeat. General Taylor promptly replied: "I made every preparation necessary for the battle of Buena Vista. I wrote my will, and so did nearly every man in my army. If we had not won that battle we would have needed no lines of retreat. It was, from our standpoint, victory or annihilation. The only preparation necessary for the contingency of defeat at Buena Vista was that we should write our wills."

MAN AND THE WORLD.

A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.

How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shells of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

His Security.

When Eben Foster asked Squire Lane to lend him $200 to invest in the dry goods business the squire dryly inquired what Mr. Foster had to offer him in the way of security.

"Security?" said Eben, with an air of injured dignity. "Well, squire, I'll tell you what I have to offer—three solid silver teaspoons, a handsome brass warming pan, a pair of decalcomany vases, large size, and the material for as much as three feather beds, if not four, right on the backs o' my flock o' geese, an' five Plymouth Rock hens.

"You can call 'em all yours till I pay the money back, an' I'll take care of 'em for you free of charge. I don't know what anybody could want more'n that for security."—Youth's Companion.

The American Indian.

The old question of the origin of the red man of America is still an open one, the last word by no means having been said. The most probable theory is that which links the Indian with the Mongoloids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigine. Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprung. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking indeed.—New York American.

Logic of the Land.

A specimen of rustic reasoning which is too good to lose is recorded in Mr. R. L. Gales' "Studies In Arcady." "A barber," he says, "was telling me with great gusto how he had refuted an atheist. I inquired what arguments he had employed.

"'I asked the atheist,' said the barber, 'what portion of the Scriptures he based his ideas upon.'

"'What did he say to that?'

"'Never a word.'

"The defeat had been crushing and final."

Not Her Kind.

"Have you heard," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Grace Moneylove has married an octogenarian?"

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Justrich. "Is that so? Well, he may be all right, but I want to tell you I've never seen a man who wouldn't eat meat that I'd live with."—Judge.

Not to Blame.

Lady—But this fish isn't fresh! Fishmonger—And whose fault is that? I offered it to you at the beginning of the week and you wouldn't have it then.—London Telegraph.

The mind ought sometimes to be amused that it may the better return to thought and to itself.

No, Cordelia, not all methodical people are methodists.

Flattery is the praise we hear of others.

PRESENCE OF MIND

May Make Heroes of Physical Cowards In Time of Danger.

NOT A MATTER OF COURAGE.

It Is the Sudden Impulse That Moves One to Do the Right Thing In an Unexpected Emergency—A Soldier and a Shell and a Man and a Murder.

There is a distinction to be drawn between presence of mind and courage. Persons who naturally are timid and nervous will in circumstances of great danger and excitement perform acts of heroism that would be beyond their powers on ordinary occasions. We speak of these as instances of presence of mind. But if you ask them they would tell you that an involuntary impulse rather than any premeditated course of action guided their will on the occasion. Had they time for reflection when all the threatening danger to themselves had become clear to their minds their natural timidity of character would have asserted itself and deprived them of action.

It is absence of fear that prompts the soldier under a heavy fire from the enemy's guns to go to the assistance of a wounded comrade and bring him to a place of safety, and nothing in human nature can compare with such self sacrifice. But in times of sudden emergency it is not always the bravest who act with promptitude. The following story is an instance of this:

One of our transports was returning from the Philippines with invalided men, and one morning at sea a group of officers on the deck discussed the subject of firing shells. A soldier was told by the colonel to bring an empty shell with a fuse. The colonel took the shell in his hands and, striking a match, lighted the fuse. As this slowly burned and the colonel proceeded with his address to the other officers another soldier passed the group, and the moment he caught sight of the shell he rushed forward, exclaiming, "Look out, sir; the shell is a live one!"

Then he did what never seemed to have come into the minds of any in the group of officers. He seized the shell out of the hands of the colonel and threw it into the sea. For this service he was promoted. The soldier who had been told to bring an empty shell had gone to the wrong magazine. Those who talked with the man touching this incident say that he repudiated any idea of having done a brave thing. "I don't know," he said, "what made me seize the shell out of the colonel's hand, but it came suddenly into my mind, and I did it." It is this wave of unconscious thought which constitutes true presence of mind. This will come to people of nervous and even cowardly natures.

There is of authentic record the case of a man known to be utterly deficient of courage who saved himself from a very awkward situation by an exhibition of real presence of mind. He was an Englishman and lived in a town in the midlands, where he was an organist. Late one evening he was returning home through some of the back streets, which at that hour were more or less empty of people. As he went along, however, he noticed some distance ahead of him a man and a woman walking side by side, the man's arm being around the woman's neck. Just under a street lamp the couple stopped for a moment, when the organist heard a piercing scream and saw the woman slowly falling from the man's arms. Almost before she had reached the ground the man darted away down a side street and disappeared.

When the organist came up to the woman he found, to his horror, that she was lying in a pool of blood. His first impulse was to run away and get clear of the terrible scene, but his better feelings prevailed, and he knelt down beside the poor woman to see if he could do anything for her. When he raised her head he found she was quite dead, with her throat cut from ear to ear. Beside her on the pavement lay a blood stained razor.

The organist was overwhelmed with horror. Before he could collect himself a group of people had gathered, and presently he heard expressions such as "He did it." "I tell you I saw him." "There is the razor." "The fiend! Where are the police?" "Hand him over!" It was certainly a very awkward position, as the rough character of the people might tempt them to take the law into their own hands and use him very badly. The arrival of a policeman seemed to steady his nerves for a moment, and then came a wave of inspiration that might truly be called presence of mind. He seized the dead woman's wrist and, pulling out his watch, went through the form of feeling her pulse. Then he put his hand over her heart and, turning to the policeman, said as calmly as he could: "I am sorry to say that I can be of no further service here. The poor woman is quite dead. There is no action in the heart or the pulse."

In an instant the murmurs of the crowd changed, and he heard "He's the doctor" on all sides. This was his opportunity, and, slowly rising and affecting to be in no hurry, he passed through the crowd, who made way for him. But when he got clear of the street and came to the first turning he took to his heels and ran for all he was worth. The cowardly spirit got the better of him in the end. He heard the next day that the murderer had gone straight to the police station and given himself up.—New York Press.

A ROYAL MYSTERY

One of the Legacies of the French Revolution.

FATE OF THE YOUNG DAUPHIN

Whether the Son of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette Was Murdered or Died or Was Spirited Away Is an Enigma Without a Solution.

Every healthy minded man or woman loves a mystery, and, fortunately for the world, history has provided one or two problems which have been worn threadbare without revealing their secrets. Among these is the fate of the nine-year-old son of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette, which Mme. Louise Latour recently dealt with in a lecture in London.

A child judicially murdered or else spirited away, another substituted for him to die and to be buried under a false name, the people who reported of these things silenced or poisoned, the period of events comparatively recent—the story sounds incredible, but it rests on a basis of established fact.

The dauphin, a delicate child of nine, was removed from his mother and friends and given to the care of Simon, the brutal savetier, and his wife. After this all remains obscure except that while the boy was in their care the Simons gave up their post—in itself rather strange, as it was a lucrative one—and on the day of the change of residence the substitution is supposed to have taken place. In the evening a child in bed was shown to the emissaries of the convention, and the next morning he was removed to a smaller room with the door nailed up, the only air coming in by the grille through which his food was passed. So he remained until he became so ill that Dr. Dessault, who had often been to Versailles in the old days, was summoned to attend him and was amazed to find a scrofulous and dying boy.

"Ce n'est pas le petit dauphin!" ("That is not the little Dauphin!") he blurted out imprudently, and a day or two later he died by poison.

Other doctors were brought who were unacquainted with the royal children, and the child died and was buried in his assumed character. He is generally supposed to have been a lad called Gombeau, and his mother was actually seen by people in America, where she admitted the wickedness of having sold her dying son when she was in a condition of extreme poverty.

La femme Simon talked, but her words were discredited by the authorities, who declared she was drunken and garrulous. Nevertheless, on her deathbed she confessed to a priest and a nurse that a substitute had been put in the dauphin's place.

Such are the historical facts as related by Mme. Latour, and to account for them two theories have been deduced, says a writer in the London Times. The first, in which Mme. Latour believes, was that the dauphin was judicially murdered by Simon in the temple and the dying Gombeau put in his place to hide the crime from the world. Of the second, that the child escaped alive from his prison, many people are strenuous supporters. Some of them describe the course of events thus: Gombeau was brought into the temple on the day of the demenagement in a large cardboard horse given ostensibly as a souvenir to the royal prisoner by the femme Simon, while the dauphin was carried out by the woman in a big basket of dirty linen. Others declare that the prince was actually kept hidden in a garret in the temple until the substitute died, more than a year later, when he was taken out in a coffin with a false bottom, the body of Gombeau being buried in the moat.

This theory has had two startling confirmations. A small coffin filled with paper and stones was actually found in the cemetery of La Madeleine, and General d'Andigne, imprisoned in the temple in 1801 and allowed to relieve the tedium of his confinement by gardening, was digging in the moat when he found the uncoffined skeleton of a child.

But, as Mme. Latour asked, if the dauphin escaped alive into the world, where did he go? No fewer than thirty pretenders, one a negro, at different times have declared themselves the son of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette. The two who attracted most disciples were the Duc de Richemont and "Naundorf." With regard to the latter, it was against him that he did not come forward until he was thirty years of age and he could not speak a word of French. Mme. Latour added that he married a middle class wife and was an excellent watchmaker, consequently unlike what the heir of a royal line ought to be. Obviously the speaker had forgotten Louis Seize and his passion for making and mending locks.

BLUNT ANDREW JACKSON.

"Old Hickory's" Caustic Advice to James Buchanan.

Stories of Andrew Jackson are likely to be pointed and to have a practical application, as do the stories told of Franklin. In Mr. J. W. Forney's "Anecdotes of Public Men" there is given a story as it was told by James Buchanan at his own table. Although it contained a reproof from the president to one who was to succeed him, it is said to have been a favorite story at that board.

Shortly after Mr. Buchanan's return from Russia in 1834, to the court of which country he had been sent by Jackson in 1832, and immediately following his election to the senate he called upon "Old Hickory" with a fair English lady whom he desired to present to the head of the American nation.

Leaving her in the reception room downstairs, he ascended to the president's private quarters, where he found General Jackson unshaved, unkempt, in his dressing gown, with his slippered feet on the fender, before a blazing wood fire, smoking a corncob pipe of the old southern pattern.

He stated his object, and General Jackson said that he would be very glad to meet the lady whom Mr. Buchanan desired to present.

Mr. Buchanan was always careful of his personal appearance and in some respects was a sort of masculine Miss Fribbe, addicted to spotless cravats and huge collars, rather proud of a foot small for a man of his large stature and to the last of his life what the ladies would call "a very good figure."

Having just returned from a visit to the fashionable circles of the continent after years of thorough intercourse with the etiquette of one of the stateliest courts in Europe, he was somewhat shocked at the idea of the president meeting the eminent English lady in such a guise and ventured to ask if General Jackson did not intend to change his attire. Thereupon the old warrior rose, with his long pipe in his hand, and, deliberately knocking the ashes out of the bowl, said to his friend:

"Buchanan, I want to give you a little piece of advice, which I hope you will remember. I knew a man once who made a fortune by attending to his own business. Tell the lady I will see her presently."

The man who became president in 1857 was fond of saying that this remark of Andrew Jackson humiliated him more than any other rebuke he had ever received.

He walked downstairs to meet the lady in his charge, and in a very short time President Jackson entered the room, dressed in a full suit of black, cleanly shaved, with his stubborn white hair forced back from his forehead, and, advancing to the beautiful visitor, he greeted her with almost kingly grace.

As she left the White House she said to her escort, "Your republican president is the royal model of a gentleman."

Napoleon's Tribute to Frederick.

When, after the battle of Jena, Napoleon invaded Prussia he visited Potsdam, which contains the mortal remains of the Prussian kings. The sepulcher of Frederick the Great occupied a prominent site in the mausoleum. When entering the latter Napoleon uncovered his head and went directly up to the sarcophagus of the noted warrior. For a moment the conqueror stood still, seemingly absorbed in deep thought. Then with the forefinger of his right hand he wrote the word "Napoleon" in the dust of the huge stone casket and, turning to his marshals, said:

"Gentlemen, if he were living I would not be here."

A Joke That Failed.

Once when Henrik Ibsen was engaged in writing a play he by chance dropped a scrap of paper on which were the words, "the doctor says."

Mrs. Ibsen determined to have a joke and one day casually remarked: "Who is that doctor in your new play? I suppose he'll say some interesting things?"

Ibsen at first was silent with astonishment. Then he broke out into a fit of rage, full of reproaches for her spying.

AN ELUSIVE BONE.

Lux Is Said to Be Indestructible, but It Is Hard to Locate.

Much scholarship and anatomical knowledge have been employed from time to time in efforts to identify the bone lux, said by ancient Hebrew writers to be the nucleus from which the body is reconstructed at the resurrection. There are many marvelous stories of the indestructibility of lux, and the bone has been located by rival claimants to the honor of discovering it in various parts of the human skeleton.

The most careful searching of the last published and amplest treatise on osteology will not result in the discovery of the bone called lux. It will be necessary to go to the Frankfort edition of the "Theatrum Anatomicum" of Caspar Bauhinus (1621) for a description: "It is stated by Hebrew writers to be a bone which cannot be destroyed by fire, water or any other element, nor be broken or bruised by any force. Its site is in the spine from the eighteenth vertebra to the femur.

"We read that the Emperor Hadrian once asked Rabbi Joshua, the son of Chanm, how God would resurrect man in the world to come. He made answer, 'From the bone lux in the spinal column.' When Hadrian asked him how he came by this knowledge and how he could prove it the Rabbi Joshua produced the bone so that the emperor could see it. When placed in water it could not be softened; it was not destroyed by fire, nor could it be ground by any weight; when placed on an anvil and struck with a hammer the anvil was broken in sunder, but the bone remained intact." Hieronymus Magius represents that, according to the Talmudists, the real bone is near the base of the skull, whether it be in the base itself or in the spine. Vesalius writes that this ossicle is described by the Arabs as resembling a chick pea in size and shape, and Cornelius Agrippa describes it as "magnitudine ciceris mundati" (the size of a shelled pea). Different anatomists have held it variously to be the sacrum, the coccyx, the twelfth dorsal vertebra, one of the Wormian bones in the skull and one of the sesamoids of the great toe.—London Lancet.

LIFE OF THE WORLD.

Traditions That It Will Last Only Six Thousand Years.

There is a general and widespread notion, which the curious investigator will find scattered throughout both medieval and modern literature, that the world will last 6,000 years from the date of its creation. An inscription in one of Martin Luther's books reads as follows: "Elijah, the prophet, said that the world had existed 2,000 years before the law was given (from Adam to Moses), would exist 2,000 years under the Mosaic law (from Moses to Christ) and 2,000 years under the Christian dispensation, and then it would be burned."

In the Etrurian account of the creation (by Suidas) there is a similar tradition, "The Creator spent 6,000 years in creation, and 6,000 more are allotted to the earth."

In the black letter edition of Foxe's "Acts and Monuments" (1632) there is a whole sermon given with the 6,000 year limit of the earth's duration as a text.

Some writers contend that the "six days" referred to in Holy Writ really mean 6,000 years and that the "seventh day" is a type of the coming millennium, or "Sabbath of a thousand years." The psalmist says, "For a thousand years are in thy sight as yesterday" (Psalm xc, 4. See also II Peter iii, 8).

A Change of Venue.

"I never was so surprised in my life as when I heard that County Treasurer Bilkes had absconded with $30,000 of the county money," said Blithers. "When he was nominated it struck me it was a perfect case of the office seeking the man."

"It is yet," said Dobbleigh, "only this time it's the district attorney's office that's seeking him."—Harper's Weekly.

Flattery.

CORSICAN CRUELTY.

It Loomed Up Large In Napoleon's Treatment of Children.

Napoleon had a singular rage for pulling children's ears, sometimes so hard as to make the poor children cry. Caroline was very vexed when she saw her little Achille the victim of his uncle's caresses, and more than once her son's tears made her weep too.

One day the First Consul, pulling the ears of the little fellow, hurt him, and he cried out. To teach him not to cry his uncle pulled his ear again, harder. Achille, having freed himself, came back to him in a fury and, raising his little fist, shouted:

"You are a villain, a wicked, wicked villain!"

To prove the contrary Napoleon should have embraced his nephew and made him forget the pain he had gratuitously inflicted by some show of affection. But tenderness was not in his character. Corsicans scarcely know what it means, and, though Napoleon used to say, "I am less of a Corsican than one thinks," he was really more so than any one or he himself thought. Instead of quieting his nephew he became angry and gave him a violent slap on the face. The child ran weeping to his Uncle Lucien, who was present, while Mme. Murat was so upset that she was taken ill, "from the effort," says Lucien, who relates this episode, "she made to control her feelings, which such violence to her child outraged. As for the First Consul, he left the room, shrugging his shoulders and slamming the door and saying that Caroline had always been an affected creature and acted like all parents who spoiled their children." — Turquan's "Sisters of Napoleon."

Old Time Smallpox Cure.

To cure smallpox was apparently a very simple matter in the good old times. John of Gaddesden, court doctor to Edward II., has recorded that he got rid of the disease by the simple expedient of wrapping his patients in red cloth.

"Let scarlet red be taken," he says, "and let him who is suffering smallpox be entirely wrapped in it or in some other red cloth. I did this when the son of the illustrious king of England suffered from smallpox. I took care that all about his bed should be red, and that cure succeeded very well."—London Chronicle.

WOMAN AND WOE.

Old Age In India Invariably Blends the Two Into One.

"I have seen women under a burning midday sun reaping in the fields," says a writer on India; "I have seen them at roadmaking in the streets of cities; I have seen them loading engines with coal at railway stations; I have seen them in long procession on the white roads of the plains carrying great burdens on their heads like a string of camels. And I have seen also in the eyes of every old woman whom I have encountered, every one of them, such misery, adversity and angry bitterness as seemed to curse the very air of heaven. I have not seen one happy old woman in the whole country.

"Women follow through the village like a dog at the husband's heel. Maternity is no excuse for the task in the field and the duties of the house. They are servants without wages and without liberty to select another master. Before them is perpetual servitude, and if they are so abandoned by the gods as to reach old age their certain destiny is misery, dejection, friendliness and black despair. I never knew all the meaning of the word woe until I looked into the face of an old woman under an Asian sky.

"The women folk of the upper classes in India, speaking generally, are more the prisoners of their husbands than the women of the helot castes. They do not labor except in cooking and serving the meals of their husbands, but they are cut off from the world as completely as a nun; they do not even know, in many cases, the male relations of their husbands. They are little more than caged animals taught to do a few household tricks."—Chicago News.

The Importance of the Beard.

The importance of the beard was fully recognized in the middle ages. Here is a passage (quoted by J. A. F. Orbaan in "Sixtine Rome") from a letter of the writer, Bartolomeo Catena: "It is well that those who have to lead and govern should have a long and fine beard. And I can assure you that the government of cities and provinces has been given to more than one prelate because he had a long and fine beard; otherwise he were not worthy that honor."

COOKING A HEDGEHOG.

Bake It In Clay Into a Solid Mass and Carve It With an Ax.

When a Maine Indian has the choice of a hedgehog, a skunk, a woodchuck and a muskrat for dinner he will select the first named invariably and take the skunk as second choice, leaving the woodchuck, which is the only one of the lot a Maine white man will taste, to the last. Unlike the skunk and the woodchuck, which are lean and unsavory except for a few months in the fall, or the muskrat, which is never fat and which has a strong flavor in spite of parboiling, the hedgehog is always in edible condition and has meat that is as tender and white as that of a spring chicken.

The method of cooking a hedgehog is so simple that a novice can learn in one short lesson. When the epicure is permitted to make a choice he should shun the large old males, which at times weigh thirty or forty pounds. The preparation consists in removing the viscera, washing out the interior and filling the cavity with slices of fat pork, peeled raw potatoes, sprigs of spearmint and wild celery from the brook.

Then, without removing the quills or skinning, the body is plastered thickly with wet clay from the nearest bank. The muddy, bulky mass is thrust into live coals and covered with blazing fagots to be roasted for two hours.

On removal from the coals, the clay is found to have been baked into a hard and solid mass, which must be broken open with an ax or a heavy stone, whereupon the skin and quills of the animal cling to the clay wrapping and fall away, leaving the clean white meat ready to be eaten.—New York Herald.

BONES OF THE EAR.

The Little Stirrup When Displaced Causes Noises In the Head.

Vibrations of the eardrum are communicated to the inner ear by means of three exceedingly small bones, one of which is called the stirrup. When this particular little bone is displaced, however slightly, the patient hears sounds which are subjective, or, to use plainer terms, noises confined exclusively to the auditory apparatus and not heard by others. These sounds frequently seem like wind whistling through a crevice or a buzzing such as one hears when passing under a network of wires on a windy day. Other sounds of similar subjective origin are classified as musical. They take the form of ringing bells, trumpet blasts, organ notes and the piping of birds. Still another form conveys to the patient sounds such as frogs make as they sit on logs and like the shouts of a crowd at a baseball game.

Dr. Marage, a famous French aurist, recently laid before the Academy of Sciences in Paris the results of his study of a thousand cases of this general sort. He has found that the nerves of the ear in certain cases maintained the conducting position which they assumed when they transmitted the sound of a ringing bell or like sound, and, like an electric button out of position, kept the bell vibrations from being interrupted. Other sounds were produced by the persistent excitation of the auditory nerve centers. High frequency electrical currents and vibratory massage have been used by leading specialists in the treatment of ear troubles in these several conditions, and the results have been encouraging.—New York World.

Wrong End First.

An old Indiana justice of the peace, after listening for two long days to the evidence pro and con in a criminal case, wound up his decision upon the conflicting testimony by saying that he had grave doubts as to the guilt of the prisoner, but, whereas when a law student he had read in Blackstone that it was better that ninety-nine innocent men should be punished than that one guilty man should escape, therefore he would find the prisoner guilty.—Hilton's "Funny Side of Politics."

Clasp Tails as They Pass.

Among the peculiarly tailed fishes the sea horses are alone in having the tail prehensile. With it they anchor themselves to seaweed and other things in strong currents, for they are poor swimmers. As two of these interesting creatures meet they may clasp tails for a moment and then pass on, as if they had wished each other well.—London Spectator.

Dr. William Bulleyn, of the same family as the unfortunate Anne Boleyn, was a contemporary of Sydney, Raleigh, Drake, Hawkins, Granville, Spenser and the rest of that famous galaxy that illuminated the Elizabethan era. The leading physician of his day, he took great interest in vegetable remedies, and his "Book of Simples" was an honored authority for generations. He recommends the free use of sage tea and of figs, saying: "Figges be good against melancholy and the falling evil (epilepsy) to be eaten. Figges, nuts and herbe grasse do make a sufficient medicine against poison or the pestilence. Figges make a good gargarism to cleanse the throat."—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Not Loaded.

No other language under the sun is open to so many interpretations as the English language, as witness the conversation between two Sharon Hill girls the other evening:

"Oh, May," said the first one, "Jim and Bill tried to fight a duel over me."

"How romantic! What happened?"

"It was terrible. I came into the room, and those foolish boys were pointing big pistols at each other!"

"Pistols? Heavens! Were they loaded?"

"Not a bit. That is just what made it really very serious. They both were sober."—Philadelphia Times.

Gophers Win Again

As scheduled, a ball game was pulled off between the St. Hilaire Gophers and Red Lake Falls Juniors last Sunday afternoon at the latter's diamond, St. Hilaire again winning over their opponents by the score of 14 to 4. The Gophers displayed some of the fastest playing that they have ever performed and it was clearly evident thruout the whole game that they would come out easy victors. The locals also performed some exceptionally heavy work at the bat and the down river fielders were continually kept on the "jump."

The Gophers were cheered "on to victory" by a large crowd from St. Hilaire, ten packed rigs making up the St. Hilaire delegation.

The St. Hilaire people were treated nicely by the Red Lake Falls fans and they wish to express their appreciation of the courteous treatment received.

The St. Hilaire battery did excellent work, Roy Wallen pitching one of the greatest games of his career, and Fred Hall doing great work behind the bat.

Owens of St. Hilaire and Whieler of Red Lake Falls umpired the game to the entire satisfaction of both sides.

After the St. Hilaire game the Juniors and Thief River Tigers played a very interesting game of ten innings the Juniors coming out victors by the score of 7 to 8.

THE GREAT PHARAOH.

Horemheb Did More For Egypt, Perhaps, Than Any Other.

Horemheb at the time of his accession was forty-five years of age, full of energy and vigor and passionately anxious to have a free hand in the carrying out of his schemes for the reorganization of the government. It was therefore with joy that in about the year 1350 B. C. he sailed up to Thebes in order to claim the crown.

Had he lived longer he might have been famous as a conqueror as well as an administrator, though old age might retard and tired bones refuse their office. As it is, however, his name is written sufficiently large in the book of the world's great men, and when he died, about 1315 B. C., after a reign of some thirty-five years, he had done more for Egypt than had almost any other pharaoh. He found the country in the wildest disorder, and he left it the master of itself and ready to become once more the master of the empire which Akhnaton's doctrine of peace and good will had lost.

Under his direction the purged worship of the old gods, which for him meant only the maintenance of sometime proved customs, had gained the mastery over the chimerical worship of Aton. Without force or violence he substituted the practical for the visionary, and to Amun and order his grateful subjects were able to cry, "The sun of him who knew thee not has set, but he who knows thee shines; the sanctuary of him who assailed thee is overwhelmed in darkness, but the whole earth is now in light."—Arthur E. P. Weigall in Century.

"You'd better do it yourself. I'm afraid."

Whereupon the man behind became angry, arose, protested and left the theater.

The WREATH by the RIVER

A STORY FOR MEMORIAL DAY

By T. C. HARBAUGH

THE great war had been over a few years and in soft gloaming of May the fairest wreaths that the bright fields yield fell annually upon hero graves. in the valleys of Virginia the marks of that terrible strife remained, for the scars of battle are hard to obliterate, and the roses of Peace, though they grow over the cannon ruts, are now and then blown aside, showing the work of the crimson demon.

The home of the Morrows was one of simplicity, though set among hills which had reverberated to the booming of the great guns, and the near-by river sang its song of peace as it sought the sea. By lucky accident the little home and its surroundings had escaped the ravages of war.

Hester Morrow stood upon the old vine-embowered porch and looked out upon a scene of exquisite loveliness. Everywhere the last month of spring had garbed the landscape in matchless beauty. Of course she remembered the war. While she stood there she recalled how one day a regiment of Union soldiers was hard pressed and how stubbornly they held their ground around the house; how the brave went down before the missiles of battle, and how in her young girlhood she had tried to staunch the life-tide of a soldier wounded to his death.

In a little while the girl, who had turned back into the house, came forth modestly dressed and with a smile on her lips.

A few minutes later she might have been seen running hither and thither with the sprightliness of young maidenhood gathering flowers of many hues which grew in profusion where she sought them.

Hester had often despoiled the woods of their treasures. Each Memorial day she had stolen forth to gather flowers where they never failed to bloom. These she formed into a rich wreath, and when she had finished it she repaired to a certain spot on the river's bank under the spreading boughs of a stately tree and placed her offering to valor on a lone grave there.

And what was the silent sleeper to her? Nothing in a certain sense, only she knew that his comrades had buried him where he could guard the singing river forevermore.

John Dunham—that was the name carved on the wooden head-board—was a soldier of the Union. He had marched to battle with high hopes, but fate had decreed that he should never return with his messmates. Of his family, if he had one, the girl knew nothing.

Hester that day looked like an angel of light and love. Flitting everywhere, her hands full of scented blossoms, she would have charmed any painter; but no one was near enough to transform the living picture to his canvas.

She had scarcely finished her wreath when she looked up and beheld a young man coming through the grove toward the rippling river.

"Jack!" cried Hester. "No, it is not Jack. He is a trifle too tall for him. Perhaps he is one of the strangers who have come to town to keep the day."

She had already been perceived; the stranger was coming toward her and, as half a dozen flowers fluttered to the ground at her feet, she caught his eye and bowed.

"You will pardon me, miss," said the young man, as he halted before the surprised girl, and cavallerly removed his hat. "This is my first visit to this part of the country. I concluded to take a little stroll before the services begin, and—"

"It is a beautiful morning and augurs well for a pretty day," gently interrupted Hester. "I, too, have strolled out here, but I do so every year after flowers for my hero."

"You have a hero, then?"

"Yes, one who sleeps apart from his comrades."

"The Gray fought bravely, Miss—"

"But my lone hero is not of the Gray, though, as you see, I am southern and I honor the gray-clad braves. Would you like to see where my hero sleeps?"

"Only too well would I look upon the grave of your Bayard," was the reply. "I am here on what I fear is a hopeless mission. My father—"

"Was a soldier? We meet a good many people whose relatives were in the war. I had relatives who wore the Gray."

"No doubt of that, miss."

"Come with me," and Hester Morrow led the way across the grove to the historic stream.

The tall young man at her side stole glances of silent admiration at his companion as they paced along. She was as fresh and lovely as the flowers she had just gathered; her voice breathed song, and in her blue eyes was a light he had seldom seen.

At last the girl paused and turned toward her companion.

"This is my Mecca on Memorial day," she said, as she slipped the fragrant wreath from her arm. "Here sleeps the northern soldier guarding in death, as I tell my friends, the river he guarded so well in life."

At the feet of the couple so strangely met was the lone mound.

The young stranger approached the grave and stopped at its head as he once more looked at Hester,

"Something thrills me as I have not been thrilled for years," he whispered softly. "By the way, miss, you have not told me the name of the one who camps here. Or is he one of the unknown?"

"No, he is not unknown. His comrades carved his name on the head-board. You have but to part the grass to read the name and regiment of the sleeper."

The young man knelt reverently while Hester, stooping, placed her wreath on the mound.

Suddenly there came from the stranger's lips a cry that startled the young girl.

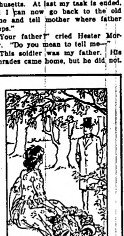
When she looked up she perceived that he had sprung erect and was pressing his hands to his forehead as if he would keep in leash his wildly throbbing temples.

"What is it?" cried Hester. "Did you know—"

"Found at last!" was the response. "For years I have sought this spot, going hither and thither throughout the south, always looking for a soldier's head-board that bore the name of John Dunham of the ——th Massachusetts. At last my task is ended, and I can now go back to the old home and tell mother where father sleeps."

"Your father?" cried Hester Morrow. "Do you mean to tell me—"

"This soldier was my father. His comrades came home, but he did not.



Beheld a Young Man Coming Through the Grove.

And you for years have placed a wreath on his grave! You have gatherod the treasures of wood and field and, loving this man, although he may have crossed swords with your people, you have crowned him beside the river that sings to the sea. Let me thank you, miss, not only for myself, but for my mother. She would more than thank you if she were here."

He held out his hands to Hester and she placed hers in them, and for a moment they stood over the wreath by the river, looking into each other's eyes and feeling in their natures a thrill they had never felt before.

At that moment there came from the village the clear notes of the chimes, mingled with the shrill, almost warlike call of the resonant bugle, and when Harold Dunham and Hester Morrow walked from that solitary grave they doubtless realized that the currents of their lives must commingle; and almost before the wreath by the river had lost its fragrance the memories of that one Memorial day had been strengthened at the altar.

ON FIELD OF SHILOH

Battleground Made Public Park for Purpose of Honoring the Armies of the Southwest.

The battlefield of Shiloh was created in a public park in order that "the armies of the southwest which served in the Civil war, like their comrades of the eastern armies at Gettysburg and those of the central west at Chickamauga, may have the history of one of their memorable battles preserved on the ground where they fought." With those words begins the act that congress passed in 1894, and the commission appointed began its work the following year.

The area covered by the battle is about four miles square, through which now thread 25 miles of road, making easily accessible the principal points of interest. Like the other parks, there are many monuments, tablets and markers to show the various positions of the troops during the progress of the fight. The states from which the troops came have contributed liberally, and there are now 115 handsome monuments, while many others are expected.

The government, too, has erected five mortuary monuments marking the spots where fell the Union Generals Wallace, Peabody and Raith and the Confederate Generals Johnston and Gladden. The various headquarters, too, have been marked by the government.

To visit the various battlefields and read the stories told upon the markers of iron and stone will be the privilege accorded to future generations, and, as they read, they will learn that the bitterness of the war has gone forever; that the north and the south stand now under one flag and yet honor those who fought for the principles they thought were right.

Not That Way.

"Don't you think the harem skirt will soon go out?"

"If it does, it'll be mobbed."

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Minneapolis. — Patrick H. Lyons, aged sixty-four, who lived here 28 years and was one of the best known residents of the city, is dead.

White Earth.—Rev. T. J. Corbett, bishop of Crookston, administered holy rites of confirmation to a class of 150 young people of both sexes in St. Benedict's Catholic mission church.

Duluth. — Andrew Gunderson and Gust Brown, who were convicted of swindling a farmer named Gustafson out of $200 by big mitt methods, were sentenced to two years each.

Seattle, Wash. — Colonel Stiles R. Nettleton, who commanded the Twelfth Ohio cavalry during the Civil war and who was a brother of Feneral D. Nettleton, of Minneapolis, is dead, aged 77.

Winona.—The Winona lodge of Elks burned the last note of indebtedness on the recently acquired property in the central part of the city upon which it is proposed to build a home within a few months.

Minneapolis. — George T. Hughes, grand secretary of the Royal Arcanam for Minnesota, is dead of arterial sclerosis. The supreme council of the order now in session here, immediately adjourned for one day.

Minneapolis, Minn. — Judge D. E. Morgan, chief justice of the supreme court of North Dakota, is under the care of five Minneapolis physicians, who are treating him for the loss of his voice. Judge Morgan's home is at Devil's Lake.

Hibbing.—The decomposed body of an unknown man was brought into Hibbing and turned over to Coroner Pengelly. The remains were found in a clump of thick brush thirty rods north of the house of Anton Newberg's farm, five miles south of Hibbing. The body was found by Fred Belander.

St. Paul.—Attorney General George Simpson has decided that the governor does not have the power to remove Superintendent Whittier from the superintendency of the state training school for boys at Red Wing, and accordingly, the state supreme court will be asked to arbitrate the matter.

Duluth.—Rinar Fritjof Person met death by drowning in the St. Louis river at Brimson. His body was brought to Duluth. Person was 28 years old, and was in the employ of the St. Louis River Dam and Improvement company as a river driver. While at work he made a misstep, slipped into the water and was drowned.

Moorhead.—In the face of the action of the Fargo city council in passing resolutions appointing a committee to interest the city administration of Moorhead in using the Fargo municipal filtration plant, comes the announcement of City Water and Light Superintendent A. J. Warner that the first of the city wells has turned out a success. It is not probable Moorhead will interest itself in the Fargo proposition.

The state board of health has received notice from Dr. Wilbur of the department of labor and commerce in Washington, that Minnesota has been made a registration state. This means that the death returns and vital statistics of the Minnesota board of health are complete and perfect enough to warrant their use by the United States government. Only a very few of the states are given this honor.

Moorhead.—Most of the potato planting in the Red River Valley is finished. Henry Schroeder, known throughout the valley as the "potato king," finished planting 440 acres. W. J. Bodkin, who owns a large farm north of this city, says 88 per cent of the wheat in the valley is in. Merchants, bankers, traveling men, implement dealers, seedmen and farmers are all predicting the greatest crop the valley has every seen.

St. Cloud. — After examining 102 men, a full jury was selected to try the case of the state vs. Henry V. Albrecht charged with first degree murder. County Attorney J. B. Himsl opened the case by saying that the state would prove that Albrecht met Charles O'Brien at a dance, insulted him, went out and get a revolver, returned with it, and after looking for O'Brien in the dance hall, met him on the landing leading to the hall and shot him on sight.

The annual convention of the Northern Minnesota Development Association will be held in Duluth June first and second. The committee of Duluth and St. Louis county business men who have been acting in conjunction with the officers and committees of the association have prepared a program for what will probably prove the best meeting the association has yet had, including not only numerous papers on various development subjects, but also entertainment features. The advance notices carry the significant note—"Bring the Ladies."

$100,000 Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, Illinois. — Fire destroyed the Northwestern Can company's building, a five-story brick structure here, causing a loss of $100,000.

RATE RAISING COMBINE ALLEGED

Sixty or More Casualty Insurance Companies in New "Trust."

Chicago, Illinois.—Sixty or more of the casualty insurance companies of the United States and similar foreign concerns doing business in this country have combined to raise rates. As a result, employes desiring liability insurance may pay increases varying from 15 to 140 per cent. The attorney general has instituted an inquiry into this alleged trust.

Successful Midshipmen.

Washington, D. C. — The navy department made public the names of the lucky 38 out of a class of 155 midshipmen who graduated from the academy in 1909, and who have passed the examinations that will entitle them to commissions as ensigns. The list includes Levi B. Bye, Max B. DeMott and James S. Spore, Michigan; Robert R. Pennock, Robert C. Cosman, Franklin Van Valkenburgh, Hugh B. Leclair, Wisconsin; Olaf M. Hustvedt, Philip F. Hambsch, Edward C. Raguet and William C. [illegible], Iowa.

YEARS OF INTENSE SUFFERING

How a Bad Case of Kidney Trouble Was Finally Routed.

Mrs. John Light, Cresco, Iowa, says: "For years I was an intense sufferer from kidney disorders. The kidney secretions passed irregularly, my limbs were badly bloated, and feet so swollen I could not wear my shoes. I tried many remedies but became discouraged as nothing helped me. Then I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and soon noticed improvement. I continued until I could rest well at night and the kidney secretions became normal. I do not believe I would be alive today were it not for Doan's Kidney Pills.

CURED ITCHING AND BURNING

"I was taken with the itch in April, 1904, and used most everything. I had a friend pay me a visit from Cumberland, and she advised me to use Cuticura Remedies which I did. The cure was certainly quick, and I use them to this day. I had it terribly under my knees. I only used one box of pills, but two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and I use the Cuticura Soap all the time. I hope this will benefit others, as it has me, after Dr. ——— and others could do nothing for me." (Signed) Miss Lu Johnson, 1523 Ninth St., N. W., Washington, D. C., April 3, 1910.

In a later letter Miss Johnson adds: "The trouble began with an eruption under my knees, and extended upwards toward my waist, until I was not able to sit down. It kept a constant itching and burning all the time, night and day. I went to my doctor, but he could do me no good after I do not know how many medicines he gave me, and then told me I would be compelled to go to a skin specialist, which I positively refused to do. I cried all the time. Finally I made up my mind to try Cuticura Remedies, and tried Cuticura Pills, Ointment and Soap, and was entirely cured of the itching three days after I started using them. The healing took about eight days. I consider Cuticura Remedies marvelous, and would recommend them everywhere."

REPATRIATED.

HE HAD $400.00 IN CASH IN 1903; NOW WORTH $8,000.00.

My parents were originally Canadians from Essex County, Ontario. I was born in Monroe County, Michigan, from which place I moved to Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, where I farmed for 22 years. I sold my farm there in the summer of 1903 and in September of that year came to Canada with my wife and eight children. I had about $400 in cash, team of horses, a cow, a few sheep and some chickens. I took up a quarter section of land near Jack Fish Lake, Meota P. O., and later on purchased for $2,000.00 an adjoining quarter section. I have now 48 head of cattle, a number of horses, good buildings and consider my holding is worth at least $8,000.00. My children have raised from $300 to $500 worth of garden truck each year since we have been here. I have never had a poor crop and have never had one frosted. My wheat has averaged from 25 to 30 bushels per acre with one or two years considerably more. My oats have always yielded well up to 50 bushels per acre and once or twice as high as 85. My cattle have never been stabled in winter, and do not need it. I consider that this country offers better opportunities for settlers than anywhere I have ever been. I am sure that almost any person can come here and buy land at say $15.00 per acre and pay for it in one crop. My experience is that if a man farms his land in the right way he is not likely to have his crop frosted.

Most of the settlers in my district are Americans and Canadians and I know lots of them who came here with little or no capital who are now doing well, but I do not know of any who have left through disappointment, or becoming discouraged, have returned to their former homes.

Her Qualifications.

Pat and his little brown mare were familiar sights to the people of the town of Garry. The mare was lean, blind and lame, but by dint of much coaxing Pat kept her to the harness. One day while leading her to water he had to pass a corner where a crowd of would-be sports had congregated. Thinking to have some amusement at Pat's expense, one called out:

"Hullo, there, Pat. I'm looking for the real goods. How much is that mare of yours able to draw?"

"Begorra," said Pat, "I can't say exactly, but she seems to be able to drawn the attenshun of ivery fool in town."—The Housekeeper.

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY YOUNGSTER TRY THIS FREE

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will immediately correct the trouble.

This is not alone our opinion but that of Mrs. N. H. Mead of Freeport, Kans., whose granddaughter has been taking it successfully and of Mrs. J. R. Whiting of Lena, Wis., who gives it to her children and takes it herself. It is sold in fifty cent and one dollar bottles at every drug store, but if you want to test it in your family before you buy it send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will forward a supply free of charge.

Is only one of many symptoms which some women endure through weakness or displacement of the womanly organs. Mrs. Lizzie White of Memphis, Tenn., wrote Dr. R. V. Pierce, as follows:

"At times I was hardly able to be on my feet. I believe I had every pain and ache a woman could have. Had a very bad case. Internal organs were very much diseased and my back was very weak. CLAY BED FOUND AT ZUMBROTA

VETERAN SHALE EXPERT MAKES DISCOVERY ACCIDENTALLY.

Monster Tile Plant To Be Built in Minneapolis by Interested Capitalists.

Austin.—Ed. Barr, the veteran clay worker, has secured options on valuable shale land near Zumbrota, north of here and has interested Twin City capital in its development. They have purchased 10 acres of land near Midway and will erect the most modern and largest faced brick factory in the country and will ship the shale from Zumbrota to the factory at Midway, where the fine grade of brick will be made. It will require 10 carloads of clay a day to keep the plant in operation.

The cheaper clay will be used for making drain tile, blocks and cheap brick right at the beds and only the better clay shipped to Minneapolis.

The discovery of this fine deposit was made by accident. A local company at Zumbrota had very poor clay and in looking for material ran on to the richest shale deposit in the United States, less than half a mile from their plant.

This deposit is of the devonian formation and is very rare. The only other deposit in the United States is at Bradford, Pa., which is noted all over the world for its clay products and has $5,000,000 invested in machinery developing the shale deposits.

Mr. Barr has been interested in the clay business for many years and is an expert judge of clay formations. He was in Zumbrota placing better equipment in a local plant and he discovered the valuable nature of the shale with which they were working, and after a quiet investigation, which verified his first impression, obtained an option on 400 acres of land rich with these deposits.

This discovery will place Minnesota in the front rank of the clay producing states and will make Minnesota as famous as have the iron ore deposits in the north and Minneapolis is fortunate in securing this first large factory to be built in the state.

There is an aboundance of material in this deposit and it lays in hills over 200 feet above the railroad and the Zumbro river, so that it will be easily mined and loaded on the cars. Investigation has shown that the shale grows richer and finer the deeper the bed is penetrated.

This clay has been thoroughly tested for building blocks, tile and fine grade faced brick and it has proven itself to be of the finest grade working into a rich color.

The state of Minnesota uses over 100,000,000 fine grade shale brick every year most of which is used by the Twin Cities and all of which has been imported with a freight rate of $6 to $12 per thousand, so that it will be a great benefit to Minneapolis to obtain this brick of as fine a quality from the new factory now in course of construction.

A noted clay worker, who inspected and tried out this clay, writes regarding tht Minnesota shale clay: "You have found the most valuable shale clay that has ever been found in this western country. The Pennsylvania clay makes the finest brick in the country and I believe that you have a clay in the new discovery in Minnesota that is superior to our Pennsylvania clay."

The new clay burns down to perfect vitrification and can then be polished so as to take a high polish for interior work and it contains about 22 per cent of alumina and 5 or 6 per cent of oxides of iron, which give it its rich color and make it the most valuable deposit in the United States.

WILSON IN TWIN CITIES.

Democratic Governor Spends Two Days in Minnesota.

Minneapolis.—Hon. Woodrow Wilson, governor of New Jersey, and hailed by thousands of partisans as the Democratic hope in the next presidential campaign, will spend the next two days in Minneapolis, arriving from Seattle. He is on his way home from a tour of the Western states, but will break his journey here to deliver a few addresses and to talk with the business men of the Twin Cities. Later he will make a brief visit to Lincoln, Neb.

The Minneapolis club will be Governor Wilson's headquarters while in the city, but his two public appearances are to be under the auspices of the Publicity club. He was received at the Union depot by G. Roy Clark, president of the club, and its secretary, Alexis Caswell. A luncheon was given in his honor at the West hotel at noon, when he spoke on "Business and Politics."

In the afternoon Governor Wilson went to St. Paul, and was the guest at a banquet given by the St. Paul Association of Commerce. Before that he visited the state capitol and took part in a public levee in his honor in the governor's reception room. After the banquet in the evening he returned to Minneapolis.

The second day's program included a visit to the state univeraity and an address to the students, and a luncheon at noon at the Minneapolis club, at which Governor Wilson will be the guest of the Princeton club of the Twin Cities.

Governor Wilson is accompanied by his secretary, Frank P. Stockbridge. Mrs. Wilson and the Misses Wilson are at present living at the Princeton inn, where the governor and his family engaged a suite of rooms after leaving "Prospect," the home of the president of Princeton university. When Governor Wilson returns home they will go to "The Little White House," New Jersey's summer capitol, in Sea Girt, where they will spend most of the summer.

SUPREME COURT DECLINES.

Doesn't Care to Mix in Gov. Eberhart's Controversy.

St. Paul.—The justices of the Minnesota supreme court refuse to become involved in the Whittier matter; they decline absolutely to act as arbitrators in the situation that threatens the dismasal of the superintendens the dismisal of the superintendboys, at Red Wing. This leaves the whole matter up in the air again, and it will now be necessary for specific charges to be preferred against Mr. Whittier, in accordance with the opinion of the attorney general, if Governor Eberhart maintains his position.

In reply to the governor's suggestion that they act as arbitrators, the members of the supreme court, through the chief justice, Charles M. Start, sent the following letter to the governor:

"Your request of May 20 that the justices of the supreme court act as arbitrators in the matter of charges to be preferred against the superintendent of the state training school for boys, at Red Wing, has been duly considered and the conclusion reached that we cannot comply with your request. We have no jurisdiction of the matter as a court, and if we should consent to act as arbitrators, it would establish an undesirable precedent which would embarrass the court and directly tend to impair confidence in it. We are, therefore, constrained by our views of judicial duty and propriety to decline to comply with your request."

FOOT HACKED FROM BODY.

Sheriff Finds More Evidence That Nesbit Was Murdered.

Park Rapids.—Investigation by Sheriff Petrie, of Park Rapids, and forty other men brought to light gruesome finds on the Nesbit farm, five miles south of here, tending to confirm the theory that J. O. Nesbit, 72 years old, was murdered. Because of Nesbit's disappearance, Lloyd Carlton and his wife, the latter a daughter of Nesbit, are in custody here. A foot, apparently hacked from the ankle with an ax, and which had been burned until the clothing dropped off, was one of the clues collected by the sheriff's party.

The Carltons maintain the same nonchalance which has characterized their actions since they were first detained. They profess to know nothing of Nesbit, although they admit that there was a quarrel March 28, and that the aged man left them in anger. Nesbit owned a farm and the Carltons had charge of it.

BIG BOND ISSUE

BIG SUM SAID TO BE SOUGHT FOR REVISION OF WESTERN RAILROAD MAP.

G.N. ISSUES $600,000,000

Extension of C., B. & Q. and Great Northern to 'Frisco—Deal Approaches Magnitude of Northern Securities Merger.

St. Paul, Minn.—With the issue of $600,000,000 of Great Northern railroad bonds plans for a gigantic railroad deal, engineered by James J. Hill, were revealed.

It means, declare those who are in touch with the immense transaction, the assumption by the Great Northern of control over a big part of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system, construction of a Burlington extension from Denver southeast to San Francisco, divorce of the Great Northern from the Northern Pacific in the north and a new northern coast line for the Great Northern from the Twin Cities to San Francisco. This latter addition to the Great Northern service would be brought about by the extension of the Oregon Trunk line, already a Great Northern line, from Bend, Ore., to the Golden Gate by way of Sacramento, and the taking over of the Seattle, Portland & Spokane road.

Longest Road in World.

The primary cause of the immense railroad deal, which will give the Great Northern more miles of trackage than any other railroad in the world, is said to be the failure of the Hill interests to control the Northern Pacific on which the Great Northern was forced to depend for a portion of its north line coast journey. Something like half the $600,000,000, it is understood, is to be spent in this northern country. Already 150 miles of construction work from the Columbia river on to Bend, Ore., has been completed on the Oregon short line.

This line, together with the Seattle, Portland and Spokane, would give the Great Northern its long cherished route right into 'Frisco through the northern states. To get control of the Burlington for its southern route, it is said authoritatively, that the Hill interests got many millions in Burlington refund bonds where they wanted them.

Recalls Northern Securities.

Following is the account of the bond issue as carried by the Associated Press:

"A move that is strongly suggestive here of railroad operations on the scale of the Northern Securities company was announced by J. J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern Railway company, today when in a typewritten statement he announced the execution of an $800,000,000 first and refunding mortgage to secure bonds for the Great Northern and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroads. The statement follows:

"'The Great Northern Railway company, as of date May, 1, 1911, has executed its first and refunding mortgage, securing a total authorized issue of $600,000,000 bonds.

"The size of the mortgage is explained by the fact that the outstanding obligations of the company which are to be refunded amount, approximately, to $330,000,000. Included, however, in the figures last named is the direct and contingent obligation of the company on the Burlington joint four maturing in 1921 and aggregating $222,400,000.

"Covering a future of fifty years, approximatedly $270,000,000 in bonds, therefore, will be available for general corporate purposes, double-tracking and additional mileage. Since its beginning, thirty-two years ago, the Great Northern has expended between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000 out of capital and earnings. The provision made for the future in consideration of the rapidly growing territory which Great Northern lines serve, would seem intelligently conservative. In no other part of the country has nature more generously bestowed those three great sources of all national wealth—the farm, the forest and the mine—and nowhere else is there more room for such development as follows the occupation of a new country by an intelligent population."

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Boy Angler Drowns at Duluth.

Duluth.—Marshall Payne, son of Peter Payne, of the West End, fell off a dock while fishing and was drowned. He was 7 years of age. The body was recovered.

Grand Rapids.—Clayton Sherburne, the 6-year-old son of G. W. Sherburne, a painter, was drowned in a ravine.

Duluth.—Three miners employed in the Sellers open pit at Hibbing were literally blown to pieces by a premature explosion.

Washington, D. C.—The Minnesota passenger and commodity rate cases recently appealed from the decision of Judge Sanborn, have been advanced for argument by the United States supreme court. The cases were assigned for argument on Oct. 10 next.

Washington.—Representative Miller of Minnesota has recommended John Glava to be postmaster at Ray, Koochiching county, to succeed Thomas Watson, resigned, and Fred Slats to be postmaster at Mizpah, Koochiching county, to succeed C. W. Francis, resigned.

Utica, N. Y.—The Root fellowship of Hamilton college, founded by United States Senator Elihu Root, has been awarded to Edward C. Burdick of Fairmont, Minn. The fellowship provides for a year's residence study of science at any university of America or Europe.

Minneapolis.—Lieutenant-Colonel F. C. Corrison, former chief of police, while marching at the head of the Minneapolis companies of the Minnesota National guard in the Memorial parade, was run into by a runaway horse ridden by a member of Battery B, was thrown to the pavement, kicked in the head by the horse as it went by and rendered unconscious. He was taken to the City hospital.

RANGE DEFENDERS TO RECOVER.

Develops That Vorbanich Wounded Deputy With Pitchfork.

Duluth.—Peter Vorbanich, the would-be John Deitz of the Waterhen river, who was twice wounded by Deputy Sheriffs George King and Frank Magine, while arresting him is resting easily at Virginia and will recover.

It develops that Vorbanich struck at King with a pitchfork and the tines entered the latter's left arm. Vorbanich is known to the people of his section as Black Pete. He is an old settler. One hundred and twenty-five river drivers who had been held at bay by Vorbanich resumed work. The lumber company paid $585 for driving logs through Vorbanich's farm during the year ending May 15 and he demanded $1,000 for the new year.

Mrs. Vorbanich is under arrest, charged with resisting an officer in the performance of his duty, and Special Deputy Sheriff John Saari is in charge of the woman at her home.

PLAN TO ABOLISH ROAD IS HIT.

Likely Minn. and North Wisconsin Will Not Go Out of Existence.

Duluth.—The hearing of the petition of the Minnesota and North Wisconsin road, to abandon its line running 55 miles northeast from Scanlon, was concluded and a date for arguments set. About 100 people, half of them settlers along the road, attended. Dr. Dwight F. Brooks, of St. Paul, says that the road was an investment of $850,000 and is now worth about $100,000. There are 2,000 people tributary to the road and 6,800 acres of land cleared. N. J. Upham, of Duluth, testified that he represents a syndicate that is willing to lease the property and build a s, r direct to Duluth.

It is quite certain the road will not go out of existence. The settlers testified that the road would have had many times greater patronage if it had offered "real service."

MANY TAX CASES ARE BEGUN.

State Seeks to Recover by Suit from 35 Delinquents.

St. Paul.—During the last two weeks 35 cases to collect money due the state have been started by Attorney General Simpson. Most of these are for the collection of the tax due to the state from cities and villages on liquor licenses. The most important of these was the collection of the 2 per cent tax from the city of Minneapolis.

About 50 answers have been filed in land suits in northern Minnesota, which C. L. Hilton, assistant attorney general, has been conducting. The entire force of the attorney general's office worked during the entire Memorial day in order to finish work which Mr. Simpson wishes completed before he left for the Pacific coast to take depositions in the Brooks-Scanlon timber cases.

Street Sayings Are Short Lived.

In some London slang has a short life, the street sayings current for a time pass away even more quickly. Most of these, such as "Has your mother sold her mangle?" "Who shot the dog?" and "How are you off for soap?" survive only in the pages of contemporary novelists.

Some, however, have a long life. "Does your mother know you're out?" has been traced back to 1840 and may possibly have been current before then. Others are revived, with slight alterations. Ten years ago rude little boys would shout, "Where did you get that hat?" when their grandfathers would exclaim, "What! the same old hat!" And the expression of dissent emphasized nowadays by "Not in these trousers!" used to be conveyed thirty years ago by the tag, "Not in these boots!"—London Chronicle.

Baseball Anecdote.

"Curious episode, this. Seems a young fellow got excited at the ball game and hugged the young lady next to him, a perfect stranger. She had him arrested, but he told the judge that any man might do the same thing, and his claim was upheld by expert testimony."

"What was the sequel?"

"Well, the sequel is rather interesting. The next day there were 5,000 girls at the ball game."

MENTAL ACCURACY

Greatly Improved by Leaving Off Coffee

The manager of an extensive creamery in Wis. states that while a regular coffee drinker, he found it injurious to his health and a hindrance to the performance of his business duties.

"It impaired my digestion, gave me a distressing sense of fullness in the region of the stomach, causing a most painful and disquieting palpitation of the heart, and what is worse, it muddied my mental faculties so as to seriously injure my business efficiency.

"I finally concluded that something would have to be done. I quit the use of coffee, short off, and began to drink Postum. The cook didn't make it right at first. She didn't boil it long enough, and I did not find it palatable and quit using it and went back to coffee and to the stomach trouble again.

"Then my wife took the matter in hand, and by following the directions on the box, faithfully, she had me drinking Postum for several days before I knew it.

"When I happened to remark that I was feeling much better than I had for a long time, she told me that I had been drinking Postum, and that accounted for it. Now we have no coffee on our table.

"My digestion has been restored, and with this improvement has come relief from the unpleasant sense of fullness and palpitation of the heart that used to bother me so. I note such a gain in mental strength and acuteness that I can attend to my office work with ease and pleasure and without making the mistakes that were so annoying to me while I was using coffee.

"Postum is the greatest table drink of the times, in my humble estimation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

If Judge Sanborn's decision taking the power of regulating passenger tariffs out of the state's hands and relegating it to the federal government holds good in Minnesota it certainly will be applied in other states, and the rate question will become one of the livest of national political issues with the result that passenger rates will eventually be cut down all over the nation so that the roads as a whole will in the end lose more than they have gained by this ruling.—Middle River Pioneer.

Sangerfest Approaching

Reports coming in from the various choirs comprising the famous Red River Valley Scandinavian Singers association indicates that the "stevne" in Thief River Falls June 23, 24, and 25 is to set a new mark for the number of singers present and also a new standard for the songs rendered. With a splendid, well trained chorus of 200 voices and an orchestra of 30 pieces, a world famous tenor soloist like Rolf Hammer, this "stevne" is certainly a thing that will be remembered in the annals of Thief River Falls. As an additional vocal soloist, the executive committee have been fortunate enough to secure Ingolf Grindeland, who is already known locally as a singer, who has during the past year made a great hit in Minneapolis, where he sings in one of the large churches. Another attraction will be S. Shefstad of Crookston, who has been engaged as a violin soloist. Mr. Shefstad is a Leipsic graduate, is well known locally, and needs no further introduction. Besides these Mrs. G. Halvorson and Mrs. O. F. Melby, well known locally, will render vocal selections and will ably represent Thief River Falls at the "stevne."

At Varzin once, after sitting for some time sunk in profound reflection, Bismarck lamented that he had derived but small pleasure or satisfaction from his political activity, but, on the other hand, much vexation, anxiety and trouble. He had, he said, made no one happy by it, neither himself, his family nor any one else, "but probably," he continued, "many unhappy. Had it not been for me there would have been three great wars the less, the lives of 80,000 men would not have been sacrificed and many parents, brothers, sisters and widows would not now be mourners."—"Bismarck's Table Talk."

THE JUNIOR'S CODE.

By THOMAS G. ECKLES.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

There are cases of individual stupidity and there are combinations of stupidity. It has been my fate to suffer from one of these combinations. In my case it consisted of a man in love and a small boy who hadn't any sense.

Mr. Perkins, the junior member of the firm where I was confidential clerk, was the man in love. His fiancee lived in an interior town, and he was continually neglecting the business to go and see her or in devoting himself to her when she came to town. He was obliged to go abroad on business, and before going he called me into his private office and said:

"Frank, I'm going to take you into my confidence. I am engaged to be married, as you probably know, to the loveliest girl in the universe. She is Miss Octavia Allerton and lives at B. I shall wish to cable her occasionally and have made a code, of which she has the key. Now, I don't wish these telegrams to be inspected by the whole office force, so I shall address them to you. As soon as you receive one of them take it to the telegraph office and send it to Miss Allerton. Now, be very careful and say nothing to anybody, and if you follow orders and handle the dispatches as instructed I will see that you are well paid for your trouble."

I promised to attend to the matter, and when I left him he felt assured that he could send messages to his fiancee safely and with secrecy. While he was on the ocean I received a wireless message every few days, and they continued at intervals when he got on land. I took them all to the telegraph office and forwarded them.

There was an interval of five days during which none came, and then I received one just as I was leaving the office in the evening to go to keep an engagement of importance to myself in a suburban town. Having just time to catch the train, I called Joe, an office boy, gave him the message with the proper address and told him to take it to the telegraph office. "Be very careful," I said, "to see that it goes all right. If it doesn't, my head will come off."

There's such a thing as spurring people to overdo things. I put too much caution into Joe. If I had said nothing to him he would have handed the telegram in without looking at it and nothing would have happened. As it was, while going to the telegraph office he took it out of the envelope and read it:

Notary, alternative.

Not knowing that it was a cipher telegram, he at once assumed that there was something wrong in it, since "Notary, alternative," meant nothing as it stood. He ran back to find me, but I had gone. He set out again for the telegraph office, trying on the way to make sure of the message. He had heard of blunders of operators in recording messages and concluded this was one of them. He put a number of words in place of "notary" in order to make a proper reading and finally hit on the word "another." "Another alternative" meant something. Before reaching the telegraph office he had written "another" in place of "notary."

The next day a cablegram came from Mr. Perkins that he would return immediately. He reached America within a week, but went straight to his fiancee. The next day he appeared at the office. He glared at me as he passed me, and, going into his private room, he sent for me. I saw a check laying on his desk before him. It looked ominous. He handed it to me and said:

"Here is your salary, paid to the end of the month. We shall not need your services any longer."

Of course I asked the cause of my discharge.

"I sent you a cablegram from Paris," he said. "It read, 'Notary, alternative.'" He handed me a copy of the cipher code, the word "notary" underlined. It read:

I am very lonely without you.

Then he told me to turn to the word "alternative," and I saw that it meant "love." The whole message read:

I'm very lonely without you, love.

Meanwhile he was scratching something on a piece of paper. When I had read the interpretation of his message he said, "Would you like to know how that message read when it was received by Miss Allerton?" I replied that I would, and he handed me what he had written:

I have found another love.

I explained to him how the blunder occurred, but my excuses made no impression on him. Turning to his desk, he indicated that the interview was ended.

Going out, I met the head of the firm. "I'm sorry for you, Carter," he said. "I did all I could for you, but failed. I couldn't refuse to consent to your dismissal. Indeed, it is best that you shouldn't have to meet him every day. That telegram lost him his girl. She wished to get rid of him to marry another man. She took advantage of it to break her engagement by cable, and before he could get to her she had engaged herself to his rival. You see, he couldn't endure the sight of you daily after what has happened."

That's the reason I have said that I have suffered from a combination of stupidity. I think the man was more stupid than the boy. He should have thanked me for indirectly bringing about a break between him and a girl who was fooling him. She was intending to marry him because he was making money.

Wanted His Money's Worth.

"Have you any choice as to the wedding march?" asked the church organist.

"The wedding march?" echoed the father of the bride.

"Yes; the march that is played when the bridal procession moves down the aisle. Which one would you prefer—Mendelssohn's or the march from 'Lohengrin?'"

"Any difference in the expense?"

"Oh, no!"

"Then play the one that's the longest."

Minsheu, a dictionary maker of London, in 1617 issued a work which gave the following amusing account of the origin of the word "cockney:" "A cockney, or cockny, applied only to one born within the sound of the Bow bells—that is, within the city of London—whiche terme came first out of the following tale:

"A citizen's sonne, riding with his father out of London into the country and being a novice and merely ignorant of how corne and catel do increase, asked when he heard a horse neigh what the horse dide. His father answered, 'The horse dothe neigh.' Riding further, he heard a cock crow and said, 'Dothe the cock neigh too?' And therefore cockney, or cockneigh, by inversion thus: incoctus—i. e., raw or unripe in countrey-mens affaires."

THE SPECTATOR is read by more people in the south half of Pennington county than any other paper published in the county. Its readers believe what it says. Its subscribers take it because they want to read it and they willingly pay the price. Its subscription list is bona fide. None of its subscribers were gained by offering bonuses or prizes, or by conducting voting contests, or shading the price.

THE SPECTATOR has been published at the old stand for now nearly thirty years, and while it has had its ups and downs its reliability is unquestioned. It does not print as much matter as some machine set papers but, which is better, every word it does print is of interest to its readers.

It is the official paper of Pennington county and of St. Hilaire Village.

Tin Shower

Mesdames Holmes and Post were hostesses Thursday evening at the home of the former in honor of Miss Mary Hoff, whose marriage to Dr. C. Swanson will take place on the 20th of June. The parlors were decorated for the occasion in red, bells, festoons, and beautiful carnations. The dining room was in white and red. Directly over the table, at which covers were laid for twenty-six, was suspended a large white wedding bell, with festoonings of white. The centerpiece was red roses and the place cards were done in red. Refreshments were also in white and red. The principal contest for the evening was a floral love story; in which the head prize, a beatiful vase, was won by Mrs. Pitkin and the consolation prize, red roses, by Mrs. Burkee.

Appropriate to the occasion was the song so delightfully sung by Miss Olga Olson, "Mary, Kind and Gentle is She."

During the evening the door bell was rung and a delivery boy brought an express box (done in white with red hearts), charges prepaid, directed to Miss Mary Hoff, which when opened was found to contain many useful articles, from a tin spoon to a covered breadpan, with as many amusing sentiments and toasts, which were read by the happy bride to be.

Good St. Hilaire this year
Is destitute of beer
And alcohol,
At the artesian well
All drink, but none doth sell;
Water, you know full well,
Is free for all,

Now, parents, all rejoice
That the young men and boys
Are safe from harm.
Allayed is every fear,
And dried is every tear,
There is nowhere so I hear,
Cause for alarm.

O, let us then give praise
To Him who crowns our days
With peace and joy.
We'll ask it o'er and o'er
That saloons may nevermore
Be placed beside our door
Men to destroy.—B. P.

"Big Fellers" Meet Their Waterloo

The most widely heralded and greatest ball game of the season was pulled off at the local diamond yesterday afternoon when the Gophers deafeated the St. Hilaire first team by the score of 11 to 9.

The first team had been specially organized for this occasion and con- of representatives of the following trades: Dentist, doctor, surveyor, barber, buttermaker, merchant, farmer, watermarker, etc.

The old veterans started in with the grim determination of winning the game, which they plainly showed espcoially at the bat when the dentist doctor, buttermaker, and the other trades would pull the bat backward and then forward with the motion so characteristic in pulling teeth, performing surgical operations, churning butter etc.

The defeat was certainly a sad event in the life histories of the "old timres." After the game they could but reflect with sorrowful minds on all the trouble they had taken in posting up signs and otherwise ridiculing the Gophers.

The Gophers, who see before them bright visions of laurels won on league diamonds, can but entertain feelings of sympathy for the venerable old stars(?), who met their Waterloo yesterday.

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

Clean Sanitary Floors.

Varnish, which is commonly regarded only as a beautifier, is an efficient sanitary agent. Varnished surfaces can be cleaned by wiping, and the microbe-laden dust is thus kept out of the air. A varnished floor is therefore not only up to date, beautiful and easily cleaned, but is wholesome. The National Association of Varnish Manufacturers, 636 The Bourse, Philadelphia, Penn., are distributing free a booklet entitled "Modern Floors," which tells how floors may be made and kept wholesome and attractive. Send for one. Varnish is cheaper than carpet and far more satisfactory.

Preferred Carpenters.

Plumber—Why do you go on using this old well with an old-fashioned hoisting apparatus, when for a few dollars you could get city water put in your house?

Housekeeper—Because when this apparatus gets out of order I can get it fixed by a carpenter.

Certainly.

FARM AND BEES

KEEPING ANTS OUT OF HIVES

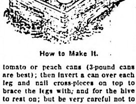
Ordinary Table Turned Upside Down With Empty Inverted Tomato Cans Will Do the Work.

To the numerous inquiries as to how to keep ants out of hives, why not take Josh Billings' advice as to bedbugs—"just kill 'em all"? The best way to kill ants is with the oft-repeated remedy, i. e., bisulphide of carbon. However, there are places which, for one reason or another, it is almost impracticable to kill off the ants; and then the apiarist needs a hive-stand that will exclude them.

The illustration shows one of my hive-stands complete and ready to have the hive placed upon it, writes J. M. Caldwell in the Gleanings in Bee Culture. It is nothing but a table turned upside down, and an empty tomato can, with the top melted off, inverted over each table-leg. The ants can crawl up the table-leg and all around on the inside of the can, but they cannot make the turn around the lower edge of the cans, and come up on the outside of cans and thus reach the hive.

The space between the table-leg and inside of cans must be at least half an inch; but the cans rest on the ends of the legs.

Just take an old super or box. Cut four pieces 2x2x12, and nail one in each corner. Round off the projecting edges, then melt the tops off from four tomato or peach cans (3-pound cans are best); then invert a can over each leg and nail cross-pieces on top to brace the legs with, and for the hive to rest on; but be very careful not to allow any holes in the sides of the cans that the ants can crawl through. This works on the same principle as the tin pans used on posts under corn-cribs to keep out mice—no patent on it either.



How to Make It.

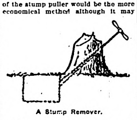
Putting the legs of the stand in basins of water or oil will drown the bees when the wind blows, and they miss the alighting-board and fall down at the corners. At one time I had fifty hives on stands with the stand-legs in water. I also tried oil.

Here is something which I have never seen in print. Ants carry out the queen, bees, and eggs from the cells.

TO REMOVE STUMPS EASILY

Where Time Is No Object Hole May Be Bored Through Center and Fire Built to Burn It.

An easy way to remove stumps, where time is not an object, is to dig a trench beside the stump and then to bore a diagonal hole through the stump so that the lower end of the hole will be near the top of the trench and the upper end some distance above the ground. Build a fire in the trench and partially cover it so that the flame will draw through the auger hole like it would through a flue. As soon as the fire is started a draft is created through the auger hole and this helps to fire the stump much more rapidly. This method requires no great equipment and will be found effective though it takes time. If one is so situated that he desires to clear a considerable area of stumps the use of the stump puller would be the more economical method although it may require considerable expenditure for the purchase or rental of the stump puller and the necessary teams and men. Of course, dynamite will do the work more quickly, but this is a very dangerous substance and should be used only by an expert.



A Stump Remover.

Fertilize All the Soil.

A common practice in European countries is to sow artificial fertilizers broadcast, for the reason that all the soil is made equally productive, so that no matter in which direction the plant roots spread the plant food is there. Our farmers in this country are practicing this method more and more. Our prediction, now that there has been perfected a machine that successfully sows in wide range of quantities such enrichers as granular lime, nitrate of soda, land plaster and all commercial fertilizers is that the farmers of America will use the broadcast method.

Great Harvest Month.

July is the greatest harvest month in central and northern sections of our country. The hay crop promises to be good this season and oats are above the average in many places. It will pay to save all of them because they will bring good prices before next summer.

Care of the Lawn.

The charming appearance of a well-kept lawn appeals to every one. Some care is required to keep it in good condition; but nothing connected with the residence, inside or out, gives so large returns for such moderate outlay. The lawn mower must be used regularly.

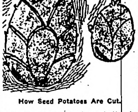
LOOKING TO SEED POTATOES

Should Be Carefully Examined and Only Those Entirely Free From Disease Used.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Seed potatoes should be carefully examined for traces of dry rot. Only potatoes entirely free from disease should be planted, for diseased seed will be sure to grow a diseased crop.

Dry rot shows as dark or black spots running through the potato from the stem end. Usually the stem end of the potato, when diseased, will show a sunken apearance around the stem. In any case the dark spots show in the tubers when cut across near the stem end with a knife; in cases of bad infection, the black spots may run half way through the tubers. Where the infection, is slight, it may occur only near the stem end. Of course, some of the tubers may be free from spots, and these are safe for planting on new land, but the disease lives over in the soil as well as in the tubers.



How Seed Potatoes Are Cut.

Where the disease has not penetrated more than one-third the length of the potato, the half of the potato toward the bud end may be used for seed with better promise. In such cases, the knife used for cutting should be dipped in a solution of corrosive sublimate, formaldehyde or carbolic acid after cutting diseased tubers, and before cutting others.

The usual seed treatment for scab, etc., will be very useful to kill dry-rot spores which may adhere to tubers and may be applied to the healthy portions after separation from the diseased parts of potatoes.

The means by which late blight is carried from place to place is the chief question which interests the shippers and planters of seed potatoes. This is restricted to tubers which show the dry rot. These carry the fungus in a semi-dormant state, which develops after the tuber is planted, and spreads to the leaves of the growing plants. The purchaser has the matter entirely in his own hands. If he insists on all sound tubers and plants, only such there will be no danger of introducing late blight with them.

Blight is probably never carried on the surface of the tubers.

The Dog for the Farm.

We do not think collies are dangerous with children. We have raised two from puppies, and they became firm companions for our children and we never knew them to snap at them or show a disposition to harm them. Collies are very useful on the farm. They can very easily be taught to go alone long distances if necessary into the pasture or woods for the cows, bringing them home night and morning for milking. It is far pleasanter and cheaper to send a dog for them, especially on a wet, stormy morning, than to walk a mile or so for them or to hire a man to do it.

Do Not Neglect Gardens.

The fact is notorious that the farmer's garden is not as well cared for as that of the artisan. In fact, it is in many instances entirely wanting. Usually the larger the farm the more insignificant the garden. The excuse given is that the farmer hasn't the time. The answer to this is clear. A good garden adds to the comfort and enjoyment of the farmer's family, and aids in promoting health. No farmer is justified in being so busy that he cannot furnish what is essential to the well being of his home.

Borrowing From the Land.

Never borrow from the land; always lend. Borrowing means impoverishing the land and crippling its ability to do well. Lending enlarges its capacity and that of the lender.

Pennsylvania Hay Fields.

The hay fields of Pennsylvania averaged 80 pounds more per acre than those of other states in the Union during 1910.

FARM NOTES

Better have one good animal than two poor ones.

The drains should be properly laid out and carefully graded.

Encourage the boy to fit some live stock to show at the local fair.

You give the weeds a big advantage if you let them go to seed.

The best fertilizer for asparagus is rotted manure from grain-fed horses.

The manure for peas, beets and onions should be fine, rich and well rotted.

Salt seems to add greatly to the palatability of tankage, whether fed dry or in slop.

Manure as well as fertilizers should be thoroughly mixed in the soil before drilling in the seed.

By sowing a pinch of lettuce seed every ten days there will always be tender salad for the table.

There is nothing about good tankage or meat that is in any way injurious to hogs of any ages.

The Peruvian guano substitute is the standard truck fertilizer for quick growth and heavy returns.

Rich horse manure and urine from grain-fed cattle is far superior to fertilizers and very much cheaper.

A profitable crop cannot be grown on land deficient in humus, which is the same thing as rotted sod or rotted manure with fertilizer alone.

WELCOMED BY MEN WHO SMOKE

Particular men who smoke realize how offensive to people of refinement is a strong tobacco breath, and how objectionable to themselves is that "dark brown taste" in the mouth after smoking.

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic is worth its weight in gold for this purpose alone. Just a little in a glass of water—rinse the mouth and brush the teeth. The mouth is thoroughly deodorized, the breath becomes pure and sweet and a delightful sense of mouth cleanliness replaces that dark brown tobacco taste.

Paxtine is far superior to liquid antiseptics and Peroxide for all toilet and hygienic uses and may be obtained at any drug store 25 and 50c a box or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

STILL HAVING FUN WITH HIM.

Percy—Weally, Daisy, I dawnced so stwenuously in that last waltz that me head feels light, doncher know.

Daisy—Indeed! I supposed that sensation was so common with you that you had ceased to notice it.

TO QUENCH A SUMMER THIRST.

Don't pour a lot of ice water into you in order to quench the thirst for the moment—not only does it not produce the desired result, but it is bad for you.

There is just one beverage that fits all conditions of heat and thirst—COCA-COLA.

Next time you're hot, tired or thirsty drink a glass or a bottle of this one best beverage—delicious, refreshing, thirst-quenching. At soda-fountains or carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Write to the COCA-COLA CO., Atlanta, Ga., for a copy of their booklet, "The Truth About COCA-COLA"—you will find it interesting.

A Wily Judge.

At an assize court, according to the London Times, a juror claimed exemption from serving on the ground that he was deaf. The judge held a conversation with the clerk of arraigns on the subject, and then, turning to the man, at whom he looked intently, he asked in a whisper: "Are you very deaf?" "Very," was the unguarded reply. "So I perceive," was the rejoinder of the judge, "but not whisper deaf. You had better go into the box. The witness shall speak low."—Case and Comment.

A Tame Substitute.

"It begins to look as if those adventurous young men who went to Mexico in hopes of seeing some real fighting will be denied that pleasure."

"Yes. There is nothing left for them to do now but to come back home and jump on the umpire."

DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP HER

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pound, Wis.—"I am glad to announce that I have been cured of dyspepsia and female troubles by your medicine. I had been troubled with both for fourteen years and consulted different doctors, but failed to get any relief. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I can say I am a well woman. I can't find words to express my thanks for the good your medicine has done me. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. HERMAN SIETH, Pound, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

WEST'S GREAT DAM

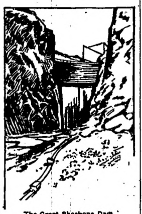
Shoshone Structure in Wyoming Is World's Highest.

Erected in an Effort to Reclaim the Arid Valleys in the Region Thereabouts—Will Water Thirsty Crops.

Sheridan, Wyo.—Once a wilderness so unpromising that it evoked derision in the halls of congress, the west has become today the land of fortune and opportunity. In this land of boundless distances the altitude is stimulating, the air is a tonic, giving health to the infirm and courage to those who have failed elsewhere. Its constant sunshine encourages optimism and cheerfulness. The glories of its opal-tinted dawns, the indescribable beauty of its sunsets and the nameless witchery of its twilight softly melting into night are the work of a divine painter.

Its canyons, sculptured during untold centuries by wind and wave, are unrivaled in their wonderful and varied coloring and in their awe-inspiring depths. Its deserts, in vastness of area, in potential wealth of soil and climate, and in rivers of constant supply, are sleeping empires awaiting exploitation and development. Here nature offers to every man his birthright—a wide sky, the sunshine, the wind and a sure reward for intelligent effort. It is our own land of mystery and enchantment, of crumbling ruins and of lost races which have utterly vanished.

The late Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota well said the west symbolizes "homes for the homeless, food for the hungry, work for the unemployed, land for the landless, gold for the penniless, freedom for the enslaved, adventure for the restless, dangers for the brave; an unknown world to conquer and room for all."



The Great Shoshone Dam.

In the swift march of national events during the past decade, the development of the west has focused the attention of the world. It furnishes one of the most inspiring pages in the annals of our commonwealth. It is a story of progress and human achievement—a battle with nature in her sternest and most forbidding aspect.

But irrigation has wrought its miracle, and the wealth of that portion of the country which great statesmen in Webster's day were wont to declare worthless is greater now than that of the entire nation in 1860. Of especial interest is the project located in northern Wyoming.

As the springtime showers and sunshine fall upon the snowy peaks of the lofty mountains on the eastern rim of Yellowstone park, a thousand streams rush downward to fill to brimming the swift-flowing Shoshone river. An important physical change will occur at such a time. The flood that once, unchecked and uncontrolled, swept madly through the rock walled gorge, will beat itself to stillness against a massive wall of concrete with which man has blocked the canyon. A beautiful lake, 100 feet deep and covering 10 square miles, will appear.

In this wonderful gash in the mountains, with perpendicular walls a thousand feet high, the government has erected the highest dam in the world. It is a wedge of concrete 328 feet from base to top. Its height can only be appreciated when compared with that well-known structure, New York's famous Flatiron building would reach within 47 feet of the top of the dam, and the tip-top of the dome of the United States capitol would fall 21 feet short of the parapet.

In the summer, when the crops are thirsty, the big gates will be opened and the pent-up floods will be released into the river below. Another dam, a low structure of concrete, will divert the waters through a tunnel three ad a quarter miles long into a canal which for 40 miles passes along the upper edge of a broad and fertile valley containing 150,000 acres.

Two years ago it was a desolate waste. Today it contains more than 200 farm houses and three thriving towns. Last year 10,000 acres produced crops on this project. The beacon of hope shines brightly in the west. It beckons the landless man to the manless land.

House of Lords.

London.—The house of lords is composed of lords spiritual and the lords temporal. All the peers were not originally entitled to a seat as a matter of right, but only those who were expressly summoned by the king. Every peerage of the United Kingdom which is conferred now gives the right to a seat in the house of lords. The number is indefinite, and may be increased at the pleasure of the crown which, however, cannot deprive a peer of the dignity once bestowed. The upper house at present comprises about 580 members. By the act of union with Scotland, 16 representatives of the Scottish peerage are elected by the Scottish nobility for the duration of each parliament, and 28 are elected [illegible]

CRIMINAL NEGLECT OF SKIN AND HAIR

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little that it is almost criminal not to use them. Think of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfiguration—physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft white hands and good hair. These blessings are often only a matter of a little thoughtful, timely care, viz.:—warm baths with Cuticura Soap, assisted when necessary by gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment. The latest Cuticura book, an invaluable guide to skin and hair health, will be mailed free, on application to the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass.

Looking Out for Number One.

Sydney had been given some discarded millinery with which to amuse herself. She trimmed a marvelous looking hat, and so arranged it that a long red ostrich plume hung straight down from the front of the brim, over her baby face.

"Come here, Sydney," said her mother. "Let me tack that feather back, out of your eyes."

"Oh, no, mother! I want it that way, so I can see it myself. 'Most always only other people can see the feathers on my hats."—Judge.

Like the Other Chicks.

Charles T. Rose, equally well known in Masonic work and banking circles of Cleveland, is a great chicken fancier, Rhode Island Reds being his favorite breed. Walking through his incubator house he discovered that Helen, the three-year-old daughter, had followed him.

"Come here, little chickabiddy," he called to her. And when she ran up to him to be tossed up and down, she asked: "Papa, which was my incubator?"

Very Like.

"Did Hawkins take his punishment like a man?" asked Lollerby.

"You bet he did," laughed Dubbleigh. "He hollered and yelled and used strong language to beat creation."—Harper's Weekly.

Garfield Tea overcomes constipation.

Anyway, there is nothing monotonous about the weather.

44 Bu. to the Acre
is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

A Drop of Blood

Or a little water from the human system when thoroughly tested by the chief chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., tells the story of impoverished blood—nervous exhaustion or some kidney trouble. Such examinations are made without cost and is only a small part of the work of the staff of physicians and surgeons under the direction of Dr. R. V. Pierce giving the best medical service possible without cost to those who wish to write and make a full statement of symptoms. An imitation of natures method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous force is used when you take an alterative and glyceric extract of roots, without the use of alcohol, such as

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Which makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. [illegible]

ART OF JUGGLING.

A Means of Recreation For the Sedentary or Bedridden.

Speaking of conjuring, the allied art of juggling is one of the most amusing and valuable of diversions, especially to the sedentary. Many physicians become expert in juggling, but it is to their patients that it is most useful.

The bedridden, if they retain the use of their hands, may beguile many a weary hour in learning to keep three or four tennis balls in the air at once and in balancing sticks and other simple objects on the forefinger or on the chin.

For the brain worker who does not care for walking there is no better recreation. It has often occurred to us that in cases where there is any reason to fear some form of paralysis the educating of disused cerebral, cerebellar and spinal centers by the rapid and complex movements required in juggling might serve to act as an efficient preventive.

We do not wish to claim too much for manual education of this kind, but we may point out that it tends to perfect nervous poise and that no juggling trick can be properly done if the performer indulges in dissipation even so mild as beer and cigarettes.—American Medicine.

Talking to the Doctor.

While making some professional calls in a sparsely settled district I came upon a little plump, rosy cheeked girl trudging toward home with her slate and dinner pail in her hand. I asked her to ride with me. I could see that she was a very timid child, and efforts to engage her in conversation were unavailing. She would meekly answer "Yes" or "No," but not another word would she speak.

A few weeks later I was called to the little girl's home to attend another member of the family for a slight ailment. When about to leave the mother spoke up smilingly and said: "Do you remember my little girl riding with you a few weeks ago? Well, when she got home she said, 'Mamma, I rode from school with the doctor, and he kept talking with me and talking with me, and I just didn't know what to do, for you know doctors charge you when you talk with them, and I didn't have any money.'"—National Monthly.

Explained In Italian.

A woman approached a policeman on Fourth avenue the other day and said, pointing to a wizened, forlorn looking Italian, "This man has asked me the way to Fourteenth street, but I can't make him understand how to get there."

"Sure, I'll explain to him in I-talian," said the policeman. "Look-a here, Michael-a, you walk-a right on-a this street-a two block-a till-a you come-a to a beeg-a, wide street-a, and that is eet."

"Grazie!" acknowledged the Italian gratefully. "Me find-a heem!"—New York Press.

PATTI STOOD PAT.

The Diva Wouldn't Cut Her Rates, but Suggested an Alternative.

Patti once was waited upon at her hotel by a famous minstrel magnate, Colonel J. H. Haverly, whose ambition had been aroused to secure the diva for a concert tour under his direction. Madame received him most graciously, and the two began discussing the details.

"May I ask your terms for fifty nights, Mme. Patti?" Haverly asked.

"For concert or for opera?" the diva asked.

"For concert," Haverly replied.

"Four thousand a night, or $200,000 for fifty nights, one-half to be deposited on signing the contract," was Patti's deliberate response.

Haverly tried to sneer, composed, but it was only a sickly sort of grin. "Two hundred thousand for fifty nights! Heavens, madame, that is just four times as much as we pay our president of the United States!"

"Well," the diva answered, "why don't you get the president to sing for you?"

Washed Out Blood Stains Cannot Escape the Ultra Violet Rays.

Even before it had been adapted exclusively, by means of special lens construction and combination, to the reception of the invisible ultra violet rays, the camera eye, owing to its peculiar sensitiveness to this light, has played a strikingly dramatic role on various occasions. One of these occurred a few years ago in Lausanne, Switzerland.

It appears that a handkerchief formed an exhibit at a murder trial and was regarded as a crucial bit of evidence. The closest inspection failed to reveal a stain on the immaculately white cloth even with the aid of a powerful microscope. But it occurred to a professor of Lausanne university to photograph the handkerchief, when the image obtained clearly disclosed the presence of great splotches, or, rather, of what had been such, showing ghostlike in the carefully washed fabric. The photograph proved the turning point of the trial, and the result was conviction.

Blood, as was scientifically explained at the time, happens to be one of the substances that absorb ultra violet rays, and when any of these substances have found their way to a receptive surface no amount of erasing or cleansing can hide its presence from the camera eye. When the latter is equipped to utilize only this invisible light the result is much more marked. Should the neatest erasure be made in writing done with substances specially absorbent of the rays the ultra violet photograph would show the traces of the erasure as plainly as the writing itself.—New York Tribune.

Follows Instructions.

The father of a small family tells us this one:

"My wife instructed our little boy when he was invited out to lunch the other day that when he was asked to have a second helping of cake he should refuse. 'You must say, "No, I thank you, I've had enough,"' said she. 'And don't you forget it.'

"He didn't. When asked if he'd have some more cake he said, 'No, I thank you, I've had enough, and don't you forget it!'"—Toledo Blade.

DOCTORING A DIAMOND.

Trick That Makes a Yellow Stone Appear Clear Blue White.

Let me show you a little trick that I would advise you not to put into practice, said a jewel fancier to a number of friends the other day.

The conversation had turned to diamonds during the midday luncheon, and the expert had been holding forth on his favorite subject. The little group of St. Louisans were interested still more when the speaker drew a big solitaire from his finger and beckoned a waiter across the cafe.

"Bring me a glass of water and an indelible pencil," said he when the servitor came over to the table.

"This is a trick that is essentially crooked," said the jewel fancier, "and will get by nine times out of ten even when the examiner is an expert at judging precious stones and detecting trickery. It will make a yellow 'off color' diamond look like a stone of the very first water. Pawnbrokers innumerable have been fooled by this same trick, as it is extremely difficult to detect even with a powerful glass."

The expert took the pencil and allowed the indelible lead to dissolve in the glass of water. In a couple of minutes the water was as blue as indigo water.

"Now watch," said the man who knew the lore of jewels.

He took the ring and dropped it into the glass. Its brilliancy was dimmed by the hazy, bluish water until it looked like a dead stone.

"Now, you noted," said the demonstrator, "that the diamond I placed in there was a bit yellow. It will be a clear bluish white when it comes out of its bath."

At the end of a minute the stone was taken out. The top of the gem was dried with a soft handkerchief and then the ring was waved to and fro for a few moments. It was held up for inspection. Not a gleam of yellow was to be seen. The stone was apparently a magnificent blue white gem that any one would be proud to own and loathe to pledge.

"It is the blue pigment deposited on the back of the stone that has made the difference," said the jewel expert. "The deposit is so filmy that a strong glass cannot detect it. You cannot see it from the rear of the mounting and only a bath of alcohol will remove it. It will stay on the gem for weeks if it is not removed in that way. It used to be a favorite trick of many folks who now and again had to put a diamond into the hands of a pawnbroker.

"The trick is called 'doctoring a stone,' but, as I said in the beginning, I would not advise you to try it. I don't know what the law on such matters is in Missouri, but there are states where a person convicted of such an offense would serve a long penitentiary term for his cleverness."—St. Louis Republic.

How Artificial Furs Are Made.

The raw pieces of pelt are frozen and the skin carefully shaved off, thawed and sent to the tanneries to be made into leather. The frozen fur which remains is allowed to thaw slightly at the bottom, so that a small part of the hair is freed from ice. This thawed portion is then covered with a solution of rubber, which is allowed to set. The result is that [illegible] the natural skin. These same [illegible] furs are said to be more lasting than [illegible] real, because they [illegible]

CORDED A CROCODILE.

Turning a Greedy Water Devil Into a Trussed Up Mummy.

It is known that a crocodile will sometimes leave a river stocked with food, explore for miles an unsuitable tributary, then wander inland until it finds a pool.

In this way three crocodiles once found their way to Taiping lake, in the Malay peninsula. So long as they confined their attention to the fish and an occasional duck no one objected to their presence, but when one of them began to take sheep off the bank as they came down to drink it was felt that the saurians ought to be exterminated, and an Englishman and his servant made the attempt.

Obtaining a dugout, they paddled into deep water. The servant was already barefoot, and the Englishman himself took off shoes and stockings, so that his bare feet might have as good a hold as possible on the smooth bottom of the canoe. A bait was attached to a heavy rattan, and soon a tug and a plunge indicated that the crocodile was fast to one end. Immediately the canoe began to move through the water. After a protracted struggle the Englishman managed to get the crocodile within a few yards of the canoe. At one moment the open jaws would surge out of the broken water and snap together in unpleasant proximity to the men's legs; the next moment the heavy tail would swing free of the water and with the weight of a falling pole would hit the side of the canoe a blow that made it shiver.

As the crocodile surged close to the canoe and the open mouth appeared above the water the servant slipped a noose of stout cord over the upper jaw and pulled it tight some six inches behind the point of its nostrils. Then, with a quick turn of his wrist, he slipped the slack of the cord round under the lower jaw. He drew the cord tight, and the teeth of each jaw pressed home into the sockets of the other. The servant now grasped the point of the long, narrow head with one hand and with the other rapidly wound the cord round the clinched mouth.

Another noose was slipped over a fore leg. It pulled the leg up to the animal's side. The servant slipped the line over the creature's back and caught up the other fore leg. Then he noosed and tied together the hind legs.

The effect he had achieved was wonderful. In a few minutes he had transformed a ravening water devil into a trussed up mummy, and his only weapon had been three pieces of box cord.

The beast was afterward dispatched, and the servant received the government reward.—Harper's Weekly.

STOPPING A NOSEBLEED.

By This Method It Is Simply a Matter of Imagination.

In many experiments carried on during the last few years it has been ascertained that the mind controls to a wonderful extent the flow of blood to any particular part of the body. The following experiment has been tried as many as ten times by me and has not failed once.

When the nose starts to bleed, immediately persuade yourself to believe that you are running with all your might up the steepest flight of steps you can think of or up a high hill; that is, just think of doing either of these things and doing it fast. Think at the same time that you are carrying a heavy piece of baggage with both hands and add thoughts of any other bodily exertion. You will be surprised at the quickness with which your trouble ends.

The explanation is that when we really start to run more blood is given to the arteries supplying the muscles of the legs than they were receiving while at rest. This has been proved. As the same thoughts in the mind produce approximately the same bodily effects, if one merely thinks to run, but does not run, the blood will go to the legs anyhow and away from the head, as desired.

There are many common experiences of secretions started by thoughts. If one looks at a lemon and thinks of sucking it his mouth immediately waters, and I have no doubt that many people who read this will have their mouths watering from the simple reading.—Lawrence Hodges in Chicago Record-Herald.

A Bridge of Ants.

A species of ants which spin silk is common in hot countries. The ants nest in trees, binding the leaves together to make their nests. The silk used for this purpose is not secreted by the adult ants, but by the larvae. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together the ants must carry the larvae about from leaf to leaf. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable method is employed. Five or six ants form a chain bridging the gap between the leaves, each gripping the waist of another in its mandibles. A number of such chains will co-operate in bringing two leaves together.

A Legend of Lace.

According to Melchior de Vogue, the legend of lace is as follows: A Venetian sailor gave his ladylove a frond of spreading seaweed to keep him in memory while at sea. But the girl found that the seaweed was rapidly drying up and disappearing. So she caught the fine branches and leaves of the plant with threads against a piece of linen and, working on with her thoughts following her lover, invented lace.

Novel Arithmetic.

Teacher—How many are two and three make? Schoolboy—About forty. Teacher—Absurd! How do you make that out? Schoolboy—Well, dad went fishing last Sunday and caught two, [illegible] when my uncle asked him how many he caught he said, "About forty."

PREPARED FOR DEFEAT.

Precautions General Taylor Took Before Meeting Santa Anna.

Santa Anna was the greatest military leader the Mexicans have ever known. Santa Anna, with 25,000 veterans, went into the battle of Buena Vista with the avowed purpose of exterminating the entire army of the United States, and there was no doubt in the mind of Santa Anna that this great feat could be accomplished with comparative ease. General Taylor, with his 5,000 men, prepared for the unequal contest, and not only defended himself successfully, but won a substantial victory from his aggressive antagonists and drove them from the battlefield of Buena Vista.

Some time after the battle was fought and the Mexican war concluded General Taylor was criticised for having made no preparations for the retreat of his army in the event of defeat. General Taylor promptly replied: "I made every preparation necessary for the battle of Buena Vista. I wrote my will, and so did nearly every man in my army. If we had not won that battle we would have needed no lines of retreat. It was, from our standpoint, victory or annihilation. The only preparation necessary for the contingency of defeat at Buena Vista was that we should write our wills."

MAN AND THE WORLD.

A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.

How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shells of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

His Security.

When Eben Foster asked Squire Lane to lend him $200 to invest in the dry goods business the squire dryly inquired what Mr. Foster had to offer him in the way of security.

"Security?" said Eben, with an air of injured dignity. "Well, squire, I'll tell you what I have to offer—three solid silver teaspoons, a handsome brass warming pan, a pair of decalcomany vases, large size, and the material for as much as three feather beds, if not four, right on the backs o' my flock o' geese, an' five Plymouth Rock hens.

"You can call 'em all yours till I pay the money back, an' I'll take care of 'em for you free of charge. I don't know what anybody could want more'n that for security."—Youth's Companion.

The American Indian.

The old question of the origin of the red man of America is still an open one, the last word by no means having been said. The most probable theory is that which links the Indian with the Mongoloids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigine. Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprung. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking indeed.—New York American.

Logic of the Land.

A specimen of rustic reasoning which is too good to lose is recorded in Mr. R. L. Gales' "Studies In Arcady." "A barber," he says, "was telling me with great gusto how he had refuted an atheist. I inquired what arguments he had employed.

"'I asked the atheist,' said the barber, 'what portion of the Scriptures he based his ideas upon.'

"'What did he say to that?'

"'Never a word.'

"The defeat had been crushing and final."

Not Her Kind.

"Have you heard," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Grace Moneylove has married an octogenarian?"

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Justrich. "Is that so? Well, he may be all right, but I want to tell you I've never seen a man who wouldn't eat meat that I'd live with."—Judge.

PRESENCE OF MIND

May Make Heroes of Physical Cowards In Time of Danger.

NOT A MATTER OF COURAGE.

It Is the Sudden Impulse That Moves One to Do the Right Thing In an Unexpected Emergency—A Soldier and a Shell and a Man and a Murder.

There is a distinction to be drawn between presence of mind and courage. Persons who naturally are timid and nervous will in circumstances of great danger and excitement perform acts of heroism that would be beyond their powers on ordinary occasions. We speak of these as instances of presence of mind. But if you ask them they would tell you that an involuntary impulse rather than any premeditated course of action guided their will on the occasion. Had they time for reflection when all the threatening danger to themselves had become clear to their minds their natural timidity of character would have asserted itself and deprived them of action.

It is absence of fear that prompts the soldier under a heavy fire from the enemy's guns to go to the assistance of a wounded comrade and bring him to a place of safety, and nothing in human nature can compare with such self sacrifice. But in times of sudden emergency it is not always the bravest who act with promptitude. The following story is an instance of this:

One of our transports was returning from the Philippines with invalided men, and one morning at sea a group of officers on the deck discussed the subject of firing shells. A soldier was told by the colonel to bring an empty shell with a fuse. The colonel took the shell in his hands and, striking a match, lighted the fuse. As this slowly burned and the colonel proceeded with his address to the other officers another soldier passed the group, and the moment he caught sight of the shell he rushed forward, exclaiming, "Look out, sir; the shell is a live one!"

Then he did what never seemed to have come into the minds of any in the group of officers. He seized the shell out of the hands of the colonel and threw it into the sea. For this service he was promoted. The soldier who had been told to bring an empty shell had gone to the wrong magazine. Those who talked with the man touching this incident say that he repudiated any idea of having done a brave thing. "I don't know," he said, "what made me seize the shell out of the colonel's hand, but it came suddenly into my mind, and I did it." It is this wave of unconscious thought which constitutes true presence of mind. This will come to people of nervous and even cowardly natures.

There is of authentic record the case of a man known to be utterly deficient of courage who saved himself from a very awkward situation by an exhibition of real presence of mind. He was an Englishman and lived in a town in the midlands, where he was an organist. Late one evening he was returning home through some of the back streets, which at that hour were more or less empty of people. As he went along, however, he noticed some distance ahead of him a man and a woman walking side by side, the man's arm being around the woman's neck. Just under a street lamp the couple stopped for a moment, when the organist heard a piercing scream and saw the woman slowly falling from the man's arms. Almost before she had reached the ground the man darted away down a side street and disappeared.

When the organist came up to the woman he found, to his horror, that she was lying in a pool of blood. His first impulse was to run away and get clear of the terrible scene, but his better feelings prevailed, and he knelt down beside the poor woman to see if he could do anything for her. When he raised her head he found she was quite dead, with her throat cut from ear to ear. Beside her on the pavement lay a blood stained razor.

The organist was overwhelmed with horror. Before he could collect himself a group of people had gathered, and presently he heard expressions such as "He did it," "I tell you I saw him," "There is the razor," "The fiend! Where are the police?" "Hand him over!" It was certainly a very awkward position, as the rough character of the people might tempt them to take the law into their own hands and use him very badly. The arrival of a policeman seemed to steady his nerves for a moment, and then came a wave of inspiration that might truly be called presence of mind. He seized the dead woman's wrist and, pulling out his watch, went through the form of feeling her pulse. Then he put his hand over her heart and, turning to the policeman, said as calmly as he could: "I am sorry to say that I can be of no further service here. The poor woman is quite dead. There is no action in the heart or the pulse."

In an instant the murmurs of the crowd changed, and he heard "He's the doctor" on all sides. This was his opportunity, and, slowly rising and affecting to be in no hurry, he passed through the crowd, who made way for him. But when he got clear of the street and came to the first turning he took to his heels and ran for all he was worth. The cowardly spirit got the better of him in the end. He heard the next day that the murderer had gone straight to the police station and given himself up.—New York Press.

A ROYAL MYSTERY

One of the Legacies of the French Revolution.

FATE OF THE YOUNG DAUPHIN

Whether the Son of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette Was Murdered or Died or Was Spirited Away Is an Enigma Without a Solution.

Every healthy minded man or woman loves a mystery, and, fortunately for the world, history has provided one or two problems which have been worn threadbare without revealing their secrets. Among these is the fate of the nine-year-old son of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette, which Mme. Louise Latour recently dealt with in a lecture in London.

A child judicially murdered or else spirited away, another substituted for him to die and to be buried under a false name, the people who reported of these things silenced or poisoned, the period of events comparatively recent—the story sounds incredible, but it rests on a basis of established fact.

The dauphin, a delicate child of nine, was removed from his mother and friends and given to the care of Simon, the brutal savetier, and his wife. After this all remains obscure except that while the boy was in their care the Simons gave up their post—in itself rather strange, as it was a lucrative one—and on the day of the change of residence the substitution is supposed to have taken place. In the evening a child in bed was shown to the emissaries of the convention, and the next morning he was removed to a smaller room with the door nailed up, the only air coming in by the grille through which his food was passed. So he remained until he became so ill that Dr. Dessault, who had often been to Versailles in the old days, was summoned to attend him and was amazed to find a scrofulous and dying boy.

"Ce n'est pas le petit dauphin!" ("That is not the little Dauphin!") he blurted out imprudently, and a day or two later he died by poison.

Other doctors were brought who were unacquainted with the royal children, and the child died and was buried in his assumed character. He is generally supposed to have been a lad called Gombeau, and his mother was actually seen by people in America, where she admitted the wickedness of having sold her dying son when she was in a condition of extreme poverty.

La femme Simon talked, but her words were discredited by the authorities, who declared she was drunken and garrulous. Nevertheless, on her deathbed she confessed to a priest and a nurse that a substitute had been put in the dauphin's place.

Such are the historical facts as related by Mme. Latour, and to account for them two theories have been deduced, says a writer in the London Times. The first, in which Mme. Latour believes, was that the dauphin was judicially murdered by Simon in the temple and the dying Gombeau put in his place to hide the crime from the world. Of the second, that the child escaped alive from his prison, many people are strenuous supporters. Some of them describe the course of events thus: Gombeau was brought into the temple on the day of the demenagement in a large cardboard horse given ostensibly as a souvenir to the royal prisoner by the femme Simon, while the dauphin was carried out by the woman in a big basket of dirty linen. Others declare that the prince was actually kept hidden in a garret in the temple until the substitute died, more than a year later, when he was taken out in a coffin with a false bottom, the body of Gombeau being buried in the moat.

This theory has had two startling confirmations. A small coffin filled with paper and stones was actually found in the cemetery of La Madeleine, and General d'Andigne, imprisoned in the temple in 1801 and allowed to relieve the tedium of his confinement by gardening, was digging in the moat when he found the uncoffined skeleton of a child.

But, as Mme. Latour asked, if the dauphin escaped alive into the world, where did he go? No fewer than thirty pretenders, one a negro, at different times have declared themselves the son of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette. The two who attracted most disciples were the Duc de Richemont and "Naundorc." With regard to the latter, it was against him that he did not come forward until he was thirty years of age and he could not speak a word of French. Mme. Latour added that he married a middle class wife and was an excellent watchmaker, consequently unlike what the heir of a royal line ought to be. Obviously the speaker had forgotten Louis Seize and his passion for making and mending locks.

BLUNT ANDREW JACKSON.

"Old Hickory's" Caustic Advice to James Buchanan.

Stories of Andrew Jackson are likely to be pointed and to have a practical application, as do the stories told of Franklin. In Mr. J. W. Forney's "Anecdotes of Public Men" there is given a story as it was told by James Buchanan at his own table. Although it contained a reproof from the president to one who was to succeed him, it is said to have been a favorite story at that board.

Shortly after Mr. Buchanan's return from Russia in 1834, to the court of which country he had been sent by Jackson in 1832, and immediately following his election to the senate he called upon "Old Hickory," with a fair English lady whom he desired to present to the head of the American nation.

Leaving her in the reception room downstairs, he ascended to the president's private quarters, where he found General Jackson unshaved, unkempt, in his dressing gown, with his slippered feet on the fender, before a blazing wood fire, smoking a corncob pipe of the old southern pattern.

He stated his object, and General Jackson said that he would be very glad to meet the lady whom Mr. Buchanan desired to present.

Mr. Buchanan was always careful of his personal appearance and in some respects was a sort of masculine Miss Fribbe, addicted to spotless cravats and huge collars, rather proud of a foot small for a man of his large stature and to the last of his life what the ladies would call "a very good figure."

Having just returned from a visit to the fashionable circles of the continent after years of thorough intercourse with the etiquette of one of the stateliest courts in Europe, he was somewhat shocked at the idea of the president meeting the eminent English lady in such a guise and ventured to ask if General Jackson did not intend to change his attire. Thereupon the old warrior rose, with his long pipe in his hand, and, deliberately knocking the ashes out of the bowl, said to his friend:

"Buchanan, I want to give you a little piece of advice, which I hope you will remember. I knew a man once who made a fortune by attending to his own business. Tell the lady I will see her presently."

The man who became president in 1857 was fond of saying that this remark of Andrew Jackson humiliated him more than any other rebuke he had ever received.

He walked downstairs to meet the lady in his charge, and in a very short time President Jackson entered the room, dressed in a full suit of black, cleanly shaved, with his stubborn white hair forced back from his forehead, and, advancing to the beautiful visitor, he greeted her with almost kingly grace.

As she left the White House she said to her escort, "Your republican president is the royal model of a gentleman."

Napoleon's Tribute to Frederick.

When, after the battle of Jena, Napoleon invaded Prussia he visited Potsdam, which contains the mortal remains of the Prussian kings. The sepulcher of Frederick the Great occupied a prominent site in the mausoleum. When entering the latter Napoleon uncovered his head and went directly up to the sarcophagus of the noted warrior. For a moment the conqueror stood still, seemingly absorbed in deep thought. Then with the forefinger of his right hand he wrote the word "Napoleon" in the dust of the huge stone casket and, turning to his marshals, said:

"Gentlemen, if he were living I would not be here."

A Joke That Failed.

Once when Henrik Ibsen was engaged in writing a play he by chance dropped a scrap of paper on which were the words, "the doctor says."

Mrs. Ibsen determined to have a joke and one day casually remarked: "Who is that doctor in your new play? I suppose he'll say some interesting things?"

Ibsen at first was silent with astonishment. Then he broke out into a fit of rage, full of reproaches for her spying.

Tenuity.

The convivial boarder as he sat down explained that if anybody present noticed an odor of cloves it was due to his having been trying to relieve a toothache.

AN ELUSIVE BONE.

Luz Is Said to Be Indestructible, but It Is Hard to Locate.

Much scholarship and anatomical knowledge have been employed from time to time in efforts to identify the bone luz, said by ancient Hebrew writers to be the nucleus from which the body is reconstructed at the resurrection. There are many marvelous stories of the indestructibility of luz, and the bone has been located by rival claimants to the honor of discovering it in various parts of the human skeleton.

The most careful searching of the last published and amplest treatise on osteology will not result in the discovery of the bone called luz. It will be necessary to go to the Frankfort edition of the "Theatrum Anatomicum" of Caspar Bauhinus (1621), for a description: "It is stated by Hebrew writers to be a bone which cannot be destroyed by fire, water or any other element, nor be broken or bruised by any force. Its site is in the spine from the eighteenth vertebra to the femur.

"We read that the Emperor Hadrian once asked Rabbi Joshua, the son of Chanm, how God would resurrect man in the world to come. He made answer, 'From the bone luz in the spinal column.' When Hadrian asked him how he came by this knowledge and how he could prove it the Rabbi Joshua produced the bone so that the emperor could see it. When placed in water it could not be softened; it was not destroyed by fire, nor could it be ground by any weight; when placed on an anvil and struck with a hammer the anvil was broken in sunder, but the bone remained intact." Hieronymus Magius represents that, according to the Talmudists, the real bone is near the base of the skull, whether it be in the base itself or in the spine. Vesalius writes that this ossicle is described by the Arabs as resembling a chick pea in size and shape, and Cornelius Agrippa describes it as "magnitudine ciceris mundati" (the size of a shelled pea). Different anatomists have held it variously to be the sacrum, the coccyx, the twelfth dorsal vertebra, one of the Wormian bones in the skull and one of the sesamoids of the great toe.—London Lancet.

LIFE OF THE WORLD.

Traditions That It Will Last Only Six Thousand Years.

There is a general and widespread notion, which the curious investigator will find scattered throughout both medieval and modern literature, that the world will last 6,000 years from the date of its creation. An inscription in one of Martin Luther's books reads as follows: "Elijah, the prophet, said that the world had existed 2,000 years before the law was given (from Adam to Moses), would exist 2,000 years under the Mosaic law (from Moses to Christ) and 2,000 years under the Christian dispensation, and then it would be burned."

In the Etrurian account of the creation (by Suidas) there is a similar tradition, "The Creator spent 6,000 years in creation, and 6,000 more are allotted to the earth."

In the black letter edition of Foxe's "Acts and Monuments" (1632) there is a whole sermon given with the 6,000 year limit of the earth's duration as a text.

Some writers contend that the "six days" referred to in Holy Writ really mean 6,000 years and that the "seventh day" is a type of the coming millennium, or "Sabbath of a thousand years." The psalmist says, "For a thousand years are in thy sight as yesterday" (Psalm xc, 4. See also II Peter iii, 8).

A Change of Venue.

"I never was so surprised in my life as when I heard that County Treasurer Bilkes had absconded with $30,000 of the county money," said Blithers. "When he was nominated it struck me it was a perfect case of the office seeking the man."

CORSICAN CRUELTY.

It Loomed Up Large In Napoleon's Treatment of Children.

Napoleon had a singular rage for pulling children's ears, sometimes so hard as to make the poor children cry. Caroline was very vexed when she saw her little Achille the victim of his uncle's caresses, and more than once her son's tears made her weep too.

One day the First Consul, pulling the ears of the little fellow, hurt him, and he cried out. To teach him not to cry his uncle pulled his ear again, harder. Achille, having freed himself, came back to him in a fury and, raising his little fist, shouted:

"You are a villain, a wicked, wicked villain!"

To prove the contrary Napoleon should have embraced his nephew and made him forget the pain he had gratuitously inflicted by some show of affection. But tenderness was not in his character. Corsicans scarcely know what it means, and, though Napoleon used to say, "I am less of a Corsican than one thinks," he was really more so than any one or he himself thought. Instead of quieting his nephew he became angry and gave him a violent slap on the face. The child ran weeping to his Uncle Lucien, who was present, while Mme. Murat was so upset that she was taken ill, "from the effort," says Lucien, who relates this episode, "she made to control her feelings, which such violence to her child outraged. As for the First Consul, he left the room, shrugging his shoulders and slamming the door and saying that Caroline had always been an affected creature and acted like all parents who spoiled their children." — Turquan's "Sisters of Napoleon."

Old Time Smallpox Cure.

To cure smallpox was apparently a very simple matter in the good old times. John of Gaddesden, court doctor to Edward II., has recorded that he got rid of the disease by the simple expedient of wrapping his patients in red cloth.

"Let scarlet red be taken," he says, "and let him who is suffering smallpox be entirely wrapped in it or in some other red cloth. I did this when the son of the illustrious king of England suffered from smallpox. I took care that all about his bed should be red, and that cure succeeded very well."—London Chronicle.

WOMAN AND WOE.

Old Age In India Invariably Blends the Two Into One.

"I have seen women under a burning midday sun reaping in the fields," says a writer on India; "I have seen them at roadmaking in the streets of cities; I have seen them loading engines with coal at railway stations; I have seen them in long procession on the white roads of the plains carrying great burdens on their heads like a string of camels. And I have seen also in the eyes of every old woman whom I have encountered, every one of them, such misery, adversity and angry bitterness as seemed to curse the very air of heaven. I have not seen one happy old woman in the whole country.

"Women follow through the village like a dog at the husband's heel. Maternity is no excuse for the task in the field and the duties of the house. They are servants without wages and without liberty to select another master. Before them is perpetual servitude, and if they are so abandoned by the gods as to reach old age their certain destiny is misery, dejection, friendliness and black despair. I never knew all the meaning of the word woe until I looked into the face of an old woman under an Asian sky.

"The women folk of the upper classes in India, speaking generally, are more the prisoners of their husbands than the women of the helot castes. They do not labor except in cooking and serving the meals of their husbands, but they are cut off from the world as completely as a nun; they do not even know, in many cases, the male relations of their husbands. They are little more than caged animals taught to do a few household tricks."—Chicago News.

The Importance of the Beard.

The importance of the beard was fully recognized in the middle ages. Here is a passage (quoted by J. A. F. Orbaan in "Sixtine Rome") from a letter of the writer, Bartolomeo Catena: "It is well that those who have to lead and govern should have a long and fine beard. And I can assure you that the government of cities and provinces has been given to more than one prelate because he had a long and fine beard; otherwise he were not worthy that honor."

COOKING A HEDGEHOG.

Bake It In Clay Into a Solid Mass and Carve It With an Ax.

When a Maine Indian has the choice of a hedgehog, a skunk, a woodchuck and a muskrat for dinner he will select the first named invariably and take the skunk as second choice, leaving the woodchuck, which is the only one of the lot a Maine white man will taste, to the last. Unlike the skunk and the woodchuck, which are lean and unsavory except for a few months in the fall, or the muskrat, which is never fat and which has a strong flavor in spite of parboiling, the hedgehog is always in edible condition and has meat that is as tender and white as that of a spring chicken.

The method of cooking a hedgehog is so simple that a novice can learn in one short lesson. When the epicure is permitted to make a choice he should shun the large old males, which at times weigh thirty or forty pounds. The preparation consists in removing the viscera, washing out the interior and filling the cavity with slices of fat pork, peeled raw potatoes, sprigs of spearmint and wild celery from the brook.

Then, without removing the quills or skinning, the body is plastered thickly with wet clay from the nearest bank. The muddy, bulky mass is thrust into live coals and covered with blazing fagots to be roasted for two hours.

On removal from the coals, the clay is found to have been baked into a hard and solid mass, which must be broken open with an ax or a heavy stone, whereupon the skin and quills of the animal cling to the clay wrapping and fall away, leaving the clean white meat ready to be eaten.—New York Herald.

BONES OF THE EAR.

The Little Stirrup When Displaced Causes Noises in the Head.

Vibrations of the eardrum are communicated to the inner ear by means of three exceedingly small bones, one of which is called the stirrup. When this particular little bone is displaced, however slightly, the patient hears sounds which are subjective, or, to use plainer terms, noises confined exclusively to the auditory apparatus and not heard by others. These sounds frequently seem like wind whistling through a crevice or a buzzing such as one hears when passing under a network of wires on a windy day. Other sounds of similar subjective origin are classified as musical. They take the form of ringing bells, trumpet blasts, organ notes and the piping of birds. Still another form conveys to the patient sounds such as frogs make as they sit on logs and like the shouts of a crowd at a baseball game.

Dr. Marage, a famous French aurist, recently laid before the Academy of Sciences in Paris the results of his study of a thousand cases of this general sort. He has found that the nerves of the ear in certain cases maintained the conducting position which they assumed when they transmitted the sound of a ringing bell or like sound, and, like an electric button out of position, kept the bell vibrations from being interrupted. Other sounds were produced by the persistent excitation of the auditory nerve centers. High frequency electrical currents and vibratory massage have been used by leading specialists in the treatment of ear troubles in these several conditions, and the results have been encouraging.—New York World.

Wrong End First.

An old Indiana justice of the peace, after listening for two long days to the evidence pro and con in a criminal case, wound up his decision upon the conflicting testimony by saying that he had grave doubts as to the guilt of the prisoner, but, whereas when a law student he had read in Blackstone that it was better that ninety-nine innocent men should be punished than that one guilty man should escape, therefore he would find the prisoner guilty.—Hilton's "Funny Side of Politics."

Clasp Tails as They Pass.

Among the peculiarly tailed fishes the sea horses are alone in having the tail prehensile. With it they anchor themselves to seaweed and other things in strong currents, for they are poor swimmers. As two of these interesting creatures meet they may clasp tails for a moment and then pass on, as if they had wished each other well.—London Spectator.

Dr. William Bulleyn, of the same family as the unfortunate Anne Boleyn, was a contemporary of Sydney, Raleigh, Drake, Hawkins, Granville, Spenser and the rest of that famous galaxy that illuminated the Elizabethan era. The leading physician of his day, he took great interest in vegetable remedies, and his "Book of Simples" was an honored authority for generations. He recommends the free use of sage tea and of figs, saying: "Figges be good against melancholy and the falling evil (epilepsy) to be eaten. Figges, nuts and herbe grace do make a sufficient medicine against poison or the pestilence. Figges make a good gargarism to cleanse the throat."—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Not Loaded.

No other language under the sun is open to so many interpretations as the English language, as witness the conversation between two Sharon Hill girls the other evening:

"Oh, May," said the first one, "Jim and Bill tried to fight a duel over me."

"How romantic! What happened?"

"It was terrible. I came into the room, and those foolish boys were pointing big pistols at each other!"

"Pistols? Heavens! Were they loaded?"

"Not a bit. That is just what made it really very serious. They both were sober."—Philadelphia Times.

BREN OUT ON BAIL

TANGLE INVOLVED IN LOSS OF "U" FUNDS DEVELOPES STRICT PROBE.

EXAMINING HIS ACCOUNTS

Woman Named in Case Tells of Acquaintance With Prisoner.—Expert Accountant at Work.

Minneapolis. — For over five hours Joseph D. Bren, the imprisoned treasurer of the University of Minnesota, whose arrest followed his story of being held up and robbed of $15,000 of students' money near the campus, was closeted with Frank N. Stacy, deputy state bank examiner, at Central police station.

Stoutly declaring his innocence of any misapplication of funds and firmly defending the name of Mrs. Maud Eddington, who possessed a key and shared his personal safety deposit box, Bren told Mr. Stacy of the manner of accounting the university's finances, of the origination and management of the several funds, of the checking systems he used and of the authority he had for the use of a deposit vault at the bank.

A Second Investigation.

A second investigation of Bren's accounts, brought on by the startling events of the last few days, was announced when Prof. James Paige said that it had been decided by the legal committee of the Athletic Board of Control, of which he is chairman, to submit the accounts of the Athletic association to examination by an expert accountant, "as a matter of business policy." Mr. Bren is treasurer of these funds under a bond of $20,000, in addition to the $50,000 under which his faithfulness and integrity is bonded to the university.

Deputy Public Examiners, Stacy and Cederberg are working on the university books, materially aided by the pointers which Mr. Bren gave out from his cell and which Mr. Stacy carefully noted. Bren also gave an account of the contents of his private deposit box at the Northwestern National bank and also the contents of the university box. He said that only one box is being used by the university at present.

The police have maintained all along that Bren admited to them that he had often kept university funds in his personal box and that some reposed there at present.

Association Funds Separate.

Prof. Paige stated that the cash of the athletic association, which is also handled by Bren, had been examined every year by accountants employed especially for that purpose by the association and who work entirely separate from the public examiner who inspects the university books. On the last examination of these books and funds, February 11 last, accountants for Marwick, Mitchell & Co. found that a balance of $42,257.67 was on hand.

Detective Broderick filed charges of grand larceny against Bren. He was released on $2,500 bond, signed by Frank Bren, his father, and Samuel A. Bren, his brother, both of Hopkins.

MINN. CROP REPORT SHOWS GREAT GAIN

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT IS ISSUED BY DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

ON MINNESOTA GRAIN STATISTICS

Cereal Acreage Less Than Formerly. —Value of Wheat Crop for 1909 Over Fifty-six Millions.

Washington, June 7.—Statistics relative to the leading crops for the state of Minnesota collected at the thirteenth decennial census, April 15, 1910, are contained in an official statement issued by Acting Census Director Falkner. It is based on tabular summaries prepared under the direction of Dr. Le Grand Powers, chief statistician for agriculture, in the bureau of the census.

The figures are preliminary and subject to slight revision later, when a few other farms, whose returns are now incomplete, are included in the final tables. It is not expected that these additions will materially modify the amounts or rates given in the present statement. The leading crops in 1909, ranked in the order of valuation, were: Wheat, $56,009,000; oats, $34,020,000; corn, $30,451,000; hay and forage, $26,724,000; barley, $17,215,000; potatoes, $7,707,000; flaxseed, $4,861,000, and rye, $2,680,000.

Acreage Falls Off.

From 6,560,707 acres in 1899 the wheat acreage fell off in 1909 to 3,277,039 acres, a decrease of 50 per cent. Prior to 1909 each census showed an increase. In 1879 the wheat acreage was 3,044,570 and in 1889, 3,372,627. Hence at the present time the wheat acreage is less than it was twenty years ago, but slightly more than it was thirty years ago.

In 1899 wheat had an acreage larger than that of all other cereals combined, while in 1909 it exceeded the acreage in oats by less than 10 per cent. The yield of wheat per acre was reported as seventeen bushels, the value an acre $17.10.

From 1899 to 1909 the acreage in oats increased from 2,201,325 acres to 2,977,264, or 35.2 per cent. During the preceding decade the increase was 39.4 per cent. Since 1879 the increase in acreage has been constant. From 617,469 acres in that year it rose to 1,579,258 in 1889 and again to 2,201,325 in 1899. The aggregate yield in 1909 was 93,885,164 bushels; the average yield per acre, 32 bushels; the average value per acre, $11.40.

Corn Acreage Increases.

From 1899 to 1909 the acreage of corn increased from 1,441,580 acres to 2,004,107, or 39 per cent as compared to an increase of 59.9 per cent during the 10 years preceding. Corn average has inceased steadily, but not so rapidly as that of oats. From 438,737 acres in 1879 it advanced to 901,690 in 1889, and then to 1,441,580 in 1899. The total yield in 1909 was 67,777,912 bushels; the average yield per acre, 34 bushels; the average value per acre, $15.20.

The acreage devoted to hay and forage in 1909 was 3,944,422. It has been constantly increasing. With 1,053,378 acres in 1879 it rose to 2,709,191 in 1889 and 3,157,690 in 1899. The increase since 1899 has been 24.9 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 6,041,883 tons; the average yield per acre, 1.5 tons; the average value per acre, $6.80.

From 1899 to 1909 the acreage in barley increased from 877,854 acres to 1,573,836, or 79.3 per cent. Since 1879, when 116,020 acres were harvested, this crop has multiplied more than thirteenfold. In 1899 there were 258,510 acres in barley and in 1899 877,845, the increase in the last 10 years being most conspicuous. During the decade preceding 1899 barley increased 144.9 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 34,928,545 bushels; the average yield an acre, 22 bushels; the average value an acre, $10.90.

From 1899 to 1909 potatoes increased in acreage from 146,659 to 230,713 acres, or 57.3 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 26,803,145 bushels; the average yield an acre 116 bushels; the average value an acre, $33.40.

From 1899 to 1909 the acreage of flaxseed increased from 566,801 acres to 358,565, or 36.7 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 3,278,000 bushels; the average yield an acre, 9 bushels; the average value an acre, $13.60.

From 1899 to 1909 the acreage of rye increased from 118,869 acres to 266,604, or 124.3 per cent. The figures for 1899 had indicated an increase of 56,000 acres, or 89.1 per cent over those of 1899. The total yield in 1909 was 4,426,208 bushels; the average yield an acre, 17 bushels; the average value an acre, $10.05.

The cereals had an aggregate acreage of 10,140,389 acres in 1909, as against 11,207,026 in 1899, a decrease of 1,066,637 acres, or 9.5 per cent. There was, however, an increase in total yield of these crops of 16,167,103 bushels. The average value of cereals an acre in 1909 was $13.90, a little over twice that of hay and forage. Wheat shows the highest average value per acre of the cereals; buckwheat the lowest. Of the hay and forage crops, alfalfa is well above the rest in average value an acre. There are but a small number of miscellaneous crops, though the average values per acre of several of them are well above those of the more usual crops.

Minneapolis, Minn. — Joseph D. Bren, treasurer, accountant and cashier of the University of Minnesota, who reported he had been held up and robbed in a ravine near the campus of $13,000 belonging to students, occupies a cell in Central police station.

Mrs. Maud Eddington, 2903 Third avenue south, whom the police say has admitted she promised Mrs. Bren she would have nothing to do with the cashier, has turned over to the police a key to Bren's personal safety deposit vault in the Northwestern National bank. And They Adjourned.

The Mutual Admiration society met and was called to order.

"What of all the things in this world do you like best?" asked the girl, angling for a compliment.

"Beefsteak!" cried he, taken unawares, and a moment later the society adjourned.

Hugging a "Lamb."

Parson Johnson had been caught hugging one of the finest "ewe" lambs of the congregation who happened to be a very popular young lady and it created quite a stir in the church. So "Brudder Johnson" was brought for trial.

"You have seen these great pictures, I suppose, so you know dat de great Sheperd am always pictured wid a lamb in his arms," said "Brudder" Johnson.

"Yes, sah, pahson, dat am so," admitted Deacon Jones.

"Den, Brudder Jones, what am wrong in de sheperd of this flock having a lamb in his arms?"

This was too much for Brudder Jones, so he proposed that the people have a called meeting that afternoon. After the point was discussed at the afternoon meeting the following resolution was made:

"Resolved, Dat for the future peace of this congregation, dat de next time Brudder Johnson feels called on to take a lamb ob de flock in his arms, that he pick out a ram-lamb."

BUSINESS WOMEN
A Lunch Fit for a King.

An active and successful young lady tells her food experience:

"Some years ago I suffered from nervous prostration, induced by continuous brain strain and improper food, added to a great grief.

"I was ordered to give up my work, as there was great danger of my mind failing me altogether. My stomach was in bad condition (nervous dyspepsia, I think now) and when Grape-Nuts food was recommended to me, I had no faith in it. However, I tried it, and soon there was a marked improvement in my condition.

"I had been troubled with faint spells, and had used a stimulant to revive me. I found that by eating Grape-Nuts at such times I was relieved and suffered no bad effects, which was a great gain. As to my other troubles—nervous prostration, dyspepsia, etc.—on the Grape-Nuts diet they soon disappeared.

"I wish especially to call the attention of office girls to the great benefit I derived from the use of Grape-Nuts as a noon luncheon. I was thoroughly tired of cheap restaurants and ordinary lunches, and so made the experiment of taking a package of Grape-Nuts food with me, and then slipping out at noon and getting a nickel's worth of sweet cream to add to it.

"I found that this simple dish, finished off with an apple, peach, orange, or a bunch of grapes made a lunch fit for a king, and one that agreed with me perfectly.

"I throve so on my Grape-Nuts diet that I did not have to give up my work at all, and in the two years have had only four lost days charged up against me.

"Let me add that your suggestions in the little book, 'Road to Wellville,' are, in my opinion, invaluable, especially to women." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Teachers' Training School

The teachers' training school, which will be held at the state school of agriculture, Crookston, opens for a six weeks' session Monday, June 19. Besides the regular branches, the instructors of the school will give work in agriculture, horticulture, dairying and live stock, poultry, gardening, cooking, sewing, and manual training. A faculty, numbering twelve, will teach the various branches

The full equipment of the school will be used and teachers will receive great benefit from this opportunity. There will be only one school similar to this one in the state. The teachers of northwestern Minnesota are fortunate in being near this one.

Teachers will live in the dormitories, paying $3 a week for board, light and lodging. Prominent lecturers have been secured and a very instructive session will be held. Any one interested may secure a bulletin giving complete information by writing to the school of agriculture, Crookston, Minnesota. Tuition is free to all teachers or prospective teachers.

A Fruitful Platfrom

The resolutions of the Northern Minnesota Development association are always full of meat. They are always practical and concern themselves with live questions of vital importance to the people of its territory in their every day life.

Neither are they adopted as a matter of course. They do not come ready made in the pocket of some delegate having been written by a select circle of slate-makers. They are built up as all such platforms should be, by the delegates.

The busiest members at the meetings are those of the resolutions committee It is subdivided into sections to consider various subjects. These meet, receive suggestions and hear arguments pro and con. Some of these sessions are very live affairs, as in the final meeting of the committee as a whole.

At this session there was a distinct advance in the recommendation and appointment of a comittee to take up the formation of an immigration bureau to work in harmony with with the state department. This is a practical work that, if carried out, will be of immense benefit,

Possibly the Wisconsin plan will be adopted. There the owers or agents of 5,000,000 acres of land have been organized and have subscribed a fund made up from an assessment of one cent an acre. This makes a total of $50,000, paid as it is needed.

With this a regular corps of lecturers and agents is maintained. A subheadquarters has been opened at Chicago; lists of possible settlers are secured; correspondence is opened; literature is sent out and all those who are subscribers to the fund are kept in touch with inquiries.

The association will have the experience of Wisconsin to guide it, and close relations, a harmony of effort, if not actual amalgamation, can be effect to the advantage of both. The character of the territory in the two states is practically identical, and the inducements for settlement are much the same.

The association will have influence and permanency, just as it continues to exclude politics and to do what is recognized to be of actual benefit. It has stuck close to its original program and is growing stronger and will grow stronger as it continues to do so.—Duluth News Tribune.

Consolidation of Schools

The Holmburg law, passed by the legislature of Minnesota at its last session, apparently places it within the power of every fairly well-populated township to maintain a graded school "as good as any in town." Such a school is created by consolidating a number of districts and uniting their resources for the support of one first-class school, which supersedes from one to four or more of the little one-room schools: children living at a distance being transported in special wagons to and from school. As an inducement to such consolidation, the Holmburg law provides state aid to the amount of from $750 to $1500 a year, in addition to the amount regularly apportioned from the state fund It also provides for a contribution from the State not exceeding $1500 or one-fourth of the cost toward the erection of a consolidated school building.—University Farm Press News.

The Storm

The electrical storm which prevailed here Wednesday evening was very general throughout the northwest and much damage is reported from every direction. The rain fell in torrents and streets and basements were flooded with water, the cement sidewalks blocking the natural drainage.

The barn near the creamery, owned by A. S. Wilson, was struck by lightning and completely destroyed, together with its contents, including two teams, one a fine driving team and the other a heavy draft team, one cow, two sets of harness, and a quantity of baled hay. The fire had made such headway when discovered that it was impossible to rescue the animals.

The front of the Skeie building, occupied by Henry Goergen as a warehouse, was struck but no great damage resulted.

Charles Erickson's barn, five miles northeast of town, was burned, with its contents, including some young stock and chickens.

A man and boy were killed by lightning near Warren, and the electric light plants at Grand Forks and East Grand Forks were struck.

Just for tonight.

The unsophisticated score keeper has forgotten that "discretion is the better part of valor" and has jumped into print with an assemblage of mistaken ideas porporting to be a write up of a ball game and a few wrongly interpreted historical facts so put together as to form a spattering of splattered English that is realy amusing if nothing else.

If said delirium had been written after the excitement of the game had had its demoralizing effect, some excuse could be readily provided for the score keeper author but as it was written before so comes the excuse for getting barbers and buttermakers who did not play, balled up with doctors, dentists and watermarkers. Best known however that doctors, dentists and watermarkers have no use for bats in performing surgical operations, pulling teeth, etc., but can only use them to club the mistaken ideas out of juvenile score keepers who let a minor pastime so disturb them that they get the score wrong and forget the material aid afforded the Gophers by outside forces. We will now rise in our pews and sing No. 18 on page 23 for the closing number, as a tribute to our silent scorekeeper-author.

KEEP FEEDING PAILS CLEAN

Farmers Do Not Pay Enough Attention to Sanitary Condition of Vessels Used for Feed.

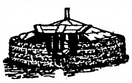
(By M. J. THOMPSON.)

One of our institute lecturers told us last winter that we ought to rinse out the pails after feeding the hogs, every time. This seemed to me rather far fetched at the moment, but the more I think of it the more I believe he is right. We do not pay enough attention to the sanitary condition of the vessels in which milk and other feed for the hogs is kept. The hog is a cleanly animal when it can be, and more than that pork is made for men, women and children to eat. It should be as sweet as possible and free from any disease producing element. It cannot be if we feed the hogs from vessels that contain left over feed that has become sour and rancid from heat and exposure to the air. We sold 14 pigs that averaged 170 pounds to the local butcher last winter and when he came out to look them over he remarked that they were the cleanest lot of pigs he had bought for months. He also complimented us on the clean feeding pens and their surroundings, and taking advantage of his evident satisfaction we had no trouble in getting a nice toppy price for the lot.

MAKE CONCRETE WATER TANK

One in Use at the Michigan Agricultural College Is Made of Ordinary Hollow Blocks.

To water the large herd of stock kept by the Michigan agricultural college a big concrete water tank was built. This is made out of ordinary hollow concrete blocks of standard size, which were cast for a silo. They are well cemented on the inside to make the tank waterproof, says the Farm and Home.



Water Tank for Stock Farm.

A novel arrangement on the tank is a device for heating the water in winter. A 12-inch tile extends to the center of the tank, while a 4-inch pipe leading up from this furnishes the necessary flue. A grate is fitted in the tile to allow for a suitable draft, and in the door which closes it is an opening which can be opened or shut at will. The braces which hold the top in place also serve to support the hinged doors, which are closed down in cold weather.

ODD FUNCTION OF HOG'S LEG

Escape Pipes for Discharge of Waste Matter Not Used in Economy of Body Placed There.

The hog's legs perform a function not known to any other animal, and that is an escape pipe or pipes for the discharge of waste matter or sweat not used in the economy of the body. These pipes are situated upon the inside of the legs, above and below the knees in the forelegs and above the gambrel joints in the hind legs, but in the latter they are very small and the functions are light. Upon the inside of the forelegs they are, in the healthy hog, always active, so that moisture is always there about and below these orifices or ducts in the healthy hog. The holes in the legs and breathing in the hog are his principal and only means of ejecting an excess of heat above normal, and when very warm the hog will open the mouth and breathe through that channel as well as the nostrils. The horse can perspire through all the pores of its body, such as a man, and cattle do the same to a limited extent, but the hog never. His escape valves are confined to the orifices upon the inside of his legs. People often wonder why it is that the hog dies so suddenly when he runs rapidly or takes quick and violent exercise by fighting. But when you consider the few escape pipes, their small capacity and remoteness from the cavity where the heat is generated, the wonder is not that he dies quickly when overheated, but that he lives as long as he does when heated up.

Well Cured Hams and Bacon.

The men who are curing hams and bacon as their grandfathers did without the use of injurious chemicals are making big money.

These men find ready sale at full retail prices for all the hams, shoulders and bacons they can supply to private customers.

It is a fact that most of the ham that is now sold in the city markets stiffens and becomes as hard and unyielding as an oak plank as soon as it becomes hot on the broiler or the skillet. This is due to improper curing.

Ration for Lambing Ewes.

For pregnant ewes there is nothing better than good oats. In making up a ration, barley, oats and corn alone will do, when bean pods can be also fed twice daily.

It is a common error among farmers to neglect the ewes after the mating period, and to allow them to become reduced in flesh. The flesh condition of the ewe has a marked effect on her offspring. Improper feeding during the winter months is often the cause of weak and sickly lambs in the spring.

[illegible]

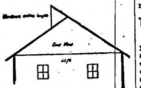
Usually Preceded by Bunch Coming on Top Where Collar Fits—Should Be Treated at Once.

A sore neck is usually preceded by a bunch coming on the top of the neck where the collar comes. If this is left and the horse worked it soon becomes a deep-seated sore, causing no end of trouble. If this bunch is noticed the first day it appears it can be entirely removed and the horse worked continually, if the lump is treated with oil of spike every night and morning. It pays to look after the welfare of the horse, as he is our main dependence during the rushing work of summer, and a horse with a sore neck cannot do his work easily nor as satisfactorily as though he were sound. It never pays to overdo a horse when the weather is excessively warm, as he is almost sure to get sore shoulders or a sore neck, no matter how well his collar fits, if his blood gets overheated. It will often pay to give a horse a pail of water between meals in very warm weather. It may mean some work; but it will pay in the long run to not neglect anything that will add to the comfort of the hard-worked animal.

PRACTICAL HOG HOUSE PLAN

Partitions Between Pens Made Removable So That Two or More Can Be Made Into One.

The following plan for a hog house and the accompanying illustration was submitted to the Homestead by Mr. Martin N. Hansom, Iowa county, Wisconsin. The building is 22x36x7, outside walls constructed of brick (double wall), partitions made of planks fastened to 2x4s and 4x4s. Partitions between the pens to be removable so that with little work two or more pens can be made into one. The size of each pen is 6x8, all doors one row on wall, one window for each pen on south side and a continuous row of two feet high window sashes on south pitch of roof, the rafters on the north side to be sufficiently long to project far enough to allow room for windows between edge and south slope of roof; about two windows on each end of house.



End View.

It will be best for the doors to be made so as to slide in through center of wall except the doors leading to alley, which will be hung on hinges. The building should run east and west with windows on south side;

Floor Plan.

Ram Should Be Well Covered.

Never buy a ram whose wool is scanty on the belly and legs. He should be well covered and the fleece should be uniform.

Sheep Need Attention.

No use to buy pure-bred sheep if they are to be allowed to starve and rustle around for themselves. A scrub will do better under such conditions.

Feed for Young Pigs.

Highly concentrated food should be avoided when the pigs are young and ruminating feed should be fed that will build for bone and muscle.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

A dairy farm of a dozen cows can maintain a flock of 15 or 20 sheep almost without expense.

The real value of a sheep cannot be determined, particularly as a breeder, until it is one year of age.

It is common sense that a mature sow will produce larger and more perfect pigs than a very young one.

Horses that are clipped dry off fast at night, which is to be preferred to standing in a heavy wet coat of hair.

Do not attempt to raise fall pigs without having first prepared a perfect system of housing for the winter.

If a ewe keeps her lamb in fine fat condition up to the time of weaning, be sure she is a good mother, and keep her.

Free range for hogs does not mean that they should be allowed to run in the highways and through the neighbors' fences.

If English farmers can afford to use pure bred draft horses that are worth $500 for ordinary farming operations why cannot our farmers afford them as well?

Spring pigs can get along very well without shelter except from rain until fall, then if you are so shiftless as to fail to provide shelter they are better able to stand cold and rain.

THREE CURED OF ECZEMA

"When a child, I suffered eight years with eczema. I could not sleep at night, and had sores all over my chest. We had doctors and none could do any good, until my mother saw the advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies in the paper. We used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, and they cured me of eczema. I also used them on my five children. Two of them had eczema very badly. When my children had eczema, I was not worried at all, as I knew the Cuticura Remedies would do their work. They had sores all over their heads, their hair would fall out, and they would scratch all night and day. They had it on their heads, face, and in back of the ears so that I thought their ears would drop off. I washed their heads and bodies with Cuticura Soap and they are as clean as the driven snow. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also cured my children of ringworm. I would not be without the Cuticura Remedies. They are wonderful." (Signed) Mrs. Violet Cole, 26 S. Redfield St., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29, 1910.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., Boston, for free book on skin and scalp diseases and their treatment.

Dragging Their Hosiery.

Little Arlene was familiar with the appearance of the garden hose at home, but when she observed a line of fire hose, with its great length and bulk lying serpent-like in the street, she emmediately inquired what it was. Her mother replied that was firemen's hose, and the child went on watching the fire.

In the meantime two additional fire companies dashed up, and these newly arrived fire fighters were carrying their respective lines toward the burning building, when little Arlene spied them.

"Oh, mamma," she cried, craning her neck out of the crowd, "here comes more firemen dragging their hosiery behind them!"—Lippincott's.

The Second Dimension.

It was on a little branch railway in a southern state that the New England woman ventured to refer to the high rates. "It seems to me five cents a mile is extortion," she said, with frankness, to her southern cousin.

"It's a big lot of money to pay if you think of it by the mile," said the southerner, in her soft drawl; "but you just think how cheap it is by the hour, Cousin Annie—only about thirty-five cents."—Youth's Companion.

STEPHENSON HIT

RESOLUTION PASSED ASKING U. S. SENATE TO INVESTIGATE LUMBERMAN'S ELECTION.

BRIBERY CHARGE IS MADE

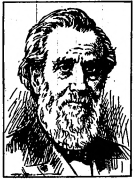
Assembly Is Expected to Concur in the Matter About Middle of the Week —His Friends Make no Fight.

Madison, Wis. — The Wisconsin senate adopted a resolution declaring Senator Isaac Stephenson bought his seat in the United States senate, and requesting that body to investigate his election. The resolution is the senate judiciary committee substitute for the Husting resolution, introduced early in the session and similar in substance. The vote on the adoption of the committee resolution was 15 to 3. Senator Whitehead, supporter of Stephenson, voted "present."

Of the senators who voted for the resolution all are Republicans excepting Husting and Randolph, who are Democrats and Gaylord, who is a Social Democrat. Of the senators who voted against it, Albers is a Democrat and Bodenstab and Thomas are Republicans. Whitehead is a Republican, as are the two members paired. Of the absentees, all are Republicans except Snover, who is a Democrat, and Zophy, who is a Social Democrat.

Failure of the Stephenson men to put up a fight against the adoption of the resolution was a surprise.

Supporters of Stephenson held a conference shortly before the matter came up in the senate and decided it would be useless to offer any amendment or try to prevent the adoption of the resolution. Accordinly, Senator Bodenstab simply voiced a mild protest against the adoption of the resolution and most of the other supporters of Stephenson absented themselves from the chamber when the roll was called on the adoption of the resolution.



ISAAC STEPHENSON.
United States Senator from Wisconsin.

Lieutenants Abandon Hope.

Lieutenants of Senator Stephenson have flocked around the legislative chambers for several weeks in the hope of framing up some plan to defeat the passage of the resolution asking for a federal senate probe. They could not think of any way in which to accomplish that and were forced to stand helplessly by and watch the resolution adopted.

The assembly is expected to act on the resolution about the middle of next week. Unless sentiment changes greatly, the assembly will concur in the resolution by a large vote.

Charges of bribery and violation of the corrupt practices law were formally made against Senator Stephenson by State Senator J. J. Blaine in the legislature two years ago. Filing of these charges resulted in the appointment of a joint investigation committee, consisting of five assemblymen and three senators. The assemblymen were pro-Stephenson and the senators anti-Stephenson. After sitting two and one-half months, this committee dissolved, the assembly end making a report favorable to Stephenson and the senate end recommending a continuance of the investigation. The senate authorized its members to continue the probe. On March 4, 1909, during the progress of the probe by the senatorial committee, Stephenson was elected. Three Democratic members of the joint assembly walked out of the chamber just before the vote was taken, and the absence of these three members enabled Stephenson to get the necessary proportion of the votes remaining to elect him. The senate investigating committee filed its report and recommendations shortly after the present session of the legislature opened. Upon this report is based the resolution adopted by the senate yesterday.

WESTERN CANADA BEYOND THE PIONEER STAGE

Liberty-Loving People Have All the Liberty the Heart Can Desire Under Canadian Laws.

The New York Commercial of April 19th contained an interesting article on conditions in Western Canada. The following extracts will prove instructive reading to those who contemplate moving to Canada. The writer speaks of land at $8 to $18 an acre. As a matter of fact, there is very little land that can be had now at less than $18 per acre, but when one considers the productive qualities of this land it is safe to say that in two years' time there will be little available land to be had at less than $30 an acre. Already the free grant lands in the open prairie districts are becoming exhausted and the homesteader has to go farther back to the partially wooded areas. This is no drawback, however. Some prefer this land to the open prairie. A recent publication, issued by the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, and which is forwarded free to applicants by mail by any of the Canadian government agents throughout the United States, says of the newly-opened districts:

Water is always abundant, wood and fuel are plentiful and the soil that can grow the poplar and the willow as well as the rich grasses that are to be found there can be relied upon to produce all the small varieties of grain with equal success. The New York Commercial article referred to deals more particularly with conditions along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but what is said of one line of railway may with truth be said of the land and the conditions along both the Canadian Northern and the Canadian Pacific. The article says:

"It would be no exaggeration to say that practically all the land along the entire distance traversed by the Grand Trunk Pacific system is capable of furnishing homes to those who engage in farming. The lands are of three classes. They may be designated, first, as having special adaptation to the production of grain; second, as having such adaptation to mixed farming, of which live stock will form an important feature, and third, as being mainly adapted to the production of live stock only. On the third class of lands the area is not very large, of the second it is much larger and of the first it is by far the largest.

"As soon as mixed farming shall be generally adopted, land that may now be obtained for from $8 to $18 per acre, and even lands open now to free homesteads, will sell for $50 to $100 per acre. This is not an extravagant statement. In natural fertility these lands fully equal those of the American corn belt. In variety of production they excel them, and yet the latter sell for $100 to $200 per acre. In addition to the grain crops now grown of wheat, oats, barley and rye, much of the land will grow winter wheat when properly prepared. Eighty per cent, of the land will grow clover and alfalfa. A still larger percentage will grow field peas, and the entire tillable area will grow good crops of the cultivated grasses, timothy, brome grass and western rye grass. With these elements what can prevent this region from becoming the main source of food supply of the Empire and Imperial dominions?"

Special stress is laid upon the educational conditions. The writer says:

"The foundation of the social fabric of the agricultural country may be said to rest on the efficiency of its school system. Liberty-loving people have all the liberty the heart can desire under Canadian laws. In this regard Western Canada has a system of education based upon the best that can be obtained from the United States or Eastern Canada. Its school system and regulations are second to none. Every boy or girl has a school house brought to his or her doorway. The government is most liberal in its support of higher education. In Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton are to be found excellent colleges and universities, so that the problem of higher education is solved. The provincial agricultural schools, located at Winnipeg and Saskatoon, give practical courses in scientific farming, preparing graduates to take up the responsibilities of farm life.

Instead of his going to the 'jumping-off place,' as is often supposed when thinking of Western Canada, he will find himself surrounded by wonderful opportunities for social advancement in a new country fraught with promise."

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.

"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKI, 2968 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens, and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

BREN TO EXPLAIN

DEPOSED TREASURER TO BE GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO JUSTIFY ACCOUNTS.

DECLARES HIS INNOCENCE

Examiners Probe Realty Purchases and Search For Money.—Preliminary Report Soon.

Minneapolis. — An opportunity to justify his accounts with the reported discoveries of discrepancies by the public examiner will be given to J. D. Bren, deposed treasurer of the University of Minnesota, who has been invited to be present with his attorneys, Norton Cross and M. C. Brady, while F. N. Stacy, deputy public examiner, delves deeper into the books.

Mr. Stacy asserts that he has failed to find $9,000 in certificates of deposit which he declares Bren told him had been cashed. On the other hand, he says that the money is still in the bank, and in view of the absence of the certificates, he has stopped payment on the paper, which would mean that if they had been turned over to anyone as collateral they are useless from now on.

Mr. Bren still appears satisfied with the progress of the case and voices his firm belief of vindication, not only in the eyes of the law, but before the public, whom he says has been mislead by reports given out by the police.

Realty Purchase Probed.

Sunday Mr. Stacy, together with detectives, took a long automobile trip about the city. It was reported that they were looking up several recent real estate purchases said to have been made by the deposed treasurer, and another report was to the effect that the detectives, with a search warrant, had gone to the home of Samuel Bren, the father of the deposed treasurer, near Hopkins, Minn., and searched the premises in hopes of finding papers or hidden money. The detectives did not report at police headquarters and no verification of these reports was to be had.

The deputy public examiners compared some of their notes for the benefit of the several members of the board of regents whose homes they visited. Mr. Stacy says that he is not in a position to report any increase or decrease in the shortage which the examiners claim to have found in Bren's accounts.

The examiners' preliminary report will be in readiness in a few days, at which time it will be submitted to President Vincent of the university. The filing of the report will be followed by a more detailed examination of the books and the verification of all items and totals.

It was recalled that in former examinations of the university accounts by the public examiners, there have been recommendations that changes be made in the systems employed in the various experimental farm stations and agricultural schools throughout the state where it was reported that the bookkeeping was being conducted by more than one person and in a manner which made frequent examinations most arduous tasks.

STRAWBERRY CROP IS DOOMED.

Cut Worms Working Havoc in Southern Minnesota.

Winona.—Winona county truck gardeners are not very optimistic for the outlook of the strawberry crop this year. There is a general feeling of unrest among them. The hot weather and the cut worm is the source of the pessimism.

What was expected to be one of the largest strawberry crops in years is doomed to nothing more than a farce, say many prominent growers in this vicinity. Thousands of dollars will be lost as the result of the cut worm, which is eating the berries. The worm has never before been known to eat the berries, probably because the season for strawberries does not, as a rule, begin until the cut worm has disappeared. This year, however, the season has been a full two weeks earlier than that of last year.

He was working at Delwood for the summer.

MILITIA AT LAKEVIEW

COLONEL REEVE PLEASED WITH BIG ATTENDANCE.

General Wood on The Ground—New Sibley Conical Tents Comfortable.

Camp Lakeview.—The First regiment, Minnesota national guard, comprising Companies C, R, E, H, and L, of St. Paul, and A, B, F, I and M, of Minneapolis, G, of Red Wing, and K, of Stillwater, was the first to arrive at the camp grounds, in command of Colonel Charles McC. Reeve of Minneapolis. The special train consisted of fifteen cars. The First Regiment band of fifty pieces accompanied the troops. The advance detail had the camp ready for the troops, and the men sat down to mess.

New Conical Tents Provided.

The camp grounds presented a decided change in appearance from former years, as the state has provided the companies with new tentage, having bought the conical "Sibley" tent, which is large enough to accommodate from ten to twelve men each, whereas the wall tent of former years would barely shelter four men.

Adjutant General Fred B. Wood opened headquarters on the grounds to enable him to observe more closely the work of the men and to facilitate the routine incident to the annual encampment.

Although the First Regiment had not been ordered into camp until June 13, the members arrived a day in advance in order to get ten full days on the grounds. They will break camp in time to arrive in St. Paul to participate in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the departure of the old First regiment of Minnesota volunteers.

Many Changes in Staff.

There have been a number of important changes on the staff of the First regiment since the last encampment through the resignation of the following officers: Quartermaster Captain Chester R. Smith of St. Paul, the inspector of small arms practice; Captain M. C. McMillan of Stillwater, Lieutenant Henri Dewitt of Red Wing and Lieutenant W. O. Washburn of St. Paul. Captain Smith was replaced by A. J. Stobbart of St. Paul, Lieutenant Dewitt by Jed Lee of Stillwater and Lieutenant Washburn by L. J. Lamprey of St. Paul, while Captain McMillan's place has not been permanently filled, although Captain M. Baldwin of Company F of Minneapolis has been temporarily assigned as inspector of small arms practice, and will have charge of the men of the First while on the rifle range.

General E. D. Libbey, formerly adjutant general of this state, is in camp, and has been assigned to duty on the rifle range. Captain W. H. Hatcher, late military storekeeper, is now with the ordinance department, and will have charge of the pistol range this season. He is greeting all of his old friends who are glad to have him about camp, as usual.

Colonel Reeve feels elated over the fine attendance at camp this year, as it is a record breaker and a fine compliment to his own personality and that of his officers. There are 735 men in camp, and more are to follow.

LINSEED OIL IS ADULTERATED.

State Dairy and Food Department Arrests Alleged Law Violators.

St. Paul.—On account of the high prices of linseed oil, or for some other reason, the state dairy and food department is finding more adulturated oil this year than ever before.

F. W. Armour of Marshalltown Iowa, was caught at Benson last week trying to sell as pure linseed oil a product which the department analyzed and found to be 82.58 per cent mineral oil. Armour was arrested and fined $100.

A report was also received that H. C. Senffert, of Caledonia was caught selling adulterated oil. The state took all the oil he had, $48 worth, and let him go. The oil was said to have been sold by the Wright-Armstrong company, Minneapolis, but Assistant Commissioner McCabe said that they had been unable to locate this firm.

An Omaha firm has been trying for several months to get an order from the federal court restraining the department from seizing its oil and enforcing the law. The court has refused to give the injunction and the company is trying to have its complaint amended so as to get the order. No temporary injunction has been issued, however, and the department is arresting dealers and confiscating oil whenever it is found the law is violated.

SHORT $14,226.79

EXAMINER REPORTS $400 STILL UNACCEPTED FOR IN "U" BREAKAGE FUND.

INDICTMENTS PREPARED

Former Treasurer Said the Holdups Got $13,826, but $17,826 is Gone. —$4,990 Mysteriously Returned.

Minneapolis. — The State public examiners reported to Governor Eberhart that over and above the $13,826.79 of which J. D. Bren, deposed university cashier, says he was robbed, there is a shortage of $400 in the university "breakage" fund. This shortage still exists, according to the report, after deducting all money Bren has turned over and the sum of $4,990 which was mysteriously placed in a drawer in his office two days after the examiners had searched it and found no money there.

As a result of this report Assistant County Attorney Nash said that he would immediately draw two indictments against Bren. One is to charge him with embezzlement of $13,826, of which he said he was robbed and the other with the additional shortage of $400.

These indictments will be presented for grand jury consideration. Assistant Public Examiners Stacy and Cedarburg; Miss Ella Whitney, a university woman to whom Bren loaned money; Miss Ryan, employed in Bren's office; Dr. Murdock, Bren's father-in-law; Detectives DeLaittre and Broderick; Edward Nelson, said to have seen Bren just before and just after the alleged robbery, and Frank S. Lyon, Bren's agent in grain speculation, are among those already subpoenaed.

In explaining the secret report which went to the governor from the public examiners, Mr. Nash said that it applied only to the "breakage" fund and that it is based entirely on Mr. Bren's own bookkeeping. No effort has been made yet to check up to see if his accounts as to disposition of certain other moneys is correct. His own figures have been accepted in toto and still a shortage found.

That $5,700 has been handed over to the public examiner's department since the commencement of the examination of the accounts of J. D. Bren, treasurer of the university, is shown by the report.

The money Mr. Bren said he was robbed of was $13,826.79. For this sum Mr. Bren's attorneys assert he is not responsible. In anticipation of a shortage in the accounts, Mr. Bren's attorney turned over to the examiners $710. During the examination the sum of $4,990 in currencey was found in the vault of the University. It was discovered in a pigeon hole by Miss Ryan, a bookkeeper, and turned over to the examiners. Mr. Bren asserted he knew nothing about this money.

Mr. Cedarburg and Mr. Stacy echo Mr. Fritz's views on the subject. The facts in the case have leaked out from an authoritative source. The report was submitted by Mr. Fritz to Governor Eberhart and there was present a representative of the county attorney in Minneapolis and of the board of regents.

Mr. Fritz's report covers merely a preliminary examination. In making the examination it has been necessary to accept Mr. Bren's figures and balances. To do anything further would have required more time than was given the examiners. Upon the authority of Governor Eberhart the public examiner's department will proceed at once to make a thorough and complete investigation of all the financial affairs of the university. This is done with the approval of President Vincent, who is as anxious as any one to have the university completely probed. In this examination the students' funds will be checked up and an effort will be made to discover whether the entries made in the books are correct. This will be the real test of the accuracy of Mr. Bren's accounts.

Mr. Stacy will call attention to the fact that the sum of money taken out by Mr. Bren, or alleged to have been taken by him, was much larger than was necessary. He will show that most of the students already had been paid their refunds and that only a few thousand dollars would have covered the amounts claimed. He also will argue that the finger prints on Mr. Bren's collar, where as the treasurer asserts, he was grabbed by the alleged robber, are only three slight marks extending half way down the collar, the inference being that if anyone had grabbed him by the collar for the purpose of throwing him down, the imprints would have been much plainer. Attention will be called to the fact that the buttonholes of the collar were intact.

Wheat Crop of Entire Country Promises A Record Harvest

Total Yield of Spring and Winter Wheat Indicated by June Government Report, 764,291,857 Bushels—Condition of All Crops in the Northwest Excellent—Pacific Coast Grain is Promising.

Washington, June 11.—Promise that this year's wheat crop will be the greatest ever produced is given in the June crop report, issued today by the department of agriculture. Estimates by the experts indicate that approximately 764,291,857 bushels of wheat will be harvested in this country this summer and autumn, an increase of about 68,848,857 bushels over that garnered last year. Of winter wheat the indicated yield is almost 980,000,000 bushels and of spring wheat 284,000,000 bushels.

Prof. N. C. Murray, acting chairman of the crop reporting board, commenting upon the report, said:

"The average of spring wheat shows a total larger than any previous record and nearly 9 per cent greater than last year. On June 1 the crop was above the average in promise, the condition and acreage combined being such as to give hope for a yield of nearly 23 per cent more than last year and nearly 17 per cent more than the average for the last five years.

May Unfavorable Month.

"May was unfavorable for winter wheat, but nevertheless with the increased acreage there probably will be between three and four per cent more winter wheat produced than last year and between six and seven per cent more than for the average of the last five years. Combining both spring and winter wheat, the indications point to a slightly larger yield per acre than was produced last year and about the same yield per acre as during the last five years. This would make a total production of all wheat of 9.9 per cent more than last year and 10.2 per cent more than the average for the last five years.

Oat Area Lower.

"The acreage of oats was not quite so large as it was last year, but the one-tenth of one per cent reduction is substantially immaterial. The crop prospects are not so promising as a year ago. Last year's production was the largest ever recorded. The condition of the crop indicates a yield per acre of 27.7 bushels as compared with 31.9 last year and 28 for the average of the last five years. This would make a total production of about 13.3 loss than last year, but 4.8 per cent more than the average of the last five years.

"The condition of all crops in the Pacific northwest, particularly in Washington and Oregon, is notably fine. If any one feature of the month covered by the report stands out above another, it was the drought which prevailed during May practically throughout the country. It affected materially not only the condition of winter wheat, but also the hay crop, which is one of the greatest crops of the country. That drought now, however, has been largely relieved in all parts of the country."

The Northwest's Prospects.

The northwest has one of the best general grain prospects reported. With the exception of South Dakota all crops in the other two states are well above the ten year average and in none of the three states is there an average below 90 per cent of normal.

The following table summarizes the conditions of the leading crops of the country, based on the June government report, with indicated yields compared with the final harvest last year:

The following table gives the harvest prospect in the three northwestern states as they show, figured on the usual basis:

State.	Acreage, 1911.	Acreage, 1910.	Estimated Harvest, 1911.	Final Harvest, 1910.
Minnesota	6,233,000	5,880,000	95,738,800	94,080,000
North Dakota	7,582,000	7,221,550	123,479,000	36,105,000

The following table gives the comparative conditions for wheat, oats and barley.

	Condition Wheat June, 1911.	Condition Wheat 10-yr. Av.	Condition Oats June, 1911.	Condition Oats 10-yr. Av.	Condition Barley June, 1911.	Condition Barley 10-yr. Av.

N. Dak. ...	95	95	95	94	95	94
S. Dak. ...	96	95	90	94	90	94

In arriving at the prospective wheat yields in the northwest there is considerable confusion. In the first place, the government has used, evidently, the old average basis for arriving at the area sown this season, which, according to the census, was much too high for Minnesota. It is suggested, however, that the North Dakota acreage is too low and that the aggregate figures of spring wheat acreage in the three states as estimated now is not far away from the census area.

A further difficulty presents itself in estimating the probable harvest. Figured on the basis followed in other years, the high condition of the crop in the northwest suggests a total at the present time of 262,000,000 bushels, but as the government only estimates the total spring wheat yield at 284,000,000 bushels, this gives the Pacific coast, where the promise is good, only 12,000,000 bushels, which is, of course, an absurdity.

Winter Wheat States.

All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

Gully has a newspaper, the Gully Reporter, edited by Bennie Hanson, late of the McIntosh Times.

We once knew a farmer to refuse to sell corn to a neighbor for 23 cents at the crib and hauled several loads of it to town and got only 21 cents, and we know several alleged business men who let their supply houses send out advertising matter for them and do not carry ads. in their local newspapers.—Ex.

It appears that the hold-up men who relieved Bren of large sum of money belonging to the state university were men operating grain gambling joints. It seems to be past all understanding why people will tolerate this aristocratic form of gambling. Wheat speculation has started more men on the road to hell than has strong drink.

The Chicago Tribune has taken a poll of the editors of twenty-two states in the central, western, southwestern, northwestern and pacific divisions, and finds that a large majority of them are in favor of the Canadian reciprocity pact, 3,113 voting for and 1,127 against the agreement. North Dakota was the only state where a majority voted against the proposition.

Several automobile men went out of Warren on an investigating tour last week and after a discussion of the subject of poor roads decided to try the building of roads themselves. One large auto hitched a drag behind and moved along the highway at a good rate of speed and another dragged a King split-log drag over the harrowed road. This gave a smooth surface and at little or no cost. In places the machines ran at least ten miles an hour and in a few hours several miles of highway were placed in the best condition they have been in this season.

The government seed that was sent out this spring will not encourage gardening to any great extent, as it is not pleasant to put in a lot of time planting a garden only to find out that the seed was worthless. We suppose it was a lot of old seeds that had been laying around in some seed houses for fifty years that wasn't expected to grow, but to satisfy a political pull. That garden seed business is nothing but a damage to the people, and the sooner it is abolished the better it will be for those that it was intended to benefit.—Sunbeam.

Here is the secret of their success There is a baby born in the neighborhood. The attending physician gets $15. The editor gives the loud lunged youngster a great send off and get $0. It is christened and the minister gets $5 and the editor gets $00. It grows and marries. The editor publishes another long winded article and tells a dozen lies about "the beautifull bride," the minister gets $10 and a piece of cake. The editor gets $000 and the request to carry the groom's subcription account another year. In course of time she dies. The doctor gets from $10 to $100, the minister gets another $5, the undertaker gets from $50 to $100, the editor publishes a notice of death and an obituary two columns long, a lot of poetry and a card of thanks and gets $0,000. No wonder so many country editors get rich.

The new rural school consolidation law passed by the recent legislature has some very liberal provisions for the consolidation of schools; and it would certainly appear that the rural districts surrounding St. Hilaire could unite under this law for the mutual benefit of the rural communities and the village. District 54 of Rocksbury, district 24 of Black River, and districts 178 and 227 of River Falls could all easily be handled with a central school at St. Hilaire and the inducements offered by the state at this time (which may be withdrawn later) would be enough to equip the enlarged district with all of the new buildings and equipment necessary. Teams could be employed for each of the old districts to transport its children, and we are of the opinion that the cost to the taxpapers would be no heavier then it is at present with so great an efficency in the work that there would be little comparison with the present plan. Why not take this matter up? It certainly looks feasable and we think would prove an advantage, not only the village but to the country as well. The Spectator would de pleased to print communications in regard to this matter.

Carrie Nation

Not since George Washington was a boy has there been anyone who has boosted the hatchet buseness quite as much as did Carrie Nation, the strong armed slayer of Kansas saloons, who has gone to join "Sockless" Jerry Simpson and other Sunflower state oddities as a member of the "choir invisible, Carrie Nation broke many bars and many laws but her heart was big and it beat in unison with her hatchet in behalf of the innocent victims of the liquor curse and while her methods were strenuous, the "joints" of Kansas running in open defiance of the law could only be coped with by some one brave enough to start things as Carrie did when she marched up to the mahogany counter and began to chop it to pieces, finding time to take a few licks at plate glass mirrors, shivering glasses and bottles filled with illegal liquor. May her bones rest in peace.

The Sangerfest

The concert progrm for the three-day Sangerfest which will commence at Thief River Falls June 23 is completed. The various chorus have rehearsed their numbers and are ready for the final production. P. A. Rudd is director-in-chief, J. Shefstad assistant H. G. Maxwell conductor of orchestra and H. O. Kjome accompanist.

This convention will be attended by the Scandinavian singing societies from Devil's Lake, Minot, Grand Forks, Fargo and a great many Minnesota and North Dakota cities. All these singing organizations will appear in some distinctive uniform and will appear in chorus and other music in the great auditorium building in this city. The orchestra which has been secured to accompany the singers will be under the direction of the best leader which it is possible to secure. Soloists from the Twin Cities and other points will also appear on the program. It is expected that several hundred singers, all male, will attend and will bring many friends in the special trains which have been provided for the visitors.

Development Meeting a Great Success

The Minnesota development meeting held in Duluth last week was in every respect a great success. Over 1000 delegated were present and many live topics were discussed and plans for the future development of the state laid. The following are the chief paragraphs of the resolutions adopted:

Censured legislature's failure to pass bill creating a department of public domain, bill providing for sale of foreign securities in state treasury bill providing for a deep waterway from Lake of the Woods to lake Superior, and for the repeal of the permanent improvement clauses in the law relating to state land sales.

Put its disapproval on the seven senator constitutional amendment and urged its rejection.

Created immigration commission to engage immigration commissioner, who will have an office in St. Paul and will have an office in St. Paul and will work independent of the state commission to attract settlers to Minnesota.

Commended Elwell bill for good roads.

Instructed executive committee to appoint a good roads commission.

Urged adoption of constitutional amendment providing for a 1 mill state road tax.

Commended extension of agricultural education in the high schools and common schools of the state.

Pledged its support to the reclamation board.

Urged extension of drainage work.

Decided to meet in St Cloud in December.

I desire to thanks the author of the "Looking Backward" essay in last week's issue of the Spectator for the numerous honary titles which he conferred upon me. J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

"So are you."

"Don't you talk back to me!"

"And don't you to me!"

"I'm an awful fighter when I'm mad!"

"And I'm awfuller than you are!"

"I've got a dog."

"And I've got a goat."

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Butte. — Mr. T. L. King, of Minneapolis, has purchased the ranch of Peter Valiton in Powell county for $111,000. The property embraces 7,400 acres.

Winona.—In the recent storm, the barn of John Perry on St. Charles Ridge was struck and burned to the ground. A team of horses belonging to William Perry was in the barn and was burned. The loss was $3,000, partly insured.

Notre Dame, Ind.—Degrees and honors given by the University of Notre Dame were awarded at the beginning of the graduating exercises of the university. Charles C. Miltner, of Lake City, Minn., won the Breen gold medal for oratory.

Bemidji.—While in midlake the $600 twenty-six-foot launch Keemar, owned by Harry Masten, director of the Bemidji band, was caught in a sudden wind storm and capsized and sunk in thirty feet of water. Mr. Masten the only passenger swam and paddled to shore.

Park Rapids.—Lloyd and Gena Carlton of Ferris, who are held on the charge of murdering Peter O. Nester, Mrs. Carlton's father, were arraigned in the justice court for their preliminary hearing, but had the case postponed until June 26. The grand jury will convene in the meantime.

Cloquet.—David Moses died at St. Luke's hospital in Duluth. He was a pioneer resident of Cloquet, coming here thirty years ago from Ireland. He had been a member of the Kelly & Moses undertaking firm for twenty-seven years. He was one of the first mayors of Cloquet and was 52 years old.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—Announcement was made here by the Northern Casket company that it would establish a branch factory and distributing point at Duluth. The new company will be known as the Northern Casket Company of Minnesota, with H. R. Potter and William Mauthe of this city and H. P. Lannan, of Duluth, as incorporators. Mr. Lannan is head of the Duluth Casket company, which will be taken over.

Sauk Center.—So persistent and destroying are the insects called "the cottony maple scale," that the city council has appointed a committee to secure sprayers to endeavor to eradicate the tree destroyers. Sauk Center has many streets shaded with box elders, bass and soft maples and the trees are being ruined by the scale, which is produced by small green bugs, of which there are countless numbers on the trees.

Minneapolis' bonded indebtedness will reach $16,710,566.67 with the city council's approval of $850,000 worth of bonds to be awarded by the committee on ways and means. The committee will award $250,000 of park bonds, $225,000 for the permanent improvement revolving fund, $75,000 for the permanent improvement fund and $275,000 for main sewers, all to bear 4 per cent interest. More bonds to be issued by the city will increase the total indebtedness stated by $1,250,000. The recent legislature authorized $850,000 for bridge bonds to build the proposed bridges at Forty-second avenue north, Third avenue south and Seventeenth avenue south. In addition an issue of $400,000 has been authorized for City hospital purposes.

Anoka.—Archbishop Ireland and his sister, Mother Serathinus, the mother superior of St. Joseph's, St. Paul, drove to Anoka by auto last Sunday. The archbishop conducted first mass and met the first communion class of fifty-two and gave them an address. At 10:30 Father Dolphin said mass and the archbishop preached the sermon. Forty-six years ago he said the first mass in Anoka in a grove on the west side of Rum river, when there were only three Catholic families in the town. In the afternoon he met the confirmation class of 250 and gave them an appropriate address, at the close of which Master Arthur Coleman stepped forward and in behalf of the class presented him with $100 in gold to be applied to the new Cathedral fund.

Duluth.—The June grand jury at Two Harbors has furnished a sensation in returning an indictment against the Lake county attorney, John Kinsella, whose term of office has been a stormy one. There are seven indictments against him. Two of these are for libel, two for giving an obscene and indecent pamphlet to a minor, one for causing the publication of a libel, one for hiring a minor to distribute an obscene and indecent pamphlet, and last, for giving away obscene and indecent pamphlets for distribution. Kinsella will be arraigned before Judge Dancer to answer these charges. Judge Dancer stated to the grand jury before it took up Kinsella's case that Kinsella would be disqualified from acting as legal adviser of that body in the matter. He appoints B. F. Fowler to act in that capacity.

Red Wing. — Downey & Sexton's liquor license may be revoked. The proprietors of the saloon, who, it is alleged, have given the police department considerable trouble of late, by action of the city council last evening have been notified to appear before that body tomorrow evening to show cause why their 1911 license should not be forfeited. The council, with the same power as a judicial court, will pass upon the testimony presented by the saloon proprietors, City Attorney C. P. Hall and the police department and render a decision accordingly.

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS
TRADE MARK

A trial package of Munyon's Paw Paw Pills will be sent free to anyone on request. Address Professor Munyon, 53d & Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa. If you are in need of medical advice, do not fail to write Professor Munyon. Your communication will be treated in strict confidence, and your case will be diagnosed as carefully as though you had a personal interview.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, they do not gripe, they do not weaken, but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. In my opinion constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are 26 feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produce rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver ailment can expect to have a clear complexion or enjoy good health. If I had my way I would prohibit the sale of nine-tenths of the cathartics that are now being sold for the reason that they soon destroy the lining of the stomach, setting up serious forms of indigestion, and so paralyze the bowels that they refuse to act unless forced by strong purgatives.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic.

Regular size bottle, containing 45 pills, 25 cents. Munyon's Laboratory, 53d & Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia.

Publicity Law Badly Needed.

Connecticut, District of Columbia, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island and Vermont, have laws which provide specifically for the reporting of tuberculosis and which make provision for the proper registration of living cases of this disease. In fourteen other states, laws or regulations of the state boards of health require that tuberculosis be reported simply as one of a list of infectious diseases. The following 28 states and territories have no provision whatever for the reporting or registration of tuberculosis cases:—Arizona, Alaska, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Musical Note.

A music teacher in a New England school was trying to make the children in the fourth grade understand the value of a triplet—to get them to know that three-quarter notes under a brace were equal to two quarter notes.

She couldn't make them understand; and finally, in despair, she asked: "What are three little babies born all at the same time called?"

"Accidentals!" shouted a small boy, with a vague remembrance of the lesson of a week before.

An Unlaureled Hero.

Here is a niche in the Hall of Fame for Seth A. Eaton, a rural mail carrier from the Middleboro post office, who, surrounded by woodland fire, his horse lying on the ground stifled with smoke, his own hair singed, his hat burned and one side of his face and hands blistered, was still mindful of duty and saved the mail he was carrying by burying it in the sand, before he fought through the line of fire to safety. Not all the heroes tread the battlefields.—Fall River Herald.

COMES A TIME

When Coffee Shows What It Has Been Doing.

"Of late years coffee has disagreed with me," writes a matron from Rome, N. Y.

"Its lightest punishment being to make me 'logy' and dizzy, and it seemed to thicken up my blood.

"The heaviest was when it upset my stomach completely, destroying my appetite and making me nervous and irritable, and sent me to my bed. After one of these attacks, in which I nearly lost my life, I concluded to quit the coffee and try Postum.

"It went right to the spot! I found it not only a most palatable and refreshing beverage, but a food as well.

"All my ailments, the 'loginess' and dizziness, the unsatisfactory condition of my blood, my nervousness and irritability disappeared in short order and my sorely afflicted stomach began quickly to recover. I began to rebuild and have steadily continued until now. Have a good appetite and am rejoicing in sound health which I owe to the use of Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

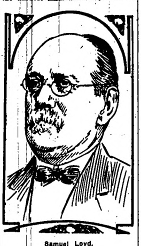
THE "PIGS IN CLOVER" MAN

Sam Loyd, the Inventor of Numerous Puzzles and Chess Problems, Is Dead.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—When Samuel Loyd, the puzzle expert and inventor of chess problems, passed away at his home in Brooklyn, the world lost a man whose contributions to the public have probably entertained more people than those of any other man of the age. Young and old, rich and poor, alike, have wrestled with the fantastic creations of his fertile brain.

Born in Philadelphia in 1841 and educated in the schools of New York city, he early displayed the gifts which were to bring him fame and wealth. At the age of six he was proficient at chess and was untangling the hardest mathematical puzzles of the day. When a young man he began his contributions to the newspapers and the invention of mechanical puzzles, some of which attained an almost universal craze.



Samuel Loyd.

One of the first inventions to bring him fame was the "Fifteen Puzzle." Later came "The Tigers and the Men," "Pigs in Clover," "Parchesi" and "The Disappearing Chinaman." Mr. Loyd's most profitable idea was "The Donkey" puzzle, of which 1,000,000,000 were sold.

Mr. Loyd took the view that there was something more in his puzzles than the simple amusement of the moment. He believed that he had in his devices come across something which would sharpen the wits of the average man. He pointed out that they could interest and amuse men who regarded ordinary mathematics with disgust, and that the boy who had at school shrunk from the very idea of an algebraical square root, would devote his spare moments to the solution of a puzzle which involved the same principles as the sum, just because he was interested. Consequently, he maintained that he supplied something which the average system of education had missed.

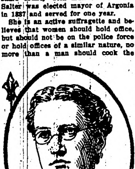
Apart from his puzzles Mr. Loyd was for a time the editor of the Sanitary Engineer, and a shrewd operator in Wall street. He also wrote for a number of magazines. He was a member of the New York Press club, the Brooklyn Chess club and the Brooklyn Whist club. He is survived by a widow, one son, Samuel Loyd, Jr., and two daughters.

THE FIRST WOMAN MAYOR

Mrs. Susanna Salter of Argonia, Kan., Holds This Distinction—Her Sugar Policy Worked.

Topeka, Kan.—The troubles of Mrs. Wilson, mayor of Hunnewell, Kan., recalls the fact that Mrs. Susanna Salter was the first woman mayor of the world. She held office for one year at Argonia, Kan., a town located in the same county with Hunnewell. Mrs. Salter was elected mayor of Argonia in 1887 and served for one year.

She is an active suffragette and believes that women should hold office, but should not be on the police force or hold offices of a similar nature, no more than a man should cook the meals and keep house in their homes. Mrs. Salter believes that sugar catches more flies than vinegar, and says that while she was in office, by applying the sugar, she had little trouble.



Mrs. Susanna Salter

"I just made those men of the council believe they were the nicest men in the world, and we got along admirably," she said. "When Mrs. Wilson was elected mayor of Hunnewell I wrote her a letter and advised her to adopt this policy, but she is having lots of trouble. I was very anxious for Mrs. Wilson to make a success just to demonstrate that women are capable of holding office."

For 30 years he [illegible] his claim turned down by one legislature after another. [illegible]

DOCTOR PRESCRIBES CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr. ——— of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. It was dermatitis in its worst form. It started with a slight eruption and would affect most parts of his body, thighs, elbows, chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in little pustules. The itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions, but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife, who was continually suffering with a slight skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, told me she was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies and give them a fair trial. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I could do nothing to relieve her permanently. When she first applied the warm baths of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura Ointment she saw a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr. ———, and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm baths of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Ointment generously. Believe me, from the very first day's use of the Cuticura Remedies he was greatly relieved and today he is completely cured through their use. I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits." (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M. D., 108 Dartmouth St., Boston, Mass., July 22, 1910.

Should Report Tuberculosis Cases.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says that the first requisite for a comprehensive campaign for the elimination of tuberculosis in a state or city is well-enforced law requiring that every living case of tuberculosis be reported to the health authorities. Such reporting is now required by law or health regulation in 25 states, while in 28 states and territories no provision whatever is made for keeping record of cases of this infectious disease. Several cities in non-registration states, as for instance, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, and New Orleans, have local ordinances requiring that tuberculosis be reported. In all, there are about 100 cities in the United States which have ordinances of this nature.

BUNCHING HIS HARD LUCK

Sufferer From Toothache Summoned Philosophy to His Aid During Period of Trouble.

"Philosophers are not all dead yet," said the dentist. "I met one this morning who knocked me out of two hours' work on a day when I have nothing to do anyhow, and will make me work overtime tomorrow, when I shall be crowded with engagements. He was howling with a toothache.

"Better come around and have it attended to," I said.

"Can't do it today," he said, "I'm too busy."

"But you can't work when you are crazy with the toothache?" I argued.

"Oh, yes I can," said he. "There are half a dozen other things I want done to me that hurt pretty bad, and if I have them done when my tooth is on the rampage they won't seem so bad, because one hurt will neutralize the other. I always take advantage of a toothache to dispatch those disagreeable jobs."

"Maybe not many people could stand that kind of philosophy, but apparently that man is going to get away with it."

GEORGE CROWNED KING OF ENGLAND

Brilliant Ceremony Performed in Westminster Abbey.

ANCIENT FORMS OBSERVED

Seven Thousand Notable Men and Women Witness the Coronation—Royal Progress From Buckingham Palace Is Fine Spectacle.

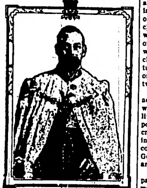
London.—In the presence of 7,000 of the chief men and women of his realm and of the representatives of nearly every civilized nation on the globe, George V. was crowned king of Great Britain Thursday. The ceremony took place in Westminster Abbey and never was that edifice the stage of a more brilliant and imposing spectacle. As the crown of St. Edward was placed on the monarch's head by the archbishop of Canterbury, the big cannon of the Tower roared out and within and without the abbey the shout of "Long live King George" resounded.

From the earliest hours of the morning the population of London and the hundreds of thousands of visitors had been moving toward the royal route from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey. As soon as the seats in the numerous stands were filled, gates were closed that kept out the rabble, and then the throngs tried to crowd into the streets adjoining the route. From pole to pole throughout the entire distance gay colored bunting was strung, and the whole city was streaming with flags.

Along the Mall and all the way from the palace to the abbey troops were standing, company upon company, British troops of every shade of color, living symbols of the countries and peoples over which the new king and emperor reigns. On every side bands were playing patriotic music, and the din of cheering was continuous and overwhelming.

Procession From the Palace.

As the hour for the coronation approached the waiting thousands first saw the arrival of the gentlemen appointed to act as ushers during the ceremony. These were led by the earl marshal, the duke of Norfolk. Then the nobility entitled to seats in the Abbey began to come. Most of the peers and peeresses rode in state coaches that have been used by their families for many years. These carriages, repainted and regilded, were drawn by four horses apiece. Each was accompanied by outriders and footmen in gorgeous liveries stood on the rail behind. Each peer as he passed was greeted with cheers and often with familiar greetings that set the crowds off in roars of laughter, for even the solemnity of the occasion could not restrain the irreverent humor of the cockneys.



King George V.

Not all the nobility rode in coaches, however, for the king had permitted one violation of precedent and given permission for the use of automobiles by those who have discarded horses. This was done reluctantly, and there were not many motors cars in the long procession of vehicles.

The lord mayor and his suite, in their gorgeous robes and regalia, were the next to pass toward the Abbey.

King and Queen Appear.

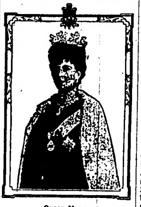
Now the bells of many churches pealed out, and the people knew the king and queen were coming. From the moment their majesties emerged from Buckingham palace there was a continuous roar of cheers that accompanied them all the way to the Abbey. Their approach was heralded by the king's bargemaster and twelve watermen, wearing quaint medieval tunics, knee breeches and stockings, all scarlet, with the crown and badges emblazoned in gold on their breasts, and wearing low buckled shoes and black velvet caps. Immediately behind them came the closed carriages of the royal party, every one drawn by splendid horses gorgeously caparisoned. Through the windows of the great lumbering state coach the people could get a glimpse of the king and queen.

Following their majesties rode the household troops and especially picked military bodies. Field Marshal Viscount Kitchener was at the head of the headquarters staff, as he was at the coronation of King Edward. In this part of the procession, too, rode many Indian princes and maharajahs and potentates of England's widely scattered dominions. Their splendid robes glittered with jewels and they added much to the magnificence of the parade. But the man who, next to the king, received the loudest and warmest applause was Lord Roberts, for the people love "Bobs" and their affectionate greetings almost made the grizzled hero of a hundred campaigns blush.

Arrival at the Abbey.

Waiting outside the west door of Westminster Abbey were the archbishops of Canterbury and York and a large number of bishops, and when the king and queen approached they first entered the church, followed immediately by the Prince of Wales and his suite. As the monarchs passed into the abbey the choir sang an anthem. Their majesties moved through the choir to the theater and after kneeling in prayer, seated themselves in the chairs of state.

The first action of the coronation service, the presentation of the king to the people for recognition, is a survival of ancient Teutonic usage. Accompanied by the great officers of state, the archbishop of Canterbury went to each side of the theater in turn, saying: "Sirs, I here present unto you King George, the undoubted king of this realm; wherefore, all you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?" The king meanwhile stood up by his chair and turned to each side, and the people acclaimed him with cries of "God save King George."



Queen Mary.

Then followed the litany, the communion service and a short sermon preached by the archbishop of York, after which the oath was administered to the king by the archbishop of Canterbury.

The Anointing and Coronation.

King George now was divested of his crimson robes by the lord great chamberlain and seated himself in the chair of King Edward I., which contains the ancient "stone of destiny." The dean of Westminster brought from the altar the golden ampulla and spoon, and the archbishop anointed him on the head, the breasts and the palms of both hands, and blessed him. The king was next invested with the colobium sindonis of fine linen and the supertunica of cloth of gold, his heels were touched with the golden spurs and the sword of state was girded upon him, after which the armill and robe royal of cloth of gold were put upon him. In turn, then, his majesty was given the orb, the king's ring, the glove and the two scepters.

All was ready now for the supreme act. The archbishop placed St. Edward's crown upon the altar and delivered a short prayer, and then, supported by the other clergy, placed the crown upon the king's head. At that instant the trumpets sounded, the congregation shouted "Long live King George" and the peers and kings of arms put on their coronets.

The inthronization was a handsome part of the ceremonies. The king was lifted up into his throne by the archbishops, the bishops and certain peers, and all the great officers and those who bore the swords, the scepters and other regalia grouped themselves about the steps of the throne. Next the princes and peers did their homage, led by the archbishop of Canterbury and the prince of Wales. Each of these and the premier duke, marquis, earl, viscount and baron kissed the king upon the cheek.

The anointing and crowning of Queen Mary was a short and simple ceremony. Following the example of Queen Alexandra, she was anointed on the head only. She was invested with the ring, was crowned by the archbishop of York and received the scepter and the ivory rod with the dove.

Few Americans in the Abbey.

Of all the Americans who have been attracted to London by the festivities of the coronation season, only a very few were admitted to the Abbey. These included President Taft's special ambassador, John Hays Hammond, and Mrs. Hammond; Maj. Gen. Greely and Rear Admiral Vreeland, representing the army and navy, and the latter's secretary; Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Reid and the attaches and secretaries of the embassy, Pierpont Morgan and less than a score of American women who married English peers.

One fact connected with the coronation was the subject of some amused comment: This was that King George, who is quite the reverse of a giant, had selected four of the shortest knights of the garter to hold the golden canopy over him during the anointing. They were the earl of Cadogan, Lord Roberts, Lord Elgin and Lord Rosebery. These four peers were the only ones arrayed in the gorgeous robes of the order of the garter.

BIG CONSPIRACY RUN TO EARTH

MAYOR OF CASS LAKE ARRESTED AS LEADER OF GANG OF DESPERATE CRIMINALS.

OFFICERS FIGHT ROBBERS

Whom They Surprise in the Act of Blowing a Safe.—Many Crimes of Arson and Robbery Charged to the Gang.

Bemidji. — A desperate gun fight between detectives, state officials and cracksmen, at midnight at Puposky, Minn., has precipitated a startling story of a campaign, in progress for a month, against a "fire gang," said to have been operating in wholesale arson and safeblowing in the northwest for three years past.

The leader of the gang, the officials assert, is Mayor D. T. Dumas of Cass Lake, one of the prominent men of northern Minnesota.

Two men are wounded, one a prisoner, the other trailed by blood from his injuries into the forest, and Dr. Dumas under arrest, as the moving genius of the cleverest crowd of safe robbers in the country, is the dramatic culmination of a clever piece of detective work staged here by J. C. Fielding, a Pinkerton man from Minneapolis.

The crisis of the episode which for thrills is scarcely outdone by the wild tales of Poe or by Stevenson's Dr. Jeckel and Mr. Hyde, came when two safe robbers, Mike, alias "Curley" Davis and "Billy" Bean, were trapped by the detectives while in the act of cracking a safe at Puposky, 18 miles north of here.

Dr. Dumas was released on $5,000 bail, signed by C. M. Johnson and Henry Mullon, merchants, and Albert Marshik, saloonkeeper, of Cass Lake.

Superintendent S. T. Fielding, of the St. Paul Pinkerton branch, Assistant State Fire Marshal Sam Fullerton and other detectives and officers, opened Dr. Dumas' safe, in his presence, at his office in Cass Lake and found six sticks of dynamite and four dynamite caps. Dr. Dumas, at liberty on bail, who hastened from the home of a patient, to give up the combination of the safe, so that an expert who had arrived from St. Paul would not have to blow it, joked at the discovery.

"The worst is yet to come," was his comment.

Pinkerton detectives have a stenographic report of what they claim to be the exact conversation taken by a Pinkerton stenographer of plans given the two robbers in the John Larson saloon here by Mayor Dumas of the Puposky robbery. While Dumas was telling his lieutenants what to do, a detective, it is claimed, was concealed within hearing distance, taking notes, other witnesses are said to have been present.

It is said that there were not less than four eye witnesses to the conference in the John Larson saloon here between Dumas and his alleged pals. It had been arranged, according to the detectives' story, that after the robbery the robbers were to take the stamps and money from the postoffice in a valise to the nearest point on the Minneapolis & International railroad, Turtle River, 18 miles north of Bemidji; that they were to proceed to Cass Lake on the Great Northern, and that they were to be met in Cass Lake by Dr. Dumas, to whom they were to give the stamps and other booty and to receive in return $300.

When discovered the robbers drew automatic revolvers, sending a volley at close quarters into the detectives and other officers, of whom there were seven, but without effect.

Detective Fielding had his men armed with shotguns loaded with duck shot and at the first bullet from the robbers gave the command to fire.

The report from half a dozen shotguns was the reply and one robber, Bean, fell in his tracks. His pal, Davis, sent twelve more bullets from his revolver toward Fielding and his men, but missed.

A charge from one of the shotguns then caught Davis in the side tearing open a great wound. With a curse, Davis broke and ran, leaving a trail of telltale blood. He dragged himself into the bushes of the forest and has not been captured at this hour, but his liberty is merely a question of time, as detectives are closing in on him. Bean, whose legs were shattered by the shot, was rushed to Bemidji on a special train and placed in jail.

Both Safecrackers.

Evidence is at hand showing that both these men are expert safecrackers and they are charged with having been the men who blew the safe at Minnetonka several months ago; also the one at St. Cloud and the one at Shevlin, in Clearwater county, twenty miles west of here, six weeks ago. Davis, the man who is still at large, has been identified as the man who shot and seriously wounded Deputy Sheriff Andrew Johnson on Thanksgiving day, 1909. Both Davis and Bean are said to face charges of murder, the former for shooting a policeman in Chicago.

The strangest and most surprising part of the story is that part which relates to Mayor Dumas. The mayor of Cass Lake, whose father lives in Minneapolis, has been highly respected as a leading physician and faithful public official. During the time that "Pussyfoot" Johnson was attempting to close all the saloons in the Indian country of the northern part of this state, in which Cass Lake is located, Mayor Dumas attained notoriety by warning the government that the property of the saloonkeepers of Cass Lake would be protected at the point of guns.

As a possible motive for a plot to discredit him with the people of his community they say that Dr. Dumas had made enemies during the three years of his administration as mayor. He was elected on a "wet" platform, but he has enforced the midnight closing and the Sunday liquor law and there have been many arrests in Cass Lake for liquor violation. His friends say he has antagonized certain elements since he went into office. They say he is the victim of a conspiracy and that they will stand by him. The ease with which he obtained bondsmen indicates that he will not be without friends in his fight to disprove the charges that have been made against him.

Many Men Wanted.

Men wanted for their alleged connection with the gang are Michael Davis, alias "Curley," who, according to the Pinkertons, has a long police record and has served more than one prison term; Martin Behan, who has been prominent in the International Bartenders' Union, with headquarters at Superior, Wis., and E. Le Claire. These men, going by descriptions, are supposed to have been identified with the various jobs that have been pulled off.

The investigation started with a fire April 29, which burned a vacant store at Blackduck, near Bemidji. The store had been owned by Clyde Bacon of Bemidji, but after the fire there was an attempt by Edwin and Edward Geralds, Bemidji saloonkeepers, to collect $2,000 insurance on the building. T. J. Miller of Bemidji, who wrote the policy, is local agent for the insurance company, of which Fenton C. Warner of St. Paul, former state oil inspector, is general agent. Warner was not satisfied with the case and asked for the investigation.

Many other cases of arson in northern Minnesota had convinced the authorities of the existence of a "gang," and Sam S. Fullerton, was appointed a deputy fire marshal May 18, for the express purpose of running down the gang.

Begins the Inquiry.

Fullerton began the investigation immediately. He found that the Blackduck building had been worth not to exceed $500. Holes had been burned in the walls, not less than twelve being found, and from some of these holes saturated lamp wicks twenty-four inches long protruded. Suspicious characters had been seen in the neighborhood during the day previous to the fire, but they disappeared that night. Satisfied that he was on the trail of the "fire gang," Fullerton called in the Pinkertons, and from that time worked with them. The detectives traced the movements of the men seen in Blackduck, finding that they had taken refuge next day in a roadhouse. From there they were traced to Cass Lake and to the office of Mayor Dumas.

Mayor Dumas' office safe was found, the detectives say, to be a storehouse for safe blowing paraphernalia. They say it was practically filled with such stuff, including nitroglycerin, soap, fuses, drills, marked maps, and revolvers of a peculiar pattern, heavy Colts with wooden handles and incriminating letters found in the safe.

Was a Star Athlete.

Dr. Dumas is the son of a prominent Minneapolis business man and was raised there.

At South high school Dr. Dumas was the star quarterback of the football team and was captain in 1897. He also was on the track and baseball teams and was an officer in his class. He graduated in 1898. The following fall he entered the school of medicine at the university, where he remained two years. In the fall of 1900 Dr. Dumas went to Chicago and entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons, where he graduated in 1902. He practiced medicine in Minneapolis for a few years, and went to Cass Lake about six years ago.

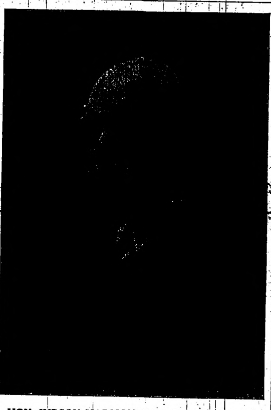
COMPARISON OF GOVERNOR HARMON'S AND GOV. WILSON'S LEGISLATIVE ACHIEVEMENTS

Columbus, O., June.—Governor Judson Harmon, of Ohio, and Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, both considered Democratic presidential timber from coast to coast, have impressive programs of legislation to their credit.

Both met with opposition in their party ranks when they championed pending measures and both made fights to obtain legislation they believed the people wanted and needed. Governor Harmon won out over greater obstacles, for an investigation resulted in bribery charges being filed against several legislators, who had been opposing his bills. Most of the important legislation in Ohio came after the bribery charges were filed. By persistent pounding and hammering, Governor Wilson succeeded in pulling his reform bills through the New Jersey legislature.

Governor Wilson's legislative achievements are better known outside his native state than are Governor Harmon's, for the reason the latter has been tied down in Columbus by a long session which ended only last Wednesday. The New Jersey law-makers finished their work two months ago, and their accomplishments have been advertised throughout the United States.

Under the guidance of Governor Harmon the general assembly enacted 17 important bills that the enlightened citizens had been pleading for in vain for several decades. Governor Wilson's legislative program, as widely advertised, includes bills.



HON. JUDSON HARMON, GOVERNOR OF OHIO

The Harmon Bills.

The big bills on the Harmon program are:

The Oregon plan of nominating and electing United States senators by direct vote of the people.

Placing the Ohio judiciary beyond the clutches of party bosses by electing all judges on non-partisan ballots.

An employers' liability act making provisions for all injured workmen from a fund made up by contributions by employers and employes.

A public utility commission with authority to regulate issues of stock, rates, mergers and service.

A corrupt practices act that will make vote buying in primaries and elections a dangerous undertaking.

A limited initiative and referendum for Ohio cities.

A central board of control for 19 state institutions to take the place of 19 separate boards of trustees with their corps of employes. This bill places subordinate employes in the institutions under civil service.

A shorter ballot by abolishing boards of infirmary directors of three members each, in every county of the state and turning their duties over to the county commissioners making a large saving. A reform of Ohio election laws to prevent corruption and fraud, also a strict system of registration to prevent floaters voting.

To have delegates to the 1912 Ohio constitutional convention nominated by petition only and elected on non-partisan ballots.

A back-to-the-farm movement by requiring agriculture to be taught in all Ohio village and country schools.

Ratification of the proposed income tax amendment to the federal constitution.

Memorializing congress to call a convention to provide for the direct election of United States senators.

Insuring the honest handling of all state money by depositing in banks under the competitive bidding plan.

A complete reformation of tax laws that will put tax dodgers out of business and will compel corporations and owners of intangible property that have been dodging taxes to place their holdings on the duplicate [illegible] included in this is a maximum one per cent tax levy limit bill.

Providing for the construction of a women's reformatory and placing all girls in the state correctional institutions under the control of women.

The Wilson Bills.

The big bills in the legislative program of Governor Wilson, as set forth by one close to that executive include:

A corrupt practices act.

Public utilities bill.

Employers' liability bill.

The commission form of government in cities desiring it by a 50 per cent majority vote, including the initiative, referendum and recall.

An election reform bill providing for personal registration and an identification system in addition to the non-partisan blanket ballot, of the Massachusetts type.

Civil service for election of officers.

A primary bill providing for direct nomination and election of all officials, including delegates to the national convention and United States senators—a more drastic measure than the Oregon plan.

A law placing New Jersey on record as ready to aid in building a ship canal that will serve as a connecting link between the two most populous districts of the American continent.

A law that will protect the New Jersey public from the abuses of the cold storage companies.

When Democratic legislators jumped the party traces and refused to stand for any of these bills, both Governor Wilson and Governor Harmon disregarded party ties and went over to the Republican side and got sufficient votes to have them enacted.

In his message to the Ohio general assembly demanding the enactment of pending measures, Governor Harmon, in addition to the bills in his legislative program enumerated above, advocated the abolition of the party emblem in purely municipal elections; smaller city councils, with a large part of whom elected at large; the nomination by state wide primary elections of all who are in any way to act for or represent the state officially or politically and the non-partisan nomination of judges. The general assembly, however, disregarded Governor Harmon's suggestion with respect to the last four bills.

A Record of Progressiveness.

Judson Harmon has been called a conservative and this is true if conservatism means one who does not suddenly rip up governmental machinery without first constructing a new and better driving power to succeed the old.

A non-partisan judiciary bill which will place all judges beyond the domain of politics, a working men's compensation act and a public utilities bill are among the big measures on the Harmon legislative program that Ohioans claim are far in advance of any such legislation in the United States.

After the Ohio general assembly adjourned Lieutenant Governor Nichols issued a statement in which he said: "It is an undeniable fact that the present general assembly has a legislative record to its credit, of a beneficent nature unequaled by any legislature that has convened since the adoption of our present constitution in 1851.

"The enactment of these several laws is the work of accomplishment of Governor Harmon, secured by persistent and tireless effort without anything of the spectacular or theatrical. Obstacles of a seemingly insurmountable nature were encountered—only to be finally overcome—and the fruits of victory cannot be withheld from Governor Harmon.

"In his work thus set forth and accomplished he was obstructed at every turn by a strong and powerful minority—whose constant efforts seemed to be to prevent the passage [illegible]

FREED FROM SKIN DISEASE

"Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 13, 1908, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. What appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke, matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of scabs and you could not see a particle of clear skin. Other parts of his body were affected, but not to such an extent. We tried about every advertised remedy without avail, indeed some of them only added to his suffering and one in particular, the ——— Remedy, almost put the infant into convulsions. The family doctor prescribed for him and told us to bathe the baby in buttermilk. This did not do any good, so we took him to a hospital. He was treated as an out-patient twice a week and he got worse, if anything. We then called in another doctor and inside of a week the boy was, to all appearances, cured and the doctor said his work was done. But the very next day it broke out as bad as ever.

"We decided that it could not be cured and must run its course and so we just kept his arms bandaged to his side to prevent his tearing his flesh. We left Toronto and shortly after our arrival in Duluth, the Cuticura Remedies were recommended. We started using them in May, 1909, and soon the cure was complete. You would not think he was the same child for Cuticura made his skin perfectly clear and he is entirely free from the skin disease. There has been no return this time. We still use only Cuticura Soap for baby's bath. Robert Mann, Proctor, Minn., May 3, 1910."

The Worth of the Voice.

How wonderful is the human voice! It is indeed the organ of the soul! The intellect of man sits enthroned visibly upon his forehead and in his eye, and the heart of man is written upon his countenance. But the soul reveals itself in the voice only; as God revealed himself to the prophet of old in the still, small voice, and in the voice from the burning bush. The soul of man is audible, not visible. A sound alone betrays the flowing of the eternal fountain, invisible to man.—Longfellow: Hyperion.

"What's the matter?"

"He sprained his arm and they are afraid he can never pitch again, so his folks are going to make a doctor or something of that sort out of him."

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for [illegible]

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES

NAILS, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

The new state olemargarine law will go into effect July 1. The law not only prohibits the sale of colored oleomargarine in any form or manner but permits the sale of uncolored oleomargarine only when the customer has full knowledge of what he is getting.

Marshall, Pennington and Roseau counties comprise the 36th district of the state for road making purposes under the Dunn road law. Asso on as an engineer is appointed he will be ready to give any advice and help direct in the building of roads anywhere within this area.—Warren Sheaf.

Doran, Wilkin county, will have the first consolidated rural school to be organized under the new Holmberg law. A report of the action has been received by State Superintendent C G. Schulz. Three districts will form the new district, which was approvd by a vote of fifty-five to thirteen, and a four-room school house will be erected at once.

For some time there has been much said and written about the seventeen year locust. If this little animal came here with the intention of doing any damage they certainly received a wet reception. The heavy rains of the past month no doubt put a damper on their activities, and no doubt got such a set back that we have nothing to fear from them this year.

The amount of dynamite required to blow out a stump varies with the size and kind of stump, the age of the stump, and the kind and condition of soil. A green stump requires nearly double the amount of dynamite to remove that would be required after the same stump had stood a few years. For this reason it is advisable to use the land for pasture for a time after the timber has been removed before attempting to remove the stumps.—Minn. Bulletin.

If the goverment pays nine cents a pound to railroads for hauling the mails, as President Taft says, then it pays them nine times as much as the express companies pay the railroads, for the express companies charge the papers and magazines from one-half to one cent a pound for hauling them on the same trains as the mail is carried. Perhaps it is by carrying express so much less than they pay the railroads is the reason the express companies declare such large dividends. When Postmaster General Hitchcock says that $9,000,000 a year can be saved to the postoffice department by readjusting the payments to railroads for carrying mail he is getting down to the real meat of the postoffice problem and is justifying all that newspapers have been saying for years.

Summer Training School at Red Lake Falls

The Red Lake county summer school for teachers will commence June 26 and will continue five weeks. There will be a session six days in the week but the classes will be finished at 1:20 each day. Since it would be impossible for both Red Lake and Pennington counties to get each a summer school Supt. Mostue desires that the teachers of Pennington county attend at Red Lake Falls. This is a happy arrangement, and it is hoped that many teachers of Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire will attend. It is anticipated that Pennington county will have a training school next year and the teachers of Red Lake county will attend.

J. A. Soderstrom, superintendent of the Sleepy Eye schools, will be the conductor of the school. He will be assisted by Supt. L. V. Koos of the Red Lake Falls school, Miss Edith B. Whitney of St. Cloud, and Miss Elizabeth Burbank of Fergus Falls.

The state teachers' examination will be held immediately at the close of the school, Aug. 1, 2, and 3.

Expensive Patriotism

Independence day is coming, the day of powder, poisoning and lockjaw; the day of hospitals, ambulances, mutilation, fire, and death.

The idea of the safe and sane celebration of July 4 is becoming more popular as the people generally fully appreciate the awful life and property loss that is entailed each year by the careless handling and sale of the deadly firecracker. When the absolute prohibition of the use and sale of this instrument of suffering and death, to say nothing of the property destroyed each year valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, is accomplished in our state and nation, a grateful populace will have cause to give thanks, and meanwhile they can only hope and pray that the annual sacrifice can be kept down to the minimum.

In the mad scramble for the dollar the average American has gotten away from the educational significance of Independence day, and the more sensational and hazardous the amusement the louder are the plaudits of certain classes of the people. It is perhaps too much to expect a complete return to sanity in a year or two, but the business man and patriotic citizen in all the larger centers of population are taking more urgent steps each year to prevent this annual loss of life and property sacrificed in the name of a patriotic demonstration. Many of the cities and villages have taken steps looking toward the complete prohibition of the sale and use of fireworks of any kind, and the state fire marshal department of Minnesota asks the co-operation of all municipal authorities and patriotic citizens of the state to the end that the expensive nuisance may be abated.

A striking illustration of what concerted effort along this line will accomplish is shown by the experience of Washington, D C. In the year 1908 fireworks were sold in that city on July 4, and 104 people, young and old, were placed in the various hospitals. In the year 1909 the sale and use was prohibited, and not one person was taken to any hospital in the city. The experience of the capital city of the nation certainly demonstrates that satisfactory results can be obtained.

The following statistics, covering a period of eight years, will be of especial interest, demonstrating the necessity of the cooperation of the private citizen and public official to suppress this menace to life and property.

Year	Dead	Wounded	Total
1903	466	3,393	3,859
1904	183	3,986	4,169
1905	182	4,994	5,176
1906	158	5,308	5,466
1907	164	4,249	4,413
1908	183	5,460	5,623
1909	215	5,307	5,522
1910	131	2,923	3,054
	1,662	35,620	37,282

Independence day of 5911 is coming, and how many are to be slaughtered? To what city, town, mother, or father, is it the year to bring sorrow or suffering the day after?

Chapter 28, general laws of 1907, regulates the size of firecracker and prohibits the use of blank cartridge firearms as follows:

"Section 1. Every person who shall manufacture, use, sell, or keep for sale within this state any blank cartridge revolver or other blank cartridge firearms, blank cartridges, caps containing dynamite, and fire crackers exceeding three inches in length and exceeding one-half of an inch in diameter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Village authorities and city councils will be doing the public a signal service if they will forthwith pass an ordinance absolutely prohibiting the use and sale of these goods.

C. E. KELLER,
State Fire Marshal.

This Explains the Matter

Stillwater, Minn., June 1, 1911.
To Our Agents:

A rumor has come to us that our opposition are circulating the report that we will not be in position to supply you with needed repairs for Stillwater binders and mowers.

We wish to advise you that our entire force have been bending every effort to get out the original manufacturing order of binders and mowers, and the trade being so heavy, we have decided to increase by as many machines as we had material to build, and have increased the number of mowers by several hundred.

Today we are turning the manufacturing department into the making of repairs, and will, during this month, ship you a necessary supply.

You may promise your customers that you will be supplied in ample time with such repairs as in the judgment of our superintendent may possibly be needed.

Thanking you for the business you have given us, and assuring you that your interest is ours and that we will make good our promise to take care of you both as regards the repairs and expert assistance, we remain,

Most sincerely yours,

Hearing on Judicial Ditch

A hearing on proposed judicial ditch No. 25 is on before Judge Griddeladd today. Said ditch effects a large number of farmers in the counties of Polk, Marshall, Red Lake and Pennington, about 200 people being present in the court room to voice their opinions for or against the construction of the ditch. There appears to be very strong odpsition to the ditch and that being the case its establishment is doubtful.—Warren Sheaf.

Gophers at Red Lake Falls

The "Gophers" made a very pleasant trip to Red Lake Falls last Sunday, at which place they crossed bats with the Red Lake Falls first team. Although losing the game by a score of 9 to 4, they acquitted themselves creditably and have profited by the knowledge gained from being pitted against a better team and one of longer experience.

The Gophers conduct themselves gentlemanly on as off the ball field and are a credit to our town. They are determined and with more experience and a closer attention to detail and finish of play will become a formidable team and one hard for any team to tackle. They are right back at work and all vote that the Red Lake boys are princes of the first water and look forward with pleasure to the next game with the Red Lake Falls boys.

THE SPECTATOR is read by more people in the south half of Pennington county than any other paper published in the county. Its readers believe what it says. Its subscribers take it because they want to read it and they willingly pay the price. Its subscription list is bona fide. JAMES P. KNOTT DIES.

Made Duluth Famous as "Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas."

Lebanon, Kentucky.—James Proctor Knott, former governor of Kentucky and prominent for many years in congress, died at his home in this city, aged 82 years. Mr. Knott had been enfeebled and partially blind for several years. Mr. Knott was admitted to the bar in 1851 and took up the practice of law at Memphis, Mo., where he resided until 1862.

He was elected a member of the Missouri legislature in 1858 and was attorney general for that state from 1859 until 1862. He was elected to congress from Kentucky in 1867 and served one term. In 1877 he was again elected to congress and served another term. From 1882 until 1887 he was governor of Kentucky.

During his term in congress he was regarded as one of the ablest speakers on the Democratic side and while speaking against a subsidy for a railroad to Duluth, Minn., he referred to that city as "the zenith city of the unsalted seas,"—an expression which became famous the country over.

His widow survives him.

APPENDICITIS PROVES FATAL.

New York, N. Y. — Assistant Civil Engineer Robert S. Furber, U. S. N., 28 years old, died at the naval hospital while undergoing an operation for appendicitis.

Lieutenant Furber was a graduate of the Naval academy at Annapolis, class of 1905. His home was in Minneapolis, where his mother, Mrs. Katherine Furber, now resides.

BREN INVESTIGATION.

Is Resumed by the State Public Examiners at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis. — The grand jury has resumed its investigation of the case of Joseph D. Bren, former acting treasurer at the state university, who is charged with the larceny of $12,826 of the university funds entrusted to him. The investigation was continued in order to give expert accountants, who are going over Mr. Bren's accounts, more time in which to prepare their evidence.

Findling Arrested by St. Paul Police.

Minneapolis.—Ben Findling, sought by the Minneapolis police for three weeks on the charge of murder in the third degree for having caused the death of an 8-year-old boy, was arrested in St. Paul. Findling made a sensational escape from the city jail a few hours before his victim died. The boy's name was Leo Donahue. He was lured to a barn and attacked by a man. Findling was captured and taken before the boy, who declared the prisoner was the one who attacked him.

"GOPHER DEITZ" NOT GUILTY.

Water Hen Homesteader May Be Tried on Other Charges.

Hibbing. — Peter Vorbanich, the "Minnesota John Deitz," was found not guilty by the jury in the district court. Edward Boyle, second assistant county attorney, handled the case for the state and he is unable to give any information for publication as to whether the defendant would be tried on any further charges or not.

The indictment tried and upon which he was found not guilty was that of assault in the first degree. Another like charge and that of resisting an officer is also on the criminal calendar for the defendant to answer.

The chief point of the defense was that the two sheriffs, Fred Magie and George King caught hold of Mrs. Vorbanich and threw her upon the ground in an attempt to handcuff her, and that it was only when Vorbanich heard her screams for helps, that he dropped his work in the field and rushed to her assistance with a pitchfork. He claims that the sheriff did not show their badges, although they claim they did.

WILL NOT TRADE BIG TREES.

R. B. Whiteside, of Duluth, Refuses Government's Proposition.

Duluth.—Robert B. Whiteside, of Duluth, owner of the Calaveras grove of big trees in California, has declined to consider a proposition by the government to trade this timber for other timber in the national forest reserves. He owns 12,500 acres of timbered land, estimated to contain 80,000,000 feet of timber, including the giant sequoias, and the government would trade him national forest lands for his entire holdings.

Mr. Whiteside says that he will consider a reasonable offer to sell the entire tract, but does not care to consider any trading proposition. His California timber at $2.50 per thousand, a roughly estimated average of the market price for California timber is worth $2,000,000.

TO DEDICATE BRAINERD CHURCH.

Bjorgo, of Red Wing, president of the Minnesota district of the Norwegian Lutheran synod, delivered the dedicatory address. Among the pastors who were in attendance are Rev. J. Rorvik of Portland, N. D.; Rev. J. D. Growe of Fergus Falls; Rev. H. W. Sorenson of Shevlin, Minn., and Rev. T. L. Rosholt of Renville. Rev. C. Hougstad, pastor of the church, delivered a short address in English in the forenoon. Visitors were present from Portland, Fergus Falls, Long Lake, Deerwood and Pequot.

Firebugs Work in Eveleth.

Duluth. — An attempt was made to destroy the Empress theater at Eveleth by fire. The fire was started on the stage, where kerosene had been applied. The loss is $2,000 and covered by insurance. Two months ago the Othello theater at Eveleth was damaged by fire and while there were suspicions at the time that it was of incendiary origin, it is no longer doubted. The rear door of the Empress theater, which had been securely locked, was found open by the firemen.

Stampede to File For Land.

Duluth. — Forty-three men and women are in line at the land office in Duluth to file on land which they expect will be thrown open on the Fond du Lac reservation. They are filled with doubt, however, as there is no formal information as to when the opening will take place. The stampede was occasioned by the publication of a letter from S. V. Proudfit, a commissioner of the land office, to James Richardson, of Brookston, stating that the opening probably would occur next month.

No Revision of Catechism.

Duluth.—The revision of the catechism and Bible history and the report of the constitution and by-laws committee consumed practically all of the time of the convention of the Augustana synod of the Swedish Lutheran churches of America at the business session at the Bethany church. The question was finally dropped without any action being taken. The committee elected two years ago for the purpose of collecting and publishing the constitution and by-laws of the synod gave a very complete report.

SOLVING NEGRO PROBLEM

Under Conditions, the Matter Seemed Comparatively Easy of Arrangement.

The central police station was overcrowded one day last week. Officers were wondering what they would do should another arrest be made, when the door opened and a sleepy-looking, blue-eyed foreigner drifted in with a most dejected "Goot efning, mens."

The officers nodded their greetings to the stranger, who then asked: "Can I did some sleepings here? I yust came from Chicago and am start to work tomorrow."

"Well, the only space we have left is a bunk, which is already occupied by a colored man. You can share that if you want to," replied the officer.

The man thought for a few minutes, scratched his head and said:

"Well, I guess I no can see him in dark, and besides I am tired and want sleep."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

SUFFERED FOURTEEN YEARS.

A Terrible Case of Dropsy and How It Was Cured.

Mrs. W. R. Cody, 603 Tenth St., Lewiston, Idaho, says: "Fourteen years I suffered from kidney trouble. I was so lame and sore I could hardly move. Headaches were frequent and my whole body bloated. I had chills and hot flashes and my ankles were so swollen I could scarcely wear my shoes. The kidney secretions bothered me and my nerves were unstrung. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and soon the swelling diminished. The backache and other troubles quickly disappeared and I was completely cured."

A Heartless Father.

"I need some help with my household duties," announced a woman when her husband came home the other night.

"What's the matter with our daughter?" the husband wanted to know.

"Our daughter? The idea! Why, Jim, you know she's awfully delicate, and she would die if she had to do any household work. She has her school, and——"

"And what? Her teacher's report shows that she isn't doing a bit of school work."

"But she is the star member of her basketball team, and you know she is eager to take the prize at the gymnasium contest. But that's just like a man—wanting a delicate girl to engage in rough, hard labor. Be ashamed of yourself, Jim Jenkins! You have no feeling."

The Kaiser Likes the Bible.

The kaiser is a great reader, and while he tries to keep himself abreast of current events, his favorite book is the Bible, says the London Chronicle. A well thumbed and marked copy is always by his bedside. When Mr. Roosevelt visited Berlin last year, the kaiser made him a present of a number of books. About half of them referred to theology and the others to military subjects. These two classes indicate the kaiser's own preferences.

Old Superstition.

It was prescribed by an old superstition that if those who were affected with ague would visit at dead of night the nearest crossroad five different times and then bury a new laid egg, the disease would be buried. If the experiment failed, they attributed it to some unlucky accident that may have befallen them on the way.

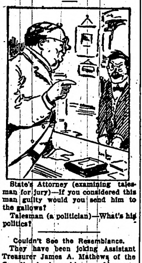
SUCH A QUESTION.



State's Attorney (examining talesman for jury)—If you considered this man guilty would you send him to the gallows?

Talesman (a politician)—What's his politics?

Couldn't See the Resemblance.

They have been joking Assistant Treasurer James A. Mathews of the Guardian bank, on his resemblance to President Taft, and Mr. Mathews has steadily refused to be annoyed thereby. So the jokers subsided and the joke died a natural death.

Until the other night, when Mr. and Mrs. Mathews dined together with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harmon and their little daughter, when the Taft resemblance was revived. Turning to young Miss Harmon, Mr. Mathews asked whether she, too, thought he looked like the president.

Dorothy studied long and earnestly. Then she answered:

"Not in the face, Uncle Jim."—Cleveland Leader.

Historic Event Celebrated.

Australia recently commemorated the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of Captain Cook's first landing. It was in 1770 that H. M. S. Endeavor, a barque of 370 tons, entered the inlet first called Sting Rays Harbor, but afterwards Botany Bay, from the beauty and variety of the plants growing about its shore. The vessel remained eight days, and before she left the British flag was hoisted. As is the custom on each recurring anniversary, the flag was again unfurled upon the spot where it was first displayed, and was saluted by the guns of the warships in the harbor.

Use of Ants in Nature.

"DEAF" BEGGAR COULD HEAR

Incident That Struck Householder as Being Along Slightly Humorous Lines.

"Many funny things happen in a flat during the course of a few months," said a Milwaukee flat dweller, "but one of the best things I ever saw happened yesterday.

"I was suddenly roused from my slumber by three loud knocks on the door. Jumping to my feet and into a bathrobe, I hastened to see what was wanted. I opened the door in time to see a young fellow half way up the flight to the next floor.

"'Hello, there!' I yelled at him.

"He turned around, hastened back and handed out a small envelope, pointing to the inscription. I glanced at it. It was an appeal for aid because the applicant was deaf and dumb.

"Say, I was mad enough to kick him down stairs. Then the joke struck me and I slammed the door in his face and went back to bed laughing."

The Rev. George F. Culmer, "the bard of Odon," celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Culmer was born May 22, 1825, in Kent, England, during the reign of George Frederick (Geirge IV.), for whom he was named. At the time of his birth John Quincy Adams was president of the United States.

The Old Gag.

Miss Lillian B. Rowe, at an advertisement writers' dinner in Denver, said of the harem skirt:

"It will soon be so widely worn that the old gag, perpetrated in the '40s on men, may profitably be revived for women victims.

"Some sharper, you know, will revive the gag by advertising in the Ladies' Own—

"'Send $1 and learn how to keep your harem skirt from becoming fringed at the bottom.'

"Thousands of dollars will pour in, and to each victim the sharper will reply:

"'Wear knickers.'"

Intricate Letter.

When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip, he got a letter from his wife that still puzzles him. It ended thus:—

"Baby is well and lots brighter than she used to be. Hoping you are the same, I remain, your loving wife."—Everybody's.

Some Day Ask Your Physician

To tell you the curious story of how the mind affects the digestion of food.

I refer to the condition the mind is in, just before, at the time, or just following the taking of food.

If he has been properly educated (the majority have) he will help you understand the curious machinery of digestion.

To start you thinking on this interesting subject, I will try to lay out the plan in a general way and you can then follow into more minute details.

Pawlow (pronounce Pavloff) a famous Russian Physician and Chemist, experimenting on some dogs, cut into the tube leading from the throat to the stomach.

They were first put under chloroform or some other anaesthetic and the operation was painless. They were kept for months in very good condition.

When quite hungry some un-appetizing food was placed before them and, although hunger forced them to eat, it was shown by analysis of the contents of the stomach that little if any of the digestive juices were found.

Then, in contrast, some raw meat was put where they couldn't reach it at once, and a little time allowed for the minds of the dogs to "anticipate" and create an appetite. When the food was finally given them, they devoured it ravenously and with every evidence of satisfaction. The food was passed out into a dish through the opening before it reached the stomach. It was found to be mixed with "Ptyalin" the alkaline juice of the mouth, which is important for the first step in digestion. Then an analysis was made of the contents of the stomach, into which no food had entered. It was shown that the digestive fluids of stomach were flowing freely, exactly as if the desirable food had entered.

This proved that it was not the presence of food which caused the digestive juices to flow, but the flow was caused entirely and alone as a result of the action of the mind, from "anticipation."

One dog continued to eat the food he liked for over an hour believing he was getting it into his stomach, whereas, not an ounce went there; every particle went out through the opening and yet all this time the digestive juices flowed to the stomach, prepared to quickly digest food, in response to the curious orders of the mind.

Do you pick up the lesson?

Unappetizing food, that which fails to create mental anticipation, does not cause the necessary digestive juices to flow, whereas, food that is pleasing to the sight, and hence to the mind, will cause the complicated machinery of the body to prepare in a wonderful way for its digestion.

How natural, then, to reason that one should sit down to a meal in a peaceful, happy state of mind and start off the breakfast, say with some ripe delicious fruit, then follow with a bowl of crisp, lightly browned, thin bits of corn like Post Toasties, add a sprinkle of sugar and some good yellow cream and the attractive, appetising picture cannot escape your eye and will produce the condition of mind which causes the digestive juices nature has hidden in mouth and stomach, to come forth and do their work.

These digestive juices can be driven back by a mind oppressed with worry, hate, anger or dislike of the disagreeable appearance of food placed before one.

Solid facts that are worthy the attention of anyone who esteems prime health and human happiness as a valuable asset in the game of life.

BEE OWNERS WARNED.

State Apiary Inspector Explains Indications of Presence of Foul Brood.

John Holmberg, state apiary inspector, yesterday issued the following instuctions to beekeepers in an interview with the Pioneer Press:

It is important that every person who owns or controls even one hive should carefully examine the brood. If the hatching appears uneven and some of the capped cells are torn open, others sunken and of a greasy brown color, and if on opening these cells, they are found to contain dead larvae somewhat shrunken and of a brownish color varying from a light brown to a dark brown or roasted coffee color, and if on running a toothpick into the dead larvae the mass draws out "stringy" from a half inch to an inch in length—if the above symptoms are present, I should be notified at once, for that dread disease "foul brood" likely is present. By prompt action and thorough treatment early in the spring, no great loss will occur. Delay means danger to the entire apiary and to the whole neighborhood where bees are kept.

It is the duty of beekeepers in Minnesota, through their organizations and as individuals, to co-operate with myself and deputies in making our work effective and permanent. Unless the beekeepers themselves assist in the eradication of and protection against "foul brood" and other diseases, and unless they give some material assistance in building up this most pleasant and profitable business, and all work for the protection and advancement of their own interests, the money appropriated by the state for this purpose and all our efforts will not bring about the best results. Co-operation of all the beekeepers, whether owners of one or many hives, and the unselfish co-operation of the beekeepers organizations already formed are necessary to make the work count from a pecuniary and educational standpoint.

We are doing our best in this regard. Scores of diseased hives have received careful attention and will return a handsome profit to their owners.

The office of apiary inspector was created by the last Legislature, and he was appointed by Governor Eberhart. Mr. Holmberg comes from a family of expert beekeepers and has given the business a careful and lifelong study.

BIG SUMMER SCHOOL SESSIONS.

Attendance Expected to Exceed That of Any Previous Year.

Registration at the summer school session of the University of Minnesota and the training school for teachers at the State Agricultural college is still going on, in spite of the fact that classes have been in progress for a week.

At the university 473 students have enrolled, although 400 was the highest mark originally set by Conductor George F. James. At the agricultural school 837 teachers have registered in the training course, and sixty-six have enrolled in the advanced courses in agriculture and domestic science. George F. Howard predicts that the attendance in that branch of the summer school will reach 1,000, thus bringing the probable total up to 1,500, 300 in excess of past years.

A conference hour with lectures by outside speakers is held daily at the agricultural college, and yesterday a model school with fifteen children in attendance was opened in Pendergast hall.

Governor Submits Validity of Stringer Charges to Attorney General.

Governor Eberhart transmitted to the attorney general's office the petition of Alfred Stringer, Minneapolis contractor, preferring charges against the Hennepin county commissioners. The petition was accompanied by a letter requesting the attorney general to pass upon the validity of the charges.

Attorney General Simpson will take up the Stringer charges immediately. The petition was filed with Governor Eberhart last week and recites a long list of charges against the commissioners in connection with letting contracts.

Providing the attorney general gives as his opinoin that the charges demand further investigation, it will be made immediately.

POSTPONE CARLTON TRIAL.

Couple Accused of Murder Near Bemidji Not to Be Tried Until July 3.

Bemidji.—The trial of Lloyd Carlton and his wife, Gena Carlton, on the charge of murdering Peter O. Neste, father of Mrs. Carlton, which was to have commenced Wednesday at Park Rapids, has been postponed until July 3 at the request of E. E. McDonald, attorney for the Carltons.

Judge McClenahan granted the request of Mr. McDonald when the latter showed it was necessary for him to be at Bagley, where eleven farmers of Clearwater county are suing the Crookston Lumber company for damages alleged to have been caused as a result of the overflow of the Clearwater river when a jam of logs made the water of the river back up.

ANOTHER ARREST IN DUMAS CASE.

Bartender Who Sold Drinks To Alleged Plotters.

Bemidji. — Charged by Sam F. Fullerton, deputy state fire marshal, with being one of the members of the party alleged to have attempted to set fire and burn the building containing the United States post-office at Puposky Friday night, June 16, and which resulted in a gun fight between officers and two robbers with Martin Behan wounded and a prisoner in the Beltrami county jail, William Munhall, bartender in the Bank saloon in this city, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Helmer and taken before H. A. Simons, court commissioner, for arraignment. Munhall's case was continued to Saturday, July 1, and bail was fixed at $5,000. Munhall declared he would not try to get any bonds and in default of bonds was committed to the county jail.

Munhall stated that nothing could be gotten out of him relative to the Dumas affair and he "stood pat." Munhall is the bartender at the saloon where it was alleged that Dr. Dumas went when he first came to Bemidji from Cass Lake the afternoon of June 14, when, it is said, the meeting was held at the Larson saloon and the Popusky affair planned and marked money and a check turned over to Dr. Dumas. Asked as to Munhall's exact connection with the Dumas case, the officers here would only say that Munhall was an accessory after the fact in practically the same manner as is charged against Dr. Dumas.

BODIES ARE FOUND IN WOODS.

Evidences of Foul Play Discovered in Woods Near Bruno, Minn.

Kerrick.—Two men were found dead in the woods about twelve miles east of Bruno, near the road to Barnard's camp on the new Soo line branch. Coroner W. A. MacMarns, from Sandstone, went out and reported that the men were evidently murdered. One man weighed about [illegible] pounds, had reddish face and sandy hair and mustache; the other man weighed about 160 pounds and was smooth shaven and had dark hair. Both men appeared to have been struck with clubs, one being crushed over the eyes and the other over the temple.

Would Teach Usable Knowledge.

Winona. — President Lorenzo D. Harvey, of Stout institute, Menomonie, Wis., in the first of a series of lectures and recitals before the Minnesota summer schools at Winona normal, discussed the purpose of the teachers' work. He suggested only usable knowledge should be taught, that making a living must necessarily engage the attention of parents and pupils, and that upon the foundation of usable knowledge there may later be built the culture which is desired for leisure and pleasure. But in addition to usable knowledge the teacher must see that the pupil procures ability to use the knowledge he acquires. He showed how the course of study is being modified under the demands of an education that shall fit for service, and that the usefulness of knowledge is in no way detriment to its culture value.

S.P. TRAIN HOLDUP

SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLARS IN GOLD DUST TAKEN BY THE ROBBERS.

IN COW CREEK CANYON

Cars Detched and Are Believed to Have Been Forced by Dynamite. —Three Men Did the Job.

Eugene, Oregon. — The first section of the Oregon Express on the Southern Pacific railroad was held up and robbed at Westfork, in Cow Creek canyon.

Three masked men stopped the train which was northbound, ordered the express and mail cars separated from the passenger coaches and then compelled the engineer to run his engine up the track. It is believed the robbers dynamited the detached cars.

Explosions were heard in Westfork from the direction in which the cars were taken. It is reported that several thousand dollars' worth of gold dust was on the train.

The train left for San Francisco on time but lost twelve hours. This would have brought it through the canyon in daylight. It is believed that the robbers learned of the delay and laid their plans accordingly.

Many delegates and others in attendance on the International Sunday School Association convention, which closed in San Francisco Tuesday, had arranged to return East by way of north coast points, and a number of them probably were passengers on the train.

OVER MILLION FOR HARVARD.

Bay State Urged to Set Aside Sum Annually for Scholarships.

Cambridge, Massachusetts.—Gifts to the amount of $1,200,000 received by Harvard university during the last year were announced by President Lowell to the 2,000 or more Harvard men gathered for the alumni meeting.

Almost simultaneously with this announcement William C. Boyden of Chicago handed to President Lowell a check for $100,000 as the gift of the class of 1886 to the university, to be invested in the college funds and only the income to be used.

Governor Foss divulged a plan by which he hopes the state will set aside a sum annually for the "creation of a large number of scholarships, to be awarded by competitive examination to young men and women of Massachusetts, the recipient of such scholarship to choose the institution in the state which they will attend."

Secretary Meyer heads the list of five new overseers to Harvard elected to serve for six years. The others chosen are United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, '71; Jerome D. Greene, '96, of New York; William C. Boyden, '86, of Chicago, and Lawrence E. Sexton, '84, of New York.

Chicago Grain Markets.

Chicago, June 29.—Rain in southern North Dakota, and scattered showers with seasonable temperature elsewhere in the Northwest meant lower prices here for wheat. Besides the Liverpool market had made no material response to the advance on this side. Cable dispatches, too, announced that Russia was shipping freely at reduced rates and that foreign crop conditions were excellent. The opening was to ⅝c down. September started at 89¾ to 90⅛c, a drop of ⅜ to ⅝c, and steadied around 90c.

Corn weakened on account of Kansas rain and because of the outlook for wet weather in Illinois. Receipts falling off a little, however, moved local longs to fight the decline. September opened ⅜ to 1c lower at 59 to 59⅜c but later held at 59¼@⅜c.

Short sellers and profit collectors took an active hand in selling oats. On the ensuing break though leading bulls gave the market good support. September started ⅛ to ⅜c off at 44⅜@⅝c, fell to 44⅛c and rallied to 44⅝c.

The provision market sagged in consequence of the backet to grain and hogs. First sales were a shade to 12½c lower with the September delivery $15.35 for pork, $8.27½ for both lard and ribs.

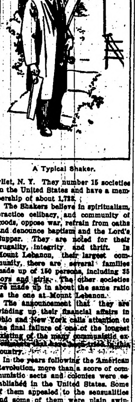
THEY BELIEVE IN COMMUNISM

Shakers Get Their Name From the Violent Contortions Introduced In Their Worship.

New York.—The Shakers are a body of seceders from the Society of Friends formed by Ann Lee (Mother Ann) of Manchester, England, about 1757, and so called from the wild and violent contortions introduced by them into their form of worship. Their official title is "The United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearing." The sect emigrated to America in 1772 and settled near Albany in 1774. Their chief seats have been at Mount Lebanon and Watervliet, N. Y. They number 15 societies in the United States and have a membership of about 1,728.



A Typical Shaker.

The Shakers believe in spiritualism, practice celibacy, and community of goods, oppose war, refrain from oaths and denounce baptism and the Lord's Supper. They are noted for their frugality, integrity and thrift. In Mount Lebanon, their largest community, there are several families made up of 150 persons, including 35 boys and girls. The other societies are made up in about the same ratio as the one at Mount Lebanon.

The announcement that they are winding up their financial affairs in Ohio and New York calls attention to the final failure of one of the longest existing of the many communistic experiments that have been tried in this country.

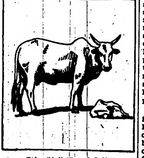
In the years following the American Revolution, more than a score of communistic sects and colonies were established in the United States. Some of them appealed to the sensualities and some of them were plain swindles. The Shakers held out no sensual or financial allurements and it is surprising that they have endured so long, except on the theory that their simplicity in living attracted recruits and made them the sole survivors of all these social experiments. With their passing will close one of the most interesting chapters of social experiments in the history of any country.

ANOTHER SACRED CALF BORN

This Makes the Fourteenth Which Has Come Into the Chicago Zoo Zebu Family.

Chicago.—Another sacred calf, the fourteenth born to Romeo and Juliet, in the 14 years of their residence at the Lincoln Park zoo, has made its appearance. Hundreds of persons thronged to the zebu's pen to look at the new arrival.

"The Lincoln park zoo is getting a reputation as a breeding ground for animals, and we are supplying almost every zoo in the country with our rare specimens," said Superintendent Cy De Vry. "Only the other day we shipped a two-year-old zebu to the Washington Park Zoological society at Milwaukee.



Zebu "Juliet" and Calf.

"Although the zebus have the record, the lioness and lion are slowly gaining upon them in raising a family. The lioness, as a rule, gives birth to three at a time, while the sacred cow has only one offspring."

The zebu is a native of India, where it is revered by the inhabitants. It is pampered and caressed, and to feed it is deemed a meritorious act. The animal is used as a beast of burden and can travel from 30 to 40 miles a day.

Horseshoe in Pine Tree.

Milton, Ind.—In the heart of a pine tree 18 inches in diameter a horseshoe was found by M. H. Hubbell when he cut the tree down. The position of the horseshoe indicates that it was placed around the tree many years ago when it was a sapling and in time had been covered by the growth of the wood.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Washington.—A counterfeit $5 bill on the Citizens National bank of Albert Lea, Minn., has been found by the secret service. It is a very poor photograph and not likely to deceive many.

Boston, Mass. — A bust of the late United States Senator Rice of Minnesota, for the capitol at Washington, was brought into port by Mrs. Luella V. Zurros, an American sculptress, on the Canopic.

Thief River Falls.—This city has entertained hundreds of visitors from Northern Minnesota and North Dakota points, the occasion being the annual Northwestern saengerfest. The singers are all men, during the three day musical program but two women having been heard. The big event was a parade, nearly a mile long.

Lake City.—Mr. and Mrs. John Wise of this city celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, which occurred in the town of West Albany, June 23, 1861. They are pioneer residents of the country, having come here with their parents in the early fifties. Mr. Wise is 78 years old and his wife 68. Both are active and in good health.

Faribault.—The Consumers' Power company will place the new transmission between here and Cannon Falls, together with all substations, under one management. The manager will be B. W. Cowperthwait, who has had charge of the local office for some time. Most of the books and records from the Northfield office have already been transferred here.

Red Rock.—More than 500 persons, the largest attendance so far, listened to Rev. H. Morrison at the session of the Minnesota Pentecostal association at Red Rock. Despite the hot weather, the attendance has been good at all of the services, and Rev. Joseph Smith and Rev. J. H. Mathews addressed an audience in the evening which was nearly as large as that of the morning. The meeting will continue until July 5.

Fergus Falls.—The annual reunion of the Otter Tail County Old Setlers' association was held at Battle Lake. The Fergus Falls band furnished music, and addresses were delivered by a number of the old settlers and others. A picnic dinner was enjoyed on the lake shore. The following officers were elected; President, G. A. Lindquist; vice president, Chris Johnson; secretary, Oliver Olson; treasurer, Ragnor Kalling. It was decided to hold the next annual reunion in Fergus Falls.

Deerwood.—M. D. Stoner, manager of the Cuyuna Range Light and Power Company, has announced that his company is endeavoring to close contracts for furnishing light and power to the towns of Staples, Wadena, Aitkin and Perham. The present headquarters of the power company is at Deerwood. Here is situated the steam plant. Arrangements are now being made to add to the facilities of the steam plant by the water power plant to be located at or near the Crow Wing river.

Roseau.—State Auditor Iverson held the June sale of state land in Roseau county, which was attended by buyers from South Dakota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and local people. The land offered was what was left over from previous sales for the past six years. Five thousand two hundred acres were sold, as compared with 18,000 acres sold in May, the average price being $7.60. This price is a little above the average of former sales, except one, when the average was above $8 an acre.

Bemidji.—A central creamery, owned by farmers and capable of handling all the cream that the farmers of this section will produce, is assured for Bemidji as a result of the meeting of the new Farmers' Co-operative Creamery association, held here. The officers of the new association are: N. A. E. Rako, president; W. L. Morris, vice president; Morris Pendergast, treasurer; A. P. Ritchie, secretary and manager. The association decided to accept the offer of the Fitzsimmons-Baldwin company to rent its creamery plant and building.

Taylors Falls.—The twin towns of St. Croix Falls, Wis., and Taylor's Falls, Minn., entertained two governors—McGovern of Wisconsin and Eberhart of Minnesota—when the formal opening of the new bridge over the St. Croix will take place. The governors were greeted by hosts of St. Croix valley people. Senator Victor L. Johnson of Center City was chairman of the committee and was assisted by Judge Phil H. Perkins of Superior, chairman of the Wisconsin park committees, and many others, George H. Hazzard, father of the interstate park at the dalles of St. Croix, was master of ceremonies. C. M. Loring, father of the Minneapolis park system and twice president of the American Park and Outdor Art association, and many others from the Twin Cities attended.

It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

Politicians, state officials, railroad men, and representatives of the jobbing interests of the Twin cities had a fine outing at the Northern Minnesota editorial meeting at Park Rapids last week. It is presumed that there were a few "scribes" present to give the outing the semblance of what it purported to be.—Alexandria Post News.

Crops are perhaps as good as the average in northern Minnesota, but Mr. Burkee, who is in receipt of crop reports from the whole country informs us that on account of hot and dry weather, the prospects are poor in southern Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, and Illinois. Farmers here have far better prospects than the average throughout the country. However the corn crop in Iowa is still looking pretty good.

The paragraph in our last in regard to the prosecution of dealers in intoxicants was not intended in any way to reflect upon the integrity or ability of County Attorney Stanton, and we regret if by its awkward phrasing it seemed to give such an impression. Now that the public feeling in the matter has subdued a little it is seen perhaps it was just as well to await developments after today, when the so called "malt law" goes into effect, before proceeding to extreme measures.

The work done and results achieved by these scholars should be an encouragement to the pupils of our schools to look ahead and to attain the goal, namely, graduation from the common schools with the least waste of time and energy.

The Teacher's Training school opened Monday last at Red Lake Falls by a goodly number of teachers. Evidently the school is to set a high record mark this year. The teacher's have certainly the very best of instructors and facilities conducive of a successful study in those subjects most essential for the coming school term in our county. The state is placing before the student-teacher the best of instructors and Red Lake Falls the best of accommodations in every line. Let those of our teachers who have not yet enrolled, those that have not taught or have conditionals to make up especially, enroll at once and get the full advantage of the school.

Sixteen teachers from Pennington county—a goodly number indeed—enrolled the first day and will be entitled to perfect attendance certificates, if holding out for four weeks. They are:

Popular Distrust of Courts

The Appeal to Reason is a newspaper published in Girard, Kansas. Its list of subscribers already amounting to about half a million, according to the paper's statement of its circulation, has been increasing with greater rapidity than any other publication in the country. Yet this paper's campaign for subscriptions and popular support is based upon the federal judiciary. The sentence of the editor lately imposed by the federal district court and affirmed by the circuit court of appeals, to six months' imprisonment and the payment of a fine of $1,500.00 for violation of a postal law, was commuted on February 1 last by President Taft, to a fine of $100.00 to be collected only in a civil suit. In commenting on the sentence, President Taft, as reported in the public press at the time is stated to have said:

"The district court evidently looked beyond the record of the evidence in this case and found that Warren was the editor and publisher of a newspaper engaged in a crusade against society and government."

"Moreover, this is not a prosecution for criminal libel; it is a prosecution for what at best is the violation of a regulation as to the use of mails. To visit such an offense with a severe punishment is likely to appear to the public to be an effort to punish the defendant for something that could not be charged in the indictment."

There are no doubt some who will consider the language of the president above quoted as a more severe criticism of the court than anything ever said of it by the editor of the Appeal to Reason and its [illegible] hte fact that it obviously was not intended as a reflection bpon the court.—LaFollette's Magazine.

Died Near Erie

Tarold Halvorson, was found in a dying condition near Andrew Toftland's place a few miles from Erie, about 3 o'clock last Thursday afternoon. The deceased was around Erie a part of the day and started west, presumably for High Landing, about 3 o'clock and must have lost the road. When found he was lying on his face and breathed but once after changing his position.

Dr. Swanson was notified and went out there Friday. After examining the body he decided an inquest was not necessary. It is thought that alcholism was direct cause of death, assisted by the fearfully hot weather.

The Rock of Reciprocity

But a short time ago the good ship Insurgency was sailing bravely down the political main, sails all set and colors flying to ora the breeze; a noble spectacle indeed. The prospects for a successful voyage were good: the wind was fair, her course was true, her crew was staunch and bold.

And then, suddenly beneath her bows rose the jagged rock Reciprocity. The crew, heads turned by popular applause, were fighting among themselves for laurel wreaths that had been flung aboard. Nobody was steering, and the noble ship was impaled on that ugly Rock. The crew hasn't noticed it yet. Unconscious that no more laurels are coming aboard, they still keep up their silly quarrels over those that came yesterday. "Lost with all hands on board" will be the brief tale that ends the story.—Duluth Herald.

The Sangerfest

What was one of the most interesting meetings and the greatest musical event in the history of this city and possibly in any city in northern Minnesota, came to a close last Sunday, when the much talked of and widely advertised Sangerfest came to a close. Never has such a large number of accomplished musicians ever gathered in our midst at one time and only those who were fortunate in being present at the concert and in hearing the result of a long training for this event by the many choruses, soloists, and large orchestra can realize the value and beauty of the programs.—Thief River Falls News.

THE SPECTATOR is read by more people in the south half of Pennington county than any other paper published in the county. Its readers believe what it says. Its subscribers take it because they want to read it and they willingly pay the price. Its subscription list is bona fide. None of its subscribers were gained by offering bonuses or prizes, or by conducting voting contests, or shading the price.

THE SPECTATOR has been published at the old stand for now nearly thirty years, and while it has had its ups and downs its reliability is unquestioned. It does not print as much matter as some machine set papers but, which is better, every word ait does print is of interest to its readers.

It is the official paper of Pennington county and of St. Hilaire village.

Hoff-Swanson Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Hoff was the scene of a very pretty wedding at high noon Wednesday when their daughter Mary became the bride of Dr. Cephas Swanson. Rev. Alex Sand read the service in the presence of about sixty guests. The vows were spoken beneath a large white wedding bell suspended from a bower of green.

Pink and white was the color note in the appointments; principally wild flowers were used throughout the rooms, lady slippers and ferns giving an air of simplicity.

Miss Hoff was given in marriage by her brother, Martin J. Hoff. The attendants were Miss Selma Hoff, sister of the bride, and Miss Josie Gigstad, Mr. John Draeger and Mr. O. H. Olson. Miss Agnes Burkee played the bridal music.

The bride was charming in an empire gown of white crepe velour over white silk trimmed with chantilly lace and ball fringe. She wore a full length tulle veil caught with lilies of the valley and carried a shower bouquet of the same beautiful flowers. Her going away gown was of tan foulard, with long cloth coat to match and black picture hat.

Misses Hoff and Gigstad were daintily gowned in white embroidered batiste and carried pink flowers.

A sumptuous wedding dinner was served at one o'clock

The out of town guests were: Miss Olga Hoff, Middle River, Minn.; Miss Alice Hoff, Park River, N. D.; Miss Olga Olson, Lake Park, Minn.; Miss Agnes Wilson, Thief River Falls; Misses Katherine and Mabel Patterson, Maple Lake, and Mr. Martin Hoff of Black Duck.

Amid showers of rice and heart-y good wishes, Dr. Swanson and his bride left on the 4:20 train for the Twin cities and Grand Meadow, where the honeymoon will be spent. A cosy little home has been prepared and awaits their return, where they will be at home to their many friends after August 1.

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. G. W. HOOPER

WESTERN CANADA'S GOOD CROP PROSPECTS

YIELDS OF WHEAT WILL LIKELY BE 25 TO 30 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

In an interview with Mr. W. J. White, who has charge of the Canadian government immigration offices in the United States, and who has recently made an extended trip through the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta in Western Canada. He said that every point he visited he was met with the one report, universally good crops of wheat, oats and barley. There will this year be a much increased acreage over last year. Many farmers, who had but one hundred acres last year, have increased their cultivated and seeded acreage as much as fifty per cent. With the prospects as they are at present, this will mean from $12 to $15 additional wealth to each. He saw many large fields running from 200 to 1,000 acres in extent and it appeared to him that there was not an acre of this but would yield from 20 to 25 or 30 bushels of wheat per acre, while the oat prospects might safely be estimated at from 40 to 70 bushels per acre. In all parts of the west, whether it be Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, north and south, east and west, and in the districts where last year there was a partial failure of crops, the condition of all grain is universally good and claimed by most of the farmers to be from one to two weeks in advance of any year for the past ten or twelve years. It does not seem that there was a single foot of the ground that was properly seeded that would not produce.

There are those throughout western Canada who predict that there will be 200,000,000 bushels of wheat raised there this year, and if the present favorable conditions continue, there does not seem any reason why these prophesies should not come true. There is yet a possibility of hot winds reducing the quantity in some parts, but with the strongly rooted crops and the sufficiency of precipitation that the country has already been favored with, this probability is reduced to a minimum.

The prices of farm lands at the present time are holding steady and lands can probably still be purchased at the price set this spring, ranging from $16 to $20 per acre, but with a harvested crop, such as is expected, there is no reason why these same lands should not be worth from $20 to $25 per acre, with an almost absolute assurance that by next spring there will still be a further advance in prices.

Mr. White says that these lands are as cheap at today's figures with the country's proven worth as they were a few years ago at half the price when the general public had but a vague idea of the producing quality of western Canada lands.

The land agents at the different towns along the line of railway are very active. A large number of acres are turned over weekly to buyers from the different states in the south, where lands that produce no better are sold at from $150 to $200 per acre.

The homestead lands are becoming scarcer day by day and those who are unable to purchase, preferring to homestead, are directing their attention to the park acres lying in the northerly part of the central districts. It has been found that while these are somewhat more difficult to bring under the subjugation of the plow, the soil is fully as productive as in the districts farther south. They possess the advantage that the more open prairie areas do not possess; that there is on these lands an open acreage of from fifty to seventy per cent of the whole and the balance is made up of groves of poplar of fair size, which offer shelter for cattle while the grasses are of splendid strength and plentiful, bringing about a more active stage of mixed farming than can be carried on in the more open districts to the south.

The emigration for the past year has been the greatest in the history of Canada and it is keeping up in record shape. The larger number of those, who will go this year will be those who will buy lands nearer the line of railways, preferring to pay a little higher price for good location than to go back from the line of railways some 40 or 50 miles to homestead.

Mr. White has visited the different agencies throughout the United States and he found that the correspondence at the various offices has largely increased, the number of callers is greater than ever.

Any one desiring information regarding western Canada should apply at once to the Canadian Government Agent nearest him for a copy of the "Last Best West."

Just Then the Tea Bell Rang.

One of the best repartees ever credited to a habitual maker of happy phrases was that made by the beloved "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" on a certain social occasion.

Going to dine with a Boston neighbor, Dr. Holmes was met by her with an apology:

"I could not get another man. We are four women, and you will have to take us all in."

"Forewarned is four-armed," he said, with a bow.—Youth's Companion.

The One Thing Needful.

"Arms and legs are not so indispensable after all," remarked the man who narrowly escaped with his life in an explosion where he lost the use of both arms.

He sipped his milk in silence through a straw, shook some change out of his pocket to the waiter, and, reaching down with his mouth for the lighted cigar, puffed vigorously. Then, bowing his head and jamming it into his hat on the table, he arose and turned to go, saying: "But this head of mine is mighty useful."

Never Forget Business.

"What would you take for a cold?" the sufferer said,

"I dunno," the man who never forgets business replied. "What'd you be willing to give?"

THE FOURTHS.

They all got up at the break of day
When the cannon commenced to bang away,
And with everything that could pop or sizz,
Or boom or splutter or bang or whizz,
Or bust or fizzle or crack or snap,
Or go off with a fuse or match or cap,
Big and little, the girls and boys
Swelled the racket and din and noise,
When grandfather kept the Fourth.

The piper tooted upon his pipe
As if he was playing to save his life,
The drummer beat till his arms were numb,
And the soldiers followed the big bass drum
In braid and buttons and blue and gold
And epaulets of a weight untold
And plumes and sashes and cords entwined,
And swords so long that they trailed behind,
When grandfather kept the Fourth.

They burned their fingers and scorched their clothes,
And blew off noses and thumbs and toes,
And scared the dog and the cat in fits,
And frightened the horses out of their wits,
And cheered and shouted and speechified
Till the bird of freedom screamed with pride,
And painted the town a carmine gay
In the same old way as we do today,
When grandfather kept the Fourth.

An Emergency Case

DOROTHY BLACKMORE

WHEN Allan Donaldson opened his eyes to behold a beautiful sunrise on the morning of the Fourth of July, his heart gave a glad bound. Bright weather on this, the gayest of all summer holidays, was to him a matter of vast importance.

He was the manager, as well as the inventor of a novel scenic railway that he operated on the large pleasure island where he spent his summers. During the winter he took charge of a concession in a southern resort. In either climate he found it unsafe to operate the cars in the rain, even though there were passengers willing to take a chance. He was too conscientious to take risks with human life, even for the sake of a great deal of money.

This was his sixth week at the island resort. He had insisted upon testing every bit of machinery as it was ready to operate. He was careful to see that not a flaw existed in any part of the tracks or plant. It was to this that he owed a clean record of not a single fatality on any of his roads. As owner and inventor, this meant much to him.

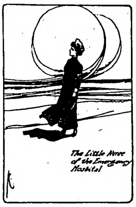
At times he found the noisy, gay life at the pleasure resort distasteful. The constant music of summer bands, the shouting of the orders for various attractions, the tinsel-bedecked performers, the too bright lights and the ever-moving throng all became monotonous. They wearied him.

Of the vast numbers of men and women with whom he came in contact there was one who interested him. And she—this little nurse in the emergency hospital—seemed as far removed from the life of the island as did the sacred recesses of a country church. It was on the occasion of her daily recreation that he chanced to see her.

He learned to watch for her and he invariably saw her turn straight from the hospital gates toward the sandy beach and the great stretch of ocean beyond. Never once did she wander through the gay white streets of the amusement village. The brilliant spectacle seemed not to attract her. On the contrary, it seemed as if it were distasteful to her. Why, Allan Donaldson wondered, had she chosen such a place?

In a quiet way he had tried to find out who she was and who were her friends, but aside from the fact that she was Miss Winifred Atwood, the most capable nurse in the institution, he could learn nothing.

Occasionally he met her face to face as she walked by the sea, and once, when she looked into his face in passing, he saw that she was more beautiful than he had suspected. The salt breeze had whipped a color into her face and the little tendrils that wandered about her forehead were girlishly pretty.



The Little Nurse of the Emergency Hospital

Over his breakfast, the young man thought of her. The very elements over which he was rejoicing—the beauty of the hot, sunny Fourth—and which meant success to him and his enterprise, meant extra work and confinement for her. The larger the crowd, the greater the percentage of accidents to be reckoned with at the hospital. Added to this, the list of fireworks accidents would be sufficent to keep indoors a few extra nurses.

The crowds began early to troop to the island by boat, train, trolley and motor, and the young proprietor of the new scenic railway watched his ticket agent busily handing out admissions to the platform. He walked about the premises with a gratified smile and saw one after another of his miniature cars disappear down the steep incline and into the mysterious cave beyond. Then he saw them emerge, breathless and laughing. The spirit of the day and the place was in them.

The white streets were fairly alive by early afternoon and all concessions were being patronized to their capacity. Children dashed torpedo fireworks to the pavements; lads shot bunches of firecrackers; girls waved flags and tooted horns and all drank lemonade, ate peanuts and had themselves weighed. The gala Fourth was being celebrated in a way to stir the blood of the forefathers who helped to make it a day renowned.

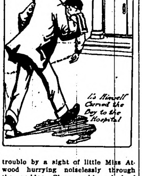
But—Allan Donaldson, inventor, owner of one of the best patronized amusements in the village, felt utterly alone—and lonely. There was no one with whom he felt at home. He could see not one familiar face in the vast throng. He almost longed for the good old Fourths back in the small Ohio town where his father had taught him how to handle fireworks.

Suddenly, he heard the clanging of a bell. He saw the crowds on the street separate. The ambulance was approaching; its rubber-tired wheels whirled over the hot pavements.

In front of the scenic railway entrance a small boy was struggling with an obstinate fire cracker from which he had lost the fuse. He had broken it open, boy-like, to see if there was powder inside. Then, with his bit of punk, he was intent upon making a "fizzer" when the ambulance, swerving as quickly as possible to one side to avoid him, passed over his hand.

Allan jumped quickly to his side and gathered the screaming lad to his shoulder, telling the surgeon on the back of the ambulance to drive on. He, himself, carried the boy to the hospital, for he knew that the rubber-tired wheels could have done little damage. The child was more frightened than hurt.

At the hospital he placed the little fellow in the hands of the proper authorities and was rewarded for his trouble by a sight of little Miss Atwood hurrying noiselessly through the corridor. She gave him a look of recognition when she saw his small charge.



He Himself Carried the Boy to the Hospital

In the course of a few hours the lad was restored to his parents with a badly smashed hand properly bandaged and cared for. They felt that it was to Allan that they owed their small boy's life and they could not do enough for him in the days to come when they journeyed from their seaside cottage nearby to the hospital to have the injured boy's hand dressed.

"There is one thing you may do for me," Allan told them the last time they came to see him on their way to the hospital with their son.

The mother looked at him in glad surprise. "What is it?"

Allan colored, self-consciously. "Miss Atwood—the nurse you spoke of—at the hospital—"

"Ah!" exclaimed the father, a smile in his eyes.

Allan nodded. "Exactly," he confessed. "I've been trying for nearly three months to find a mutual acquaintance. I—I want to know her."

"And you shall, indeed," declared the impulsive little woman. "Come, sonny, we must not be late for the doctor."

She took her son's hand and hurried off in the direction of the hospital.

After that it was as if the island were a different place to Allan Donaldson. Since the night when he had been asked to dine with the father and mother of the lad he had rescued and found himself face to face with Winifred Atwood he had left nothing undone in the way of attention to her.

"It took me three months to find a way to know you," he said to her one night when the season was nearly over and they were both about to make future plans, "and I think that was long enough to make up for the short time I've let pass before telling you—"

"What?" she asked, turning away her head.

"That I love you," he said.

HIRAM CARPENTER'S WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

"I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s psoriasis, and others leprosy, commencing on my scalp; and in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skilful doctors, it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in the form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dustpanful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything, almost, that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. —— treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs; feet badly swollen; toe-nails came off; finger-nails dead and hard as a bone; hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O my God! how I did suffer.

"My sister wouldn't give up; said, 'We will try Cuticura.' Some was applied to one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap. I commenced by taking Cuticura Resolvent three times a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. Result: returned to my home in just six weeks from the time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper. Hiram E. Carpenter, Henderson, N. Y."

The above remarkable testimonial was written January 19, 1880, and is republished because of the permanency of the cure. Under date of April 22, 1910, Mr. Carpenter wrote from his present home, 610 Walnut St. So., Lansing, Mich.: "I have never suffered a return of the psoriasis and although many years have passed I have not forgotten the terrible suffering I endured before using the Cuticura Remedies."

True to Distant Sweetheart.

Betty has tried hard to be true to Reginald and she thinks she has done very well, considering that "Reggy" is far, far away in Idaho. She promised to be true to him and he promised to return to Media for Betty when he has made his fortune.

"Betty, dear; are your thoughts always true to Reggy?" asked her best friend the other day.

"Indeed they are. Why, whenever any one kisses me I try so hard to make believe it's Reggy and sometimes I really imagine it is," she insisted.

Well Domesticated.

Judge Parry in the course of a sketch of his judicial duties states that he has learned to sympathize with domestic frailties. "I was once rebuking a man for backing up his wife in what was not only an absurd story, but one in which I could see he had no belief. 'You should be more careful,' I said, 'and I tell you candidly I don't believe a word of your wife's story.' 'You may do as you like,' he said, mournfully, 'but I've got to.'"

SOUGHT BY TOURISTS

Valley Forge Is Rich in Historic Associations.

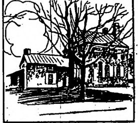
Whizzing Automobiles Now Bring Groups of Patriotic Sightseers to This Scene of the Revolution's Darkest Days.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Through the lovely wooded hills and up and down the valleys which give the name of that historic spot, Valley Forge, the scene of the darkest days of the Revolution, go rushing and whizzing nowadays the hourly automobiles bringing groups of patriotic tourists from all the country. What a change in the spot and in the people since that time when Washington and his suffering heroes camped among these picturesque hills. What a gap between those footsore, discouraged men and the pleasure-seekers whirled in luxury through this great national park.

For some eight miles the motor route circles about over the fine park roads, and on every side the natural charms of the beautiful scenery are enhanced by the hostoric associations. Many memorial tablets have been erected, marking where different divisions of the army or various commanders were stationed. Here and there are log cabins, reproductions of the olden huts, and standing on the old sites. There are lines of the old entrenchments to trace, and much else of interest to a student of military affairs, but the automobile is too swift for study of this sort. The Memorial chapel, unfortunately, does not lie on the route taken; it requires, and well deserves, a separate trip.

One does, however, pass the old school house, built by Letitia Penn in 1703, which was occupied by the Continental army as a hospital during the winter of 1777-1778. The flag floats over it, and a group of budding citizens, who ought to develop remarkable loyalty educated in such a shrine of liberty, flock out for recess as the motor car passes.

But the central point of the trip is, of course, Washington's headquarters. This plain old stone structure is a fine example of the sturdy buildings of Colonial times. In its simplicity and strength it shames the flimsy work of modern contractors. The interior is very interesting. The two main rooms on the ground flour open from the wide paneled hall with ample small-paned windows. In both reception room and office the walls are adorned with portraits, and valuable relics in cases and in the old-fashioned chimney cupboard attract the eye. "Grandfather's clock ticks in the corner, and an old gun fills the open fireplace.



Washington's Headquarters.

Across an open passage through which sun and wind have full play, is a wing containing the quaint old kitchen. While this separation of the kitchen from the main body of the house has some advantages, the modern housewife would certainly object to the unnecessary steps it occasions. And she would doubtless be at a loss to get a meal over the fireplace with its hanging hooks and pots.

From the pump room adjoining the kitchen a steep flight of steps descends to an underground passage, only lighted from an opening in the lawn above. The other end of the passage once communicated with the river and thus afforded a means of refuge and escape in case of surprise by the enemy. That end has been closed up, but the curious investigator can descend and walk along the damp, dark passage, with thoughts of the dangerous days when such a secret way was deemed necessary.

The bedrooms on the floor above are very attractive in their quaintness. They have been furnished by different chapters of the Daughters of the Revolution with suitable antique furniture so they must look very much as they did in the hours when Washington reposed in the big "four-poster," or in the straight-backed chair by the fireplace brooded over the perils of the country. On the third floor, to which one must climb with bended head if a bump is to be avoided, the bedroom is as cozily old-fashioned as anything in the house.

Much time might be profitably spent in looking over the maps, plans, etc., which hang about the walls of the hall and the main rooms, but the interest of the average tourist in such matters is soon glutted and he prefers to walk about the lawn and view the house from every side, or stroll down to the Schuylkill river in front of the headquarters and people the scene with the figures of Washington and his veterans.

Canada Ahead of Uncle Sam.

Washington.—Canada seems to handle some things better than Uncle Sam. Investigation into the railway express companies there shows that the Dominion Express company has a paid up capital of $2,000,000, issued at a cash cost of $600,000, and that the Canadian Express company has a capital of $3,000,000, issued at a cost of only $313,000. The board of railway commissioners says that in order to keep down the scale of their dividends these express companies, even on this large capitalization, paid over to the railway hundreds of thousands of dollars. The commissioners find the rates are excessive and must be reduced, and declare the railways could do all the express business without any express companies.

Church and State.

"If our government is to be enduring it must rest on principles of justice, truth and righteousness, sanctioned by recognition of a supreme being whose superintending providence watches over the affairs of nations and of men. There is no official union of church and state in this country, but there is no antagonism between the civil and religious authorities. Church and state move on parallel lines. The state holds over the spiritual rulers the aegis of its protection without interfering with rights of conscience. The church helps enforce civil laws by moral and religious sanctions. It is the duty of us all, churchmen and laymen, to hold up the hands of our president, as Aaron and Hur stayed up the hands of Moses."—Cardinal Gibbons.

Rest for Tuberculosis Patients.

Dr. Joseph H. Pratt of Boston, who was the founder of the first tuberculosis class in the United States in the Emmanuel church in Boston, claims that in the treatment of tuberculosis absolute rest, often in bed, must be extended over a period of months, before the consumptive should take any exercise. He says: "Prolonged rest in bed out of doors yields better results than any other method of treating pulmonary tuberculosis. Patients will have a better appetite and take more food without discomfort and gain weight and strength faster than patients with active disease who are allowed to exercise. Complications are much less frequent. When used in the incipient stage recovery is more rapid and surer."

Wanted Too Much.

The hansom ordered by a middle-aged spinster was late, and the cabby came in for a good rating when he finally drove up to the door.

"I shall probably miss my train," the irate "fare" informed him, "and I shall hold you responsible. I want to know your name, my man. Do you understand? I—want—your—name!"

The driver clucked up his horse easily. "You'll make your train all right, madam," he assured the woman inside. "And I'll let you have me number if you like. But you can't have me name. That's promised ter another young lady."

'Lize Was "Otherwise at Present."

Sam Jones found Eliza Williams animatedly talking with Jim Lewis at a colored baptism. Now, Eliza was Sam's "best girl," or he reckoned her that way; so walking up he sought to monopolize her attention. But Eliza, considering the interruption unwarranted, wheeled upon Sam with, "Yo' will have to 'scuse me, I am otherwise at present."—Frank P. Fogg, National Magazine.

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

RELIEF IN SIGHT

WASHINGTON FORECASTER PREDICTS COOLER WEATHER GENERALLY TODAY.

OVER FIVE HUNDRED DEAD

Mercury Still Hovers Near 100 Mark in Several Localities—Roll of Fatalities and Prostrations.

Washington, D. C. — The hot wave is breaking, although temperatures in some localities are hovering above the 100 mark. The torridity which has levied a heavy toll of death and a greater one of suffering is about to be dissipated, according to weather bureau experts.

The Middle West, especially beyond the Mississippi valley, still is in the grip of the hot wave; but cooler weather is expected there within the next 24 hours. Weather bureau officials took an optimistic view of the general situation and held out promise for relief within the next day or so.

Reports received at the weather bureau from eastern and Atlantic coast states show a decided falling off in temperature. Boston, which sweltered at 104 Tuesday, found relief when the themometer rose only to 94. Portland, Me., was 20 degrees cooler than Tuesday.

Philadelphia and Buffalo, N. Y., with 94, New York city with 93, and Baltimore and Washington with 98, were other Eastern cities which showed drops in temperatures. hours.

Light showers were reported in the upper lake region and brought relief to the people of that section. At other points in the West the weather was fair, with the thermometer hovering above the 100 mark. Concordia, Kan., was the hottest place, with a record of 108. Chicago and Dodge City, Kan., reported 102; Des Moines, Iowa, and Omaha, Neb., 106; Kansas City, Keokuk and Dubuque, Iowa, 104; Wichita, Kan., 100, and St. Louis, 98.

Heat Costs 500 Lives.

The loss of more than 500 lives is to be credited to the great heat wave of July 1 to 5, 1911.

The torrid period will be memorable in weather annals for its wide extent, its long duration, its record-breaking temperatures in many places, and the long list of fatalities.

The hundreds of news dispatches which cities from the North Atlantic seaboard west to the plains states have exchanged during the last day account, according to careful review last night, for the deaths of 431 persons from the heat and 80 from drowning, a total of 511.

Many Victims in Chicago.

Chicago, Illinois.—Heat killed 32 persons, including 12 babies, and prostrated dozens in Chicago, the fifth day of the present heat wave.

The temperature was recorded at 101.5 in the weather bureau tower, while at the street level the mercury climbed to 108 degrees.

Deaths resulting during the hot wave have swamped the coroner's office. There are not a sufficient number of police ambulances in Chicago to care for the prostration cases. Frequently express wagons are called to convey the victims to hospitals.

Record of Prostrations.

New York, N. Y.—The day's list of deaths from heat in the Metropolitan district was 26 up to midnight. In Manhattan and Bronxboroughs 123 cases of heat prostration were reported. Horses suffered severely from the heat in the city, more than 200 being attended by humane society agents.

Philadelphia's Toll Large.

Philadelphia, Penna. — Twenty-nine deaths from the heat were reported at the coroner's office, making a total of 51 since the present hot wave began. The maximum temperature was 94 degrees. Deaths from the heat were also reported from many parts of the state. Two cases were reported from Scranton and there were cases in Wilkes Barre, Hazelton, Lancaster, Shenandoah, Shamokin and York.

Rains Relieve Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa. — The government thermometer reached 105. At 5:30 it took a sudden drop, and cool breezes were followed by copious showers.

Two deaths and numerous prostrations have resulted from the heat in this city.

Four Die in Train Wreck.

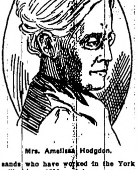
Superior, Wis. — Four men were killed and three badly injured in a collision between an extra and a gravel train on the Soo line Chicago division a few miles from this city. The dead and injured are being brought to Superior. Mixed train orders are said to have caused the collision. The trains met on a bridge over the Nemadji river, the bridge catching fire. Fire apparatus is being rushed from here to the scene of the wreck. The dead and injured are all railroad men.

AGED WOMAN CLOTH WEAVER

Mrs. Hodgdon at 75 Says She Could Not Live Without Sound of Looms.

Saco, Me.—Save one, the only American in a vast room among thousands of those who speak no word of English and where the stridor of machinery dins her ears from daylight to dark, Mrs. Melissa Hodgdon, at seventy-five, the oldest weaver of cloth in America, has just completed her fifty-fifth year of work in the cotton mill of the York Manufacturing company here.

Although Mrs. Hodgdon has outlived all but one of the many thousands who have worked in the York mills since 1856, and has even seen the original owners of the great concern pass into their graves, she is still as capable a worker as the average young French girl of nineteen, and her fingers will comb out a "pick-out" or mend a thread or throw in a new shuttle with all the deftness and precision of the loom itself.



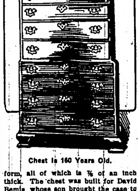
Mrs. Amelissa Hodgdon.

Mrs. Hodgdon has seen the cotton business change from a struggling little industry, hampered by poor machinery and even by a dearth of cotton caused by the Civil war, to perhaps the greatest activity of New England, and one of the greatest in the United States. When she began her work the cotton loom was little different from the hand loom which had been in use since antiquity. At that time there were many hand looms still in use. Mrs. Hodgdon says she does not remember whether she ever used a hand loom, but says she knew weavers in Canada who were then using them.

ANCIENT CHEST OF DRAWERS

School Teacher to Receive Heirloom in Form of Old-Fashioned Article of Furniture.

South Paris, Me.—Being next in line of family descendants, Frank Farrar, a native of this place, now a school teacher in Dallas, Tex., is to receive a valuable heirloom in the form of a chest of drawers, an old-fashioned, seldom-seen article of furniture. The old relic, hand-made 160 years old, is seven feet high and has eight large drawers and three small ones. Four boards which make the sides are each 36 inches long by 27 inches wide and ⅞ of an inch thick of solid mahogany. There are 38 feet of this rare wood used in the finished form, all of which is ⅞ of an inch thick. The chest was built for David Bemis, whose son brought the case to Paris with him in 1796.



Chest Is 160 Years Old.

Oklahoma Indians.

Muskogee, Okla.—There are many Indians in the West prominent in public life. Charles D. Carter of the Fourth congressional district of Oklahoma, is a Chickasaw Indian, with some Cherokee blood. Carter was born and brought up among the Indians, was educated in an Indian school and has been associated with Indians all his life. Senator Owen of Oklahoma is a quarter breed; W. A. Durand, speaker of the Oklahoma house of representatives, is a Chickasaw, and Benjamin F. Harrison, secretary of state of Oklahoma, is a Choctaw, born and educated in the Choctaw nation. In the eastern half of Oklahoma, in proportion to the population, more Indians are holding state, district, county and municipal offices than white people, and they are equally successful, which demonstrates conclusively that they are competent for self government. Governor Cruce of Oklahoma, while not an Indian, is married into the race, his wife, now dead, having been an Indian.

DEPOSITS ARE BIGGER.

State Bank Figures Show Gain Over March Call.

Although deposits in state banks show a decrease over the corresponding period of 1910, a marked increase is shown over the deposits in state banks at the time of the March call of the bank examiner. Figures were compiled by K. Chase, bank examiner, showing the condition of state banks of discount and deposit at the close of business on June 7. They show an increase in deposits over the March call of $827,803.23. The increase in savings deposits is $3,415,362. There was a decrease, however, in the deposits subject to check of $2,510,483.51 under the call of March.

The resources of 712 banks in existence at this call show a net increase of $2,139,513.41 over the resources of 701 banks reported at the last call. Items showing an increase aggregated $5,522,756.64, and the items decreasing in the resources amounted to $3,383,243.23. Due from banks showed a decrease of $3,252,094.67, which indicates that the state banks have drawn heavily on their reserves in city banks. There was an increase of $4,071,235.45 in loans and discounts over the last call. The increase over loans and discounts of the call of June 30, 1910, was more than $10,000,000.

Total resources of the 712 state banks are $129,574,307.41, against $128,434,794 in March. The resources of the 666 banks reporting June 30, 1910, amounted to $119,472,553.58.

The overdrafts show an increase of $36,668.14 over the call of March.

The new water system, which will give the pure spring water from the city springs, was opened by a big celebration at the city park in the evening of the day. The celebration marked an epoch in this city's history.

In place of the regular band concert in the park, the F. A. Tichy park band opened the program with a selection and were followed by "Praise Ye the Father," rendered by a vocal chorus of 20 voices. Dr. J. F. Stout gave an eloquent brief address on "The Fountain and Society," Mrs. Gertrude Ellis Skinner of the Herald gave a witty address upon the theme, "Austin Women and the Well. "After the chorus had rendered "The Spacious Firmament," Judge Nathan Kingsley of the district court delivered the address of the occasion in an eloquent and fitting manner upon the reminiscent subject, "Then and Now." The most striking feature on the program was the singing of "America" by the 5,000 spectators who had gathered to celebrate the event, led by the chorus of trained voices and the band. Music by the band closed the program.

Located two miles east of this city is the city spring farm, which has been purchased at an expense of $20,000 and on which are located the city springs, placed by nature 14 feet above the level of the city pumping plant.

These magnificent springs cover an area of two acres and daily flow 2,500,000 gallons of clear, sparkling spring water, which flows by gravity to the pumps of the city through an 18-inch iron pipe line. This city only uses 600,000 gallons of water a day, so that a storage reservoir of concrete holding 4,000,000 gallons has been built around the springs enclosing them and another reservoir of 2,000,000 gallons has been built at the plant for a fire reserve.

The entire project cost this city around $50,000 and the water is pumped through the city by two high pressure pumps, which supply the necessary fire pressure for the highest buildings.

The city park on East Water street had been illuminated and prepared for the occasion by Superintendent William Todd of the Light and Water plant and he had prepared some novel effects in spouting foundations and illuminations with colored lights to commemorate the plentiful supply of water now possessed by this city.

Behan Out On Bond.

Bemidji. — The robber, Martin Behan, captured in the battle at Puposky on the morning of June 17, was released from the county jail on a bond of $5,000 signed by his wife and J. B. Meyer. Behan, who is in the last stages of consumption, was taken to Wisconsin by his sister and wife.

Heavy Damages for Broken Leg.

Fergus Falls.—Mrs. Caroline Bjornaas has begun suit in the district court against the city of Fergus Falls for damages sustained in a fall on an alleged defective sidewalk.

JEWS COMING TO MINNESOTA.

Colony Has Option on 10,000 Acres in St. Louis County.

Chicago. — Fifty orthodox Jewish families will leave Chicago next fall and form the first American agricultural colony of Jews in existence. The plan was unfolded by B. A. Nelson at a meeting of Jews in the Chicago Hebrew institute.

Mr. Nelson has arranged a plan for a communal colony in the timber lands of Northern Minnesota. It will start with fifty families, each of which will buy 40 acres of land. An option on 10,000 acres in St. Louis county, Minnesota, has been obtained and, as soon as the success of the first colony is assured, it is expected that other Jews of Chicago will go to Minnesota.

Governor A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota has promised his co-operation and assistance in the plan, according to Mr. Nelson, and the first thing that the colony will do on arrival in Minnesota will be to take advantage of the fund for settlers which the state has set aside.

"The Jews have never been able to settle down," said Mr. Nelson, "unless it was in a city. They want company. But we will have a colony, and the people will be satisfied. All of the money from the timber will go to the general fund, but after that each family will take up 40 acres of land for itself.

"Where the Jew goes, commerce goes. Our people will not sit down and smoke a pipe behind the stove in the winter time, like the Gentile farmer. The Jew will plan on a bakery, a grocery store, a tailor shop. He will work all the time. Our colony is sure to be a success, and it will be a great good thing to get the people out of the city, where there is no chance for so many of them."

SKULL IS RUNESTONE CLEW.

Fergus Falls. — The report that the Minnesota Historical society is to make excavations on the point of land which juts into Pelican lake, in the hope of finding traces of the Norsemen who are supposed to have perished there in 1362, has aroused considerable interest in the neighborhood, and it has been learned that a skull and other remains of a human being who had perished in the distant past were uncovered there several years ago.

The supposition that Norsemen were killed there is based on the inscription on the famous Kensington runestone, which tells of the slaughter of ten Norsemen near where certain rocks or skerries jut into the lake.

The skull referred to was found on September third, 1897, by Theodore Walstead, George Armstrong and Hjalmar Melquist. It was imbedded under the roots of a large willow tree indicating that it was very old. The spot is not far from the skerries where the runestone says that the Norsemen were slain by the Indians.

STATE OFFICERS TURN ORATORS.

Governor Is Busy Speaker — Attends Five Celebrations.

St. Paul.—State officials acted as Fourth of July orators. Governor Eberhart was the busiest of all. He appeared in South St. Paul, Harriet Island, St. Anthony Park, Hamline and Minneapolis. State Auditor Iverson went to Luverne, to deliver the Fourth of July address.

George Welsh, commissioner of immigration, was the orator of the day at Lindstrom.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Washington, D. C. — The Commercial club of Duluth has asked President Taft to stop at that city, en route to Houghton, Mich.

Duluth.—Mary Ringhofer, 6 years old, daughter of Joseph Ringhofer, a farmer residing near Elmer, Minn., was accidentally shot and seriously but not dangerously wounded by her brother John, sixteen years old, when the lad fired at a chicken hawk. The girl was brought to a Duluth hospital.

Little Falls.—Theodore Martin, who on June 18 shot and killed his wife at their home nine miles northeast of Little Falls, was given a hearing and held to the grand jury. It is said Martin has already written a confession. Later he engaged an attorney and will stand trial. The crime resulted over a dispute as to whether Mrs. Martin would give her son his supper, the husband not wishing the boy to eat in the house.

Wheaton, Minnesota. — Charles Hunter, a prominent farmer living four miles southeast from Wheaton, was instantly killed in the saloon of Conrad Wuerman at Dumont. Hunter had been employed to act as assistant bartender during the firemen's tournament. A keg of beer had been charged with gas preparatory to being used, when it exploded, inflicting frightful injuries upon the face and head of the victim. Mr. Hunter leaves a widow and a number of children.

Winona.—Suffering a fatal stroke of apoplexy, Julius Kempe, 65 years old, a pioneer of this county, rode several blocks through the principal streets of St. Charles, his limp body leaning to one side of the carriage and his arm dangling over one of the wheels. Those on the street at the time were not aware Kempe was dead until one of the man's friends halted the horse. Mr. Kempe had gone to the postoffice about 7:30 and was returning when death overtook him. A physician pronounced death due to apoplexy.

Washington, D. C. — The proclamations providing for the opening of the Fond du Lac and Koochiching county, Minnesota, lands to entry are in the hands of the president for signing. Although two entire townships in Koochiching county will be opened probably this week practically every subdivision is occupied by a squatter [illegible] in for five years or more, and who therefore will have a prior claim for this reason, the contemplated opening will attract scarcely any new settlers.

Minneapolis. — The Minneapolis Civic Celebration was formally opened with homecoming day, and Minneapolis enjoyed the first of the seven-day fete in the open. The troops of the Minnesota National Guard mobilized at Camp Lowry, and went through military routine to the great delight of hundreds of visitors. The Nicollet avenue court of honor was illuminated in the evening, and Minneapolitans and their guests went home happy in the foretaste of the good things that are to be theirs during the week's fete.

Walker.—After eight years of operations during which time over 280,000,000 feet of logs have been cut, the Northland Pine Company sluiced its last boom through Leech river dam. The camp equipment in the seven camps of the company has been shipped to Tamarack, where logging operations will begin soon. About 35,000,000 feet of pine will be cut. The Northland company has logged eight years on Leach Lake, the last four being at its last location at Headquarters camp, near Bear Island. During the eight years an average annual cut of 35,000,000 feet has been made under the supervision of James Long, logging superintendent.

Minnesota's new malt law will deprive the United States government of thousands of dollars annually in revenue, the estimated loss in Minneapolis alone being from $8,000 to $10,000 a year. Dealers in malt beverages are required to pay a government tax of $20 a year. According to local internal revenue offices there were between 400 and 500 places in Minneapolis which dealt in malt drinks usually in connection with poolrooms and confectionery stores. Under the state law which went into effect Saturday, prohibiting the sale of malt except by licensed dealers, these places are barred from the sale of malt and the proprietors have failed to pay the government tax for the ensuing year.

MINNEAPOLIS CELEBRATION.

Governor Eberhart Leads Parade of State Militia.

Minneapolis. — The Minnesota National Guard parade and the Fourth of July celebration at Lake Harriet were the chief attractions of the Civic Celebration program July 4. Governor Eberhart as commander in chief of the guard headed the military parade, which included every company of militia in the state and the Duluth naval marines.

TWO DEAD, 17 INJURED.

Fatal Results of Railroad Wreck in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Penn.—Two persons were killed and seventeen others injured when a train on the Pennsylvania railroad from Broad street station for Atlantic City sideswiped the Atco local northbound at Locaston, N. J. Railroad officials say the accident was due to the mistake of the brakeman of the Atco train, who threw the wrong switch.

Saturday, July 8, 1911.

We have before us Vol. 1 No. 1 of the Gonvick Banner, published by T. A. Cashman, formerly of the Bagely Herald. It is well edited and neatly printed and will no doubt receive the patronage it deserves.

A n exchange published in southern part of the state says that it will be a calamity if United States Senator Nelson is retired at the end of his term. Be that it may the Herald is willing to be a party to the "crime of 1912" that will lay the senator on the shelf.—Ada Herald.

Got any nickels in your pocket? If so you better look them over. If any are dated 1910 you are short that much money for it is counterfeit as no nickels were coined last year. In other respects the nickels look all right. They are about the same weight as the good coin. They are a trifle off color but not enough to be noticed by the average person. Other towns have reported having a number of these bad coins in circulation and it is thought that perhaps they were passed by an organized gang which has gone through the state. The department of justice at Washington has sent out notice of the coins.

Consolidate the Schools

The revenues of the state of Minnesota are now available to an extent never before equaled in any state for the upbuilding of rural schools. It is the purpose of the state as manifested in the Holmberg and collateral laws, to offer to the boys and girls of the farms educational opportunities second to none that are enjoyed by the boys and girls of the towns. The country youths now growing up are to enjoy in actuality the larger benificences of the state's magnificent school fund, which those of preceding generations have enjoyed only in anticipation.

"Consolidation" is the key which is to unlock, far earlier than was dreamed of, the rich resources of the state for the betterment of rural educational facilities. It comes by a natural process of evolution from the increased density of population and the improvement of the roads, coupled with the shrewder judgment born of a comparison of the results won by the well equipped city graded schools as contrasted with those of the one room country district school. Consolidation now offers, on the one hand, a building fund equal to one-fourth the cost of a building, unless a building costing more than $6,000 is erected. Fifteen hundred dollars is the largest amount allowed toward a building. On the other hand, it offers a contribution of $1,500 annually to the support of every consolidated school of four or more rooms. All this in addition to the regular apportionment from the state school fund of about $5 per pupil annually.

The school thus aided must teach Agriculture, Manual Training and Home Economics; must observe certain requirements as to the qualifications of the teachers employed, and have the approval of the state superintendent of public instruction for their plans and equipment. None of these requirements are burdensome; rather, every one of them carries a benificence. The load of taxation left to be assumed by the people of the consolidated district—including the cost of transporting pupils to and from their homes—is so slight that in many cases the change from the district to the consolidated plan will not be noticed through any pull at the pocket.

Districts which, with such an opportunity inviting them to action, continue inert and indifferent, set themselves down as below the plane of Twentieth century activities. A progressive Americanism should forthwith set the machinery of consolidation at work in all the school districts of Minnesota.—C. R. Barns, Extension Division, University Farm.

The Ball Game

The Gophers played at Red Lake Falls July 4. There were two games there on that day.

The first game started at one o'clock and lasted for seven innings. Terrebonne and Red Lake Falls were the opposing teams, the locals winning in a well played game by a score of 0 to 2.

At the close of the first game the St. Hilaire team took up the bat. This was an interesting contest, and should have been our game by all the rules of probability. At the beginning of the fifth inning the Gophers had 1 score and the Red Lake Falls team 0. In the fifth inning, after an error which allowed the enemy to run in two scores, the Gophers "went up in the air," so to speak, and Red Lake Falls made three more scores in short, making the total 5 to 1. Following is the score by innings:

Drive 1,000 Miles

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Austin returned by train from Fargo this morning, after having made a 1,000 mile automobile trip through North Dakota, a small portion of South Dakota, and portions of Minnesota.

Mr. Austin states that the crops are totally ruined practically around Aberdeen, S. D., nearly totally ruined in portions of southwestern North Dakota, near Lidgerwood and vicinity, and badly burned in the vicinity of Alexandria, though the corn near the latter place is in fine shape.

The trip was made without accident of any kind. The roads were generally very good, as there has been practically no rain in most of the territory covered. The automobile was left at Fargo, where it rained yesterday afternoon and nearly all night.

Mr. Austin says the people in this section do not know what magnificent crops they have, or how they have been favored by rain this season.—Crookston Times.

Firemen at Ada

At the annual tournament of the northern Minnesota firemen, held at Ada this week, the Crookston department won first prize for having the largest number of uniformed men in line. Twin Valley and Bemidji tied for second.

The first prize for being the best appearing company went to Twin Valley, with Crookston second.

The hook and ladder race was won by Ada, the time being twenty-five and two-fifths seconds. Bemidji took second money, making the run in twenty five and two-fifths seconds.

Boyd of Crookston took the 100 yard dash in ten and one-fifth seconds, defeating Staska of Warren by a foot.

STENOGRAPHERS' NOTES.

Perfectly Intelligible Only to the One Who Wrote Them.

"My stenographer was taken ill suddenly," said a well known business man the other day, "and as I had dictated some important letters to him which I wanted written at once I took his notebook to a stenographic institution and asked for a man to translate the notes. Judge of my surprise when I was informed that no matter how good an expert a stenographer may be he cannot read the notes of a colleague."

"This is a common complaint of men who know nothing of stenography and have never studied it," said a shorthand reporter recently. "It is true, however, that no stenographer can accurately translate another's notes. This does appear strange, but it must be remembered that stenography is by no means a perfect science. In fact, it is most imperfect, and there is great room for improvement. Therefore every intelligent person who studies stenography after he gets through the rudiments of it begins to improve it in his own way, invents word signs and characters and changes or alters those he has learned. As a result every stenographer's notes are stamped by his own individuality, a mystery to another, and therefore, with the exception of words most commonly used, it would be impossible to read another's notes accurately.—New York Herald

Unique Rainmaking.

One of the oldest rainmaking plants is the invention of a native of one of the Indian provinces. By means of a rocket he sends more than a mile into the air a reservoir of ether attached to a parachute. This, being released at the highest point, floats gently back to earth, the condensation being caused by the evaporation of the ether. It is said to be decidedly efficacious even where there is scarcely a trace of cloud.

Cut It.

"Yes," said the college student, "dad got the idea that I was cutting up too much, and so he cut in and threatened to cut down my allowance unless I took a brace. I felt all cut up at first, but I didn't want my allowance cut off or cut into just for a little funny business, and so I cut it out." And the listening foreigner remarked, "What did the young man say?"—Somerville Journal.

Selling by Candle Time.

"It did me good," observed a young girl who had just returned from England, "to see in real life one of the old customs my grandfather used to tell me about—the burning of the time candle at an auction. In Berkshire the old custom still prevails, and when an auction is in progress and an article is put up for bidding a short length of candle is lighted as the bidding begins. The shouting continues until the candle burns out, and the last bid before it flickers its last is the one that takes the cake. I don't know but what it has an advantage over the 'Going, going, gone!' variety, but it is fearfully slow and un-American."—Exchange.

American Buyer in London.

"My American accent came near to taxing me just $480 on my last trip to London," remarked a clubman. "When I tried to buy a certain bulldog pup there the kennel man priced it at $500, as he had me sized up as an American and, in his regard, an easy mark. I made a deal with a cabby at the hotel stand, who went around and bought the same pup for me at $60, a very fair price, as the dog will never be a show winner. I gave a $10 tip to the cabman, so I made $430 by employing an agent who called his hansom an 'ansom and his horse an 'orse."—New York Sun.

Jackdaw and Magpie.

In England the daw is hardly ever mentioned but as Jack, yet daw and not jackdaw is the proper name of the species. It is suggested that the pie owes the "mag" to some corruption of Margaret or Meg. To mag is to chatter, but whether the verb was derived from the name or the name from the verb is a question. It is more than probable that the Jim Crow of America (the old name for a negro boy) was brought across from England in the days when a crow was Jim, as a swallow was Dick.—London Standard.

LOMBARD PIANOS
The Pianos With The Sweetest Tone

Praised by Press and Pulpit

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

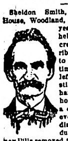
FEELS LIKE A BOY.

Since Doan's Kidney Pills Cured Him of Terrible Kidney Trouble.



Sheldon Smith, Prop. Arlington House, Woodland, Cal., says: "Three years I was almost helpless. Kidney secretions scalded terribly and obliged me to arise ten to twelve times a night. My left limb became so stiff and sore I could hardly walk — just hobbled around with a cane. I had almost every complaint that diseased kidneys produce, and Doan's Kidney Pills removed them all. At the age of 76 I feel like a boy and enjoy health and comfort. Can anyone wonder at my gratitude?

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura.

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. Johnson, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

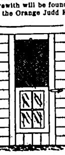
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

POULTRY

VENTILATION FOR HEN HOUSE

Satisfactory Method Is Shown in Illustration—Wire Screen Placed in Door Panel.

Where it seems inadvisable to change a poultry house in order to establish better ventilation, the method shown herewith will be found satisfactory, says the Orange Judd Farmer. It consists of substituting a wire panel for the usual wooden panels in the doors. Behind this wire there should be a second panel of burlap, so that in the severest weather the ventilation may continue without too much draft. It will not be necessary in operating such a scheme to provide any other outlet for foul air, although the air can be kept from getting foul by daily removal of the droppings. In summer the burlap can be readily removed to permit of very free movement of the air, a necessary thing in hot weather.

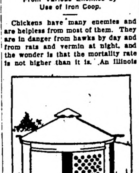


Ventilating Door.

BROODER IS ANIMAL PROOF

Chickens Protected Day and Night From Various Enemies by Use of Iron Coop.

Chickens have many enemies and are helpless from most of them. They are in danger from hawks by day and from rats and vermin at night, and the wonder is that the mortality rate is not higher than it is. An Illinois man has invented a metal brooder coop that should aid in saving many chickens, because it is proof against almost all things that fly, run or creep. The coop is circular and made of heavy galvanized steel, so slippery that insects cannot crawl up its side.



New Rat-Proof Brooder.

The top is conical and has a ventilator at the apex. The door is perforated and slides around, while inside is a solid door by which the perforations can be closed, leaving only the ventilator open, and nothing dangerous can get in there. The mother hen can be confined inside and the little chicks allowed to run in and out of a small crack, by keeping the door partly open, or the whole family can be shut up safely inside over night.

SUCCESS WITH THE TURKEYS

First Essential Is to Keep Youngsters Dry—Provide Air-Slaked Lime and Grit.

It is very essential to keep them off the grass in the morning while the dew is on. After they are allowed to range feed them a little each evening to bring them home. Always have a pile of air-slaked lime and grit where they can get at it and see how eagerly they will go after it on coming home. If any of them droop look for lice in the quill feathers of the wing and along the back. I use a good fresh insect powder to dust them when they are a week old and once a week after that until eight weeks old. If the trouble is not due to lice it is probably caused by something they have eaten and for this I give one-half teaspoonful of salts dry.

Ventilation and Cleanliness.

If poultrymen would worry less about ventilation and pay more attention to cleanliness there would be less losses. Ventilation is needed, and if the houses are built on the scratching-shed order, all will be supplied that is required. But if the filth is allowed to accumulate in a hen house, all the ventilation that a scratching-shed house can afford will not prevent the entrance of disease.

Give Fowls Free Range.

The farm poultry utilise a great deal of the grass that grows in the spring and after the hay harvest, and this is a money-making operation for the farmer. Therefore the farmer must give his fowls free range if he is to get the greatest value out of them.

Need of Poultrymen.

What most poultrymen need is more enthusiasm and fewer dreams.

ERADICATE THE CHICKENPOX

Disease Is Not Necessarily Fatal and Fowls Have Recovered Without Treatment.

Chickenpox, sometimes called sore head, is a disease which will be prevalent at this time of the year among the growing stock unless proper precautions are taken, says the Kansas Industrialist. It is a contagious disease, and spreads very rapidly among the flock when it once gets headway. It seems to affect the cockerels more than the pullets. Because of its appearance on the comb and face of the bird it should not be a difficult matter to eradicate the disease.

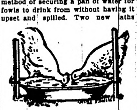
Symptoms.—The disease appears on the comb, face and wattles of the bird in the form of yellowish nodules, varying in size from a pin head to one-fourth of an inch in diameter. These nodules increase in size and turn dark red. The disease should be treated as soon as the first nodules are noticed. It is not always fatal and fowls have been known to recover without any treatment. Insanitary conditions and dampness seem to cause the disease.

Treatment.—As it is a contagious disease, the affected birds should be removed from the flock immediately. If the nodules are removed with a sharp knife, and the affected parts are treated with carbolated vaseline, the birds should recover in a few days. If the case is very far advanced the sick fowls should be given a few grains each of sulphur and cream of tartar three times a day, and oxide of zinc ointment should be applied to the affected parts twice a day. The latter treatment is recommended by Doctor Lehman, and has proved a satisfactory remedy.

STAKE DOWN DRINKING PANS

Method Illustrated for Keeping Water Vessel Upright—Wired to Two Common Lath.

The illustration shows an excellent method of securing a pan of water for fowls to drink from without having it upset and spilled. Two new laths should be driven into the ground several inches and a new pan wired to the laths as shown, by boring a hole in opposite sides of the pan through the rim.



Drinking Fountain Secured.

KEEPING A POULTY RECORD

Knowledge of Receipts and Expenditures Is of Great Assistance to Chicken Raiser.

(By R. D. SCHMIDT.)

One of the greatest needs of most poultry keepers is a definite record of expenditures and receipts. In too few cases does the owner of a poultry flock actually know whether his fowls have been an expense to him or have paid a profit. This is perhaps truer in regard to poultry than with most other branches of animal industry, because of the facts that both expenditures and receipts are spread over the entire year and are individually small, that a large part of the product is used at home, and that the poultry keeping is incidental to the other farm work.

Overfat Is Bad.

Overfat is a poor market condition. Fowls should be fed fattening food two weeks before marketing. Fat poultry, if dry picked, will cook better. Plump and neat carcasses advertise themselves. Short-legged fowls generally make the best table poultry. Never pack poultry for shipment until they have been thoroughly chilled. Never market ailing chickens. Never ship the latter part of the week, except by special order.

Wildness of Guinea Fowls.

Several articles on the guinea fowl usually call attention to their wild nature and the difficulty in domesticating them. Guinea fowls have been known to become a nuisance on account of their tameness, getting under your feet, flying on your shoulder and not content unless in company with some person. A great deal depends on the raising of all kinds of live stock.

POULTRY NOTES

Sweet or skimmed milk is good for fowls of all ages, especially the youngsters.

Do not use wooden drinking fountains for poultry. Wood is a germ breeder.

Preserving eggs in lime has been practiced for many years on a commercial scale.

The ducklings should always have access to drinking water, but swimming water can be omitted if desired.

If you allow eggs for setting to stand around for two weeks before putting them under the hen, do not blame the dealer if they do not hatch.

Arrange before all the chickens are hatched to keep different ages separate. The small ones are crowded out and crippled or killed by the older ones.

Let a brooder of chicks have their range for a few days, and the day they are not let out at the usual hour their shrill cries are enough to deafen one.

Green food is essential for ducklings—lettuce, dandelions, or onion tops should be mixed with their feed each day. Sand should also form part of each day's ration.

The poultryman who can give just the right amount of the right food at all times, is fortunate, indeed, for with individual hens, as with people, they require different quantities at different times.

A New Sensation.

Little Jean had visited one of the large summer amusement parks for the first time, and with the courage possessed only by those girls whose playmates are boys and girls older than themselves, she had not hesitated, when invited, to take a ride on one of the "thrillers" that abound in such places.

To her mother, on her return from the park, she confided the emotions she had experienced as she swept round the curves of the "figure eight" with her elder brothers.

"Mamma," she said, "when I went round those awful turns so fast I felt just as if I had freckles on my stomach!"—Youth's Companion.

Ben's Logic.

"Ben," said his friend, waking up from a reverie in which he had been gazing abstractedly at the shiny expanse of Ben's skatin'-rink-for-flies, "is there nothing you could do for your baldness?"

Ben, by the way, is only forty.

"No, lad!" he replied with decision. "Fifteen years ago I was courting strong, and I tried lots o' things. But about that time t' prince of Wales—Edward, you know—came to open t' new hospital, and I said to myself as soon as I saw him liftin' his hat to t' crowd, 'Ben, my lad, tha can give it up as a bad job, and save thy brass. If there was owt 'at 'ud cure a bald heead they'd ha' cured his.'"—Tit-Bits.

Heathen Nations Invent Nothing.

Bishop Thoburn, who has been a missionary in India for fifty years, and knows India better than any other living American, says: "If you visit the patent office at Washington, you will see six hundred improvements on the plow. India has not invented one improvement on the toothpick in two thousand years. The nations without God have no inventive faculty. They are almost universally the savage, unenlightened nations of the earth."

HEART RIGHT.

When He Quit Coffee.

Life Insurance Companies will not insure a man suffering from heart trouble.

The reason is obvious.

This is a serious matter to the husband or father who is solicitous for the future of his dear ones. Often the heart trouble is caused by an unexpected thing and can be corrected if taken in time and properly treated. A man in Colorado writes:

"I was a great coffee drinker for many years, and was not aware of the injurious effects of the habit till I became a practical invalid, suffering from heart trouble, indigestion and nervousness to an extent that made me wretchedly miserable myself and a nuisance to those who witnessed my sufferings.

"I continued to drink coffee, however, not suspecting that it was the cause of my ill-health, till on applying for life insurance I was rejected on account of the trouble with my heart. Then I became alarmed. I found that leaving off coffee helped me quickly, so I quit it altogether and having been attracted by the advertisements of Postum I began its use.

"The change in my condition was remarkable. All my ailments vanished. My digestion was completely restored, my nervousness disappeared, and, most important of all, my heart steadied down and became normal, and on a second examination I was accepted by the Life Insurance Co. Quitting coffee and using Postum worked the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

IS A FAMOUS JURIST

Personal Characteristics of John Marshall Harlan.

Venerable Kentuckian Who Recently Celebrated the 78th Anniversary of His Birth Has Had a Brilliant Career.

Washington.—The dissenting opinions which Justice Harlan, of the Supreme court, rendered in the construing of the Sherman law in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases have brought this veteran jurist prominently before the public. The justice was 78 years old the other day and is still strong and rugged, with every mental faculty unimpaired. He has been on the Supreme court more than a third of a century. During 33 years and 6 months he has absented himself from the bench less than 20 days. He was born in Boyle county, Kentucky, June 1, 1833. President Hayes appointed him November 29, 1877.

Twenty years ago Justice Harlan purchased a half of a city block on a hill overlooking Washington, and there built a fine, old-fashioned, rambling home of brick, with wide porches. When he took possession an unobstructed view of the city below and the absence of noise and the commotion of city life made the spot ideal for the home of a justice.

Although he is in the midst of the city today, he manages to keep about the house the atmosphere of the country. The trees which he planted in the side, front and rear yards have grown to maturity. A great hedge circles the grounds, and in spite of the evidences of the city on all sides, the privacy of a country home is maintained.

JUSTICE HARLAN

A southerner by birth and education, Justice Harlan keeps about his home the hospitable southern atmosphere. A colored butler invites the visitor into a large reception hall. The walls are covered with portraits of jurists or makers of the constitution, Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Marshall and a score of the fathers of the republic. Here and there are scattered portraits of the Harlan family. A life-size bust of Justice Harlan is in the hall.

A winding, broad staircase leads to the study. The walls are completely covered with yellow and red-bound tomes. There are a few big, comfortable chairs and a large desk in the center. Here the Kentucky expounder of Blackstone does his real work and thinking. Here the opinions are written.

Justice Harlan is a big man physically. Over six feet in height, his figure is erect and his step is elastic. When he walks he leans a trifle forward and takes long steps. His hair, the little that remains, is white. The top of his head is bald; there is a little hair on each side. His head is unusually large, and is narrower at the front than the rear. His ears are big. When he smiles—which is often—the jurist emits a sort of chuckle and shows a few—very few—teeth. He is an inveterate tobacco chewer. He and Chief Justice White frequently exchange "plugs."

Justice Harlan rises early and breakfasts with his family. His secretary meets him in the study at about 9 o'clock and takes the day's dictation. The judge boards a 14th street electric car between 10 and 11 in the morning. When the car reaches 14th and New York avenue a colored newsboy who has served him for years, hops on the car and gives him three or four of the morning papers.

Without spectacles, Justice Harlan proceeds to read the day's news. When he reaches the Capitol—about three and a half miles from his home—he tosses the paper away. He lunches in his office and takes the home-bound car at about 4:30 in the afternoon. An hour's work in the study finishes the day's work, and if the weather is good, he spends the twilight on the porches about his house. He goes but little into society, save when his position demands it.

He attends the New York Avenue Presbyterian church. He may be found any Sunday morning in the Sunday school room explaining to his class the day's Gospel.

Couldn't Understand It.

A farmer's wife became insane, and to a friend who tried to console him, the farmer exclaimed: "I can't understand what caused her to go crazy. I hope I'll be struck dead if I ain't telling you the truth when I tell you that she ain't ben out of the kitchen a day in 20 years."

Small Boy's Idea.

Small Harold was watching a regiment of soldiers marching by, headed by a band. "Mamma," said he, "what's the use of all them soldiers that don't make music?"

Brief Mention of What is Transpiring in Various Sections of Our Own and Foreign Countries.

Washington.

As soon as the reciprocity measure is out of the way congress, it is thought will hurry away from Washington by adjourning until December.

Speaker Champ Clark issued a defi to the administration a few days ago on learning of reports that President Taft purposed to veto any general tariff legislation at the extra session of congress. The speaker in a formal statement declared that the whole tariff ought to be revised and that the democratic party would rest its case with the country.

A famine of silver coins is threatened in the north Pacific state, and banks in Oregon, Washington and Montana, are appealing to the treasury department to ship dimes, quarters and half dollars to relieve the situation. Western South Dakota, where winter wheat has been grown in several places without uniform success, can be converted into a winter wheat growing section, announced a report of Cecil Salmon, plant physiologist of the depart of agriculture today. The report pointed out that Wyoming and Montana, where the soil and climate are very similar, produced 7,250,000 bushels last season.

Means for the prevention of fraud or corruption in the election of representatives to congress were proposed in two bills introduced by Representative Powers of Kentucky. In one bill Mr. Powers proposes a fine of from $1,000 to $3,000 or from one to three years' imprisonment for intimidation of voters at any primary or general election, for the use of money or for threats in securing votes. A second bill provides that there be created a commission of the house of representatives consisting of three civilians, to investigate all elections.

SURPRISE SHOWN

AT FRUITFUL CONDITION OF COUNTRY AT HEAD OF THE LAKES.

PRES. VINCENT PLEASED

Governor Eberhart, President Vincent, and Others Inspect Sites for Demonstration Fields in the Duluth Neighborhood.

St. Paul. — Governor A. O. Eberhart, President Vincent of the University of Minnesota; Dean Woods, of the State Agricultural college, and party are back from Duluth, where they visited five tracts of land recommended for the demonstration farm which is to be operated under the direction of the Agricultural college. They expressed themselves as surprised at the agricultural development in that section of the state, yet doubtful whether the sites inspected are typical in soil qualities to meet the requirements.

Before the final selection is made the last of this month Dean Woods and a committee from the board of regents will inspect other sites in the neighborhood. Several trips probably will be made before the work of selection is finally completed.

"Questions of the accessibility to railroads and the cost of clearing the tracts are to be investigated before a location is selected," Governor Eberhart said. "The farm is to instruct the farmers of the neighborhood and must offer as good connections as possible to be of service.

"We are greatly pleased with the sites we inspected, but there is no way now of telling whether anyone of them or some other not yet considered will be chosen. I had been through that part of the state before, but other members of the party who had not were greatly surprised at its agricultural development. It is growing rapidly and the people are very anxious to have the farm established."

Five Sites Inspected.

Five sites out of ten or twelve were inspected by the party. Previously agricultural and soil experts from the College of Agricultural had inspected the whole number of sites recommended and had narrowed the selection down to three of the five. At the conclusion of the trip members of party were not quite sure that the sites inspected were entirely satisfactory, and before the final selection is made the last of the month, other sites in the neighborhood will be considered.

Those visited on this trip were located along the lake shore from the northern part of the city south to Proctor, and the question was raised whether or not the farm should be located further inland, to escape any influence from the lake. To determine this the weather reports for Duluth and vicinity will be investigated.

In the party were Governor Eberhart, President Vincent, of the University of Minnesota; Dean A. F. Woods, of the College of Agriculture, Pierce Butler, of St. Paul, and B. F. Nelson, of Minneapolis, members of the board of regents; Chairman Rice, of the agricultural committee; C. G. Schultz, state superintendent of schools; Prof. Andrew Boss and Thos. P. Cooper, of the College of Agriculture, and other experts.

The legislature at the last session appropriated $65,000 for the demonstration farm, which, instead of being an experiment station, will be operated to show farmers of the adjacent communities how to maintain a successful farm.

BRIDEGROOM IN JAIL.

Edward G. Richter Accused of Perjury In Getting License.

Stillwater.—Edward Gerney Richter, aged 22 years, a Minneapolis bridegroom for a month, is in custody here accused of false answers under oath to questions in applying for a marriage license. He was arrested in Minneapolis by Sheriff I. D. Jarchow of this city.

The complaint was sworn to by Robert R. Odell, a Minneapolis attorney, who says that on applying for a marriage license here on June 9 Richter stated under oath that he desired to marry Gertrude Gramps of Montreal, Canada, aged 18 years, but that in fact he knew that Helen Gramps, the girl he married, was a resident of Minneapolis, and that the baptismal name and residence of the bride were wrong. They were married the same day the license was issued by Judge A. E. Doe of the probate court in this city. Richter was remanded to the county jail in default of $500 bail.

Red Wing.—Charles King of this city was probably fatally hurt in the Soo wreck near Superior. His skull was fractured, his hip broken and he received internal injuries.

Granddad Gets Fay Children.

Duluth.—After fighting in the probate court for two days and a half for the possession of the children of Mrs. Katherine Fay by their grandfather, Captain Marcus L. Fay, a wealthy mining man of this city, and the mother, an agreement was affected. The children, whose ages are 10 to 12 years will remain with Captain Fay during school and with the mother during vacation. It is also stipulated that when the mother has a permanent home and is able to care for them she is to have permanent possession.

EASTON ON WHITE PLAGUE.

Anti-Tuberculosis Expert Starts On Lecture Tour.

Winona.—Maintaining that health is one of the most valuable assets to a community from an economical standpoint, and that neither state nor national governments emphasize that fact enough, Christopher Easton, of St. Paul, state secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, gave a very interesting address treating with causes and preventions of the dreaded white plague, before the student body of the Winona normal school.

Mr. Easton's discourse dealt with the prevention of the disease, under four heads—the value of human life, the causes of consumption indirectly, the causes directly, and schools for the prevention of the disease among children. Each one of these phases, which are exceedingly vailed to the average laymen, was explained at length.

The speaker said he believed bad social and economic conditions were the most vital indirect causes of consumption. Alcoholism, improper housing, lack of ventilation, and improper nourishment are other causes. Another which is an indirect cause, is the condition which compels men to work after being ill while in a convalescent state. Men too often go to work after suffering with typhoid or some other disease, and this very often results in consumption. Dusty trades often hasten an infection of the lungs.

Spread of Germs Direct Cause.

The direct cause of consumption, said Mr. Easton, is the spread of infection from diseased persons. He urged every effort to control the disease once it is contracted.

Means of control were also treated. The speaker said the most important step toward its control is, first, regulation; second, home supervision, hospitals for advanced cases, and schools for children who are infected with tuberculosis, where they may study in the open air. Mr. Easton said that before long it would be considered a crime for a consumptive to die at home.

"Large numbers of school children have latent tuberculosis," said Mr. Easton, "which develops in adult life, is acquired in childhood and remains dormant during the growing period. For protection against this every city and county should have open-air schools where children who are infected with tuberculosis may study. In these schools the child not only becomes strong physically, but he becomes stronger mentally. In several cities in this country where these schools are located a great decrease in the grip of the disease has been noted.

Schools for Consumptive Children.

"A city as large as Winona," said the speaker, "should have one of these schools where predisposed children should study. It is inconceivable but true that in Winona today without doubt are enough children infected with tuberculosis to fill one of these special schools. For every 25,000 persons there should be one of these schools.

"A queer coincidence is that there is about one consumptive in every rural school district. County teachers should aid in the work of preventing the spread of consumption because they invariably know which family is infected."

Mr. Easton very highly commended the admirable work started in Winona in bringing a special nurse here for the fight against the plague. He is very much in favor of state appropriations for means of carrying on this branch of the work.

The lecture delivered here was the first of a series which Mr. Easton will deliver in nearly every large city in the state during the present summer.

STATE PIONEERS PICNIC.

Outdoor Gathering at Historic Minnehaha Fals.

Minneapolis. — Over one hundred pioneers of Minnesota, several of them residents since 1849, attended the picnic of the Territorial Pioneer Women's club at Minnehaha Falls. The picnic took the place of the regular monthly meeting of the club, which is usually held at the home of one of the members. The picnic was principally a Minneapolis affair, as many of the out of town members of the club could not attend.

The program began with a picnic dinner. The buisness meeting was followed by a short program, consisting of recitations and talks by members of the society and their friends.

Among the older settlers who attended the picnic were: Mrs. F. E. Holmes, 1849; Mrs. Estell Stewart, 1849; Mrs. James Garvey, 1850; Mrs. James Hankins, Mrs. Rebecca Plummer, and Mrs. Charles Gilpatrick, 1852; and Mrs. Mary Jane Hemperely, all of Minneapolis; Mrs. Eli Southworth, of Shakopee; Mrs. Alice Russel of Lynwood, Lake Minnetonka; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hazzard of Red Rock; Henry Crow, John Finnegan, James Walsh and Fred Bell, of Minneapolis; Mrs. George Sheire of St. Paul, president of the club; Miss Hattie Godfrey, the first white child in the village of St. Anthony, vice president; Mrs. Mary Atkinson, secretary, and Miss Carrie V. Stratton, treasurer.

DIVE BREAKS BATHER'S NECK.

Winonan Killed In Presence of His Fiancee and His Daughter.

Winona.—In the presence of his fiancee and his little daughter, Ferdinand Krause, aged thirty years, a widower a year, who was employed as a finisher in the plant of the Winona Shoe company of this city, broke his neck in the La Crosse river near Indian Hill, when he dived from a height of six feet, head first into three feet of water.

FIRE LOSS HEAVY

THREE TOWNS AND 12 MINES IN PORCUPINE DISTRICT REDUCED TO ASHES.

IN ONTARIO MINE DISTRICT

200 Suffocated In One Place.—North Central Michigan In Fire's Grasp.—Villages Razed.

WORK OF THE FLAMES.

In Ontario.

Several hundred lives believed lost in Ontario; Property loss in Ontario will reach several million dollars; train carrying 600 refugees from Cochrane reaches Toronto; twelve mines in Porcupine district, Ontario, burned out; two hundred miners suffocated in one shaft; towns of South Porcupine, Pottsville and part of Golden City, Ont., in ashes; roads in Porcupine district are strewn with charred bodies of human beings and animals.

In Michigan.

Fires burning in every county north of Mason and Orenac counties and south of the Straits of Mackinac, Michigan; villages of Au Sable and Oscoda (combined population 1,800), destroyed and inhabitants homeless; village of Waters, Otsego county, reported burning, Stephenson lumber plant, valued at $400,000, also afire. Many lumberjacks believed lost.; Revere City, Presque Isle county, saved by sudden veering of wind; people of state aroused and provision trains are being rushed to scene of devastation; state fire warden summons every available man to help fight flames; five hundred refugees from Au Sable and Oscoda reach East Tawas.

Toronto, Ont. — The loss of life in the Porcupine district from fires is known to be several hundred and the property loss will reach several millions of dollars. Only three of the 84 employes of the West Dome mine have been accounted for and 200 miners, muckers, etc., in the Dome mine have been suffocated. The mines burned include the Dome, North Dome, Preston, East Dome, Vipond, Foley, O'Brien, Philadelphia, United Porcupine, Eldorado, Porcupine, Standard is Imperial, White Dome and Success.

The Philadelphia mine's loss is about $50,000; United Porcupine mine's loss, $20,000; Elderado Porcupine, all buildings destroyed; Standard, about $40,000; Imperial, about $35,000; Success, probably destroyed; West Mines about $75,000. All reports give but a vague idea of the loss of life as well as property in Porcupine camp, which probably will total millions of dollars and hundreds of lives.

In four short hours, the fire swept from the Standard mines through to the shores of Porcupine lake, where it ate up the towns of South Porcupine, Pottsville, and part of Golden City, as well as many small buildings along the lake front. While some loss of life occurred in the vicinity of Porcupine lake, the greatest havoc was wrought around the main mines, notably West Dome and Big Dome.

Caught in Shafts.

There the entrapped miners, cut off from escape, were forced to take to the shafts for safety, and penned in by flames, perished. This was notably true at Dome and West Dome mines. At Preston and East Dome an untimbered shaft gave shelter and none perished. The streets of South Porcupine are strewn with dead persons, horses, dogs and cattle. Along the mine roads are the charred bodies of those overcome trying to escape.

Of the staff of 300 at the Dome mine, but a few were saved, and at the West Dome three out of 85 employes are known to be alive. Along the highway between West Dome and South Porcupine, over a comparatively open section, were found six charred bodies.

Michigan Sea of Forest Fires.

Detroit.—With food at their disposal and tents provided for their shelter, the thousand or more homeless survivors of the fire-swept villages of Au Sable and Oscoda breathed easier than at any time since the flames destroyed their homes. The known dead remain three in number. Late reports from other counties in the fire zone are generally encouraging.

The village of Waters, 107 miles north of Bay City, on the Michigan Central, is reported to be burning together with the Stephenson Lumber Company mills and lumber yards, valued at about $400,000. The village has about 200 permanent residents and a large floating population of "lumberjacks."

Twin City Markets.

Minneapolis, July 12.—Wheat, July, 97¾c; Sept. 93¼c; No. 1 northern, 98¾c; No. 2 northern, 95¾c; No. 1 durum, 88½c; No. 3 corn, 55¾c; No. 3 white oats, 44c; barley, malting, $1.03; No. 2 rye, 83c; No. 1 flax, $2.67.

The thermometer at 1 o'clock last night had dropped to 76, the lowest figure since early last Sunday, and indications pointed to a still further drop [illegible]

Washington.—Ivan Bowen, one of the clerks in Senator Nelson's office, has passed his examination for admittance to the bar in the District of Columbia. Mr. Bowen, who comes from Mankato, is a graduate of the Georgetown university law school of this city.

Pittsburg, Penn. — Frank Johnson of Minneapolis, arrested here on suspicion of being Charles Streeter, who shot and killed Policeman Curran of Philadelphia five years ago, was released. Detective Welh of Philadelphia testified that Johnson was not the man wanted in the East.

Hastings.—A harvest hand seriously stabbed a hired man of Henry Conzemius in Nininger and then burned the latter's stock barn containing a large quantity of hay and implements. The assailant as yet has not been caught. Sheriff Michael Murnane and deputies are in pursuit.

Red Wing.—Axel Anderson, employed in the bottling department of a Red Wing brewery, met with an accident which cost him the sight of his right eye. He was operating the automatic machine, when a bottle broke under the air pressure. A piece of flying glass penetrated the eyeball.

Park Rapids. — Lloyd Carlton, of Bemidji, accused of the murder of Peter O. Neste, of Farris, his father-in-law, was acquitted by the jury, after it had been out but twenty minutes, on the grounds of self-defense. Mrs. Lloyd Carlton, jointly accused with her husband, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Faribault.—Three persons narrowly escaped death here when an automobile left the road near the city and went over a twenty-foot embankment. The members of the party were Louis Snyder of Michigan City, Ind.; Miss Lillie Zaizer and Miss Genevieve Kelley of this city. One of the young ladies received a fractured shoulder. The victims of the accident were all pinioned beneath the machine.

P. D. MacFarland of Minneapolis and C. G. Stoody have been appointed state scale experts by F. W. Eva, head of the grain and warehouse department of the railroad and warehouse commissioner. One of the men takes the place left vacant by Charles Neale, who becomes the head of the new weights and measures department. The work, however, has increased so much that two men are now needed.

Winona.—The police department is making good its promise to proceed against motorists who exceed the speed limit in Winona. Felix Weir, chauffeur for George Hirsch, who used the macadam on Howard street below Mankato avenue for a race course, entered a plea of guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Marshall.—John Ousman, a railroad engineer of Two Harbors, left that city June 10 for Minneota, in Lyon county, where two days later he was to marry Miss Sarah Johnson. He arrived in Duluth, since when he has been missing, although relatives and officers have made a thorough search for him. He carried a pass for himself to Minneota and another for himself and wife for the return trip and $100. It is feared he met with foul play.

Washington, D. C. — In connection with a resolution introduced by Representative Lindbergh, of Minnesota, proposing an investigation by a house committee of nine members to determine if there exists a combination of financiers in the United States operating in restraint of trade or violation of other laws, the Minnesota insurgent Republican assailed the proposed financial system, submitted by the monetary commission by former Senator Aldrich. The resolution calls for investigation of the banking, money, exchange, credit and deposit systems of the country and recommendations for remedial legislation.

St. Paul. — Mrs. Louise Miller, wife of Congressman Clarence B. Miller, of Duluth, has retained an attorney to bring suit for divorce. A young stenographer in Washington is said to be in some way concerned in the suit. When asked the cause for the action, Mrs. Miller said: "The reasons cannot be published. Besides, it might hurt Mr. Miller's political ambitions." Mrs. Miller is living in a private boarding house in St. Paul. She is unable to say whether this suit will be brought in St. Paul [illegible]

We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

There is to be a Minnesota corn and grain exhibit in January. 1912, at which from $15,000 to $30,000 will be given as prizes for grain. more than the State Fair ever gave for all of its agriculture exhibts in any one year.

As usual the farmer will be hit both ways now that the freight rates have been raised by virtue of the Sanborn decision. It will cost more to have farmers supplies shipped in and grain prices will be lower on account of the increased carrying charges.

Rumor says that instead of making its subsidiaries separate corporations by a distribution of capitalization, Standard Oil will parcel the country among them, giving each a distinct territory. It will then cease to be a trust in restraint of trade; it will only be a trust in control of trade.—Duluth News Tribune.

In order to have legal standing in the state courts after July 15, each firm, co-partnership and corporation must file with the clerk of the district court of every county in which it does business the names of all "silent" and "active" partners. The attention of business men all over the state has been called to chapter 271, house file no. 365, laws of 1911, which provides for this. The act was approved April 19 and goes into effect today.

Big plans have been made by committees of the Northwestern Development league for the land show that is to be held in the Twin cities next December. Minnesota will be represented by a composite exhibit that seems sure to do her credit and be of value from an advertising standpoint to the state. It also seems probable that the apple show. formerly given at Spokane, will also be held in the Twin cities in connection with this land show,

The insurgents have not been having as happy a time lately as they had two years ago. In connection with the commonly assigned reasons for the lapse in their popularity, some things ought to be said. In the first place, not all the insurgents have opposed reciprocity; they divided about half and half, and the stronger men of the movement in the lower house, men like Murdock and Madison, voted in favor of it. Moreover, what the insurgent senators in the senate have done will be seen a year from now in a clearer and more favorable light. They have postponed reciprocity a few weeks, but have brought general tariff revision many months probably years, nearer.—Colliers.

Won Twice

Were it not for for the monotony of chronicling Gopher victories at base ball, it might be well to note that the "pride of the base ball world," the St. Hilaire Gophers, administered a beautiful trimming to the Thief River Falls Tigers on the Thief River grounds last Sunday afternoon. The Tigers were of about the same age as the Gophers, but a comparison of play would indicate an entirely creditable class of their own for the Gophers. Be it said that the Gophers showed the Tigers how to play the game. It took eleven innings to administer the clipping, but as the Gophers were on the long end of a 11 to 6 score, we all felt that the extra distance was not wasted.

And after a good meal at the Ogamah the Gophers strolled out to the same ball yard and walloped the Thief River Pickets. They showed the Pickets how to play the ridiculous kind of base ball, and then, after getting the comical idea firmly implanted in the minds of the Pickets the little Gophers changed their tactics. They displayed marked cleverness with the bat, on the bases, and in taking chances, and scampered home with the Picket scalp safely put away in the pack. The score, Gophers 9, Pickets 2.

Bring in Your Printing

THE SPECTATOR is read by more people in the south half of Pennington county than any other paper published in the county. Its readers believe what it says. Its subscribers take it because they want to read it and they willingly pay the price. Its subscription list is bona fide. None of its subscribers were gained by offering bonuses or prizes, or by conducting voting contests, or shading the price.

THE SPECTATOR has been published at the old stand for now nearly thirty years, and while it has had its ups and downs its reliability is unquestioned. It does not print as much matter as some machine set papers but, which is better, every word it does print is of interest to its readers.

It is the official paper of Pennington county and of St. Hilaire village.

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Blaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend " It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairny County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

CHURCH LIGHTED BY WIND

Novel Method Employed to Illuminate Sacred Edifice Near Birmingham, England.

Probably one of the most novel methods of providing lighting for a church is that employed at the old Cosely church, situated a few miles out from Birmingham, England.

About 600 feet from the church is the mouth of a disused coal mine, around which are huge piles of tailings. Upon one of these a steel tower 50 feet high is erected and a windmill 18 feet in diameter installed. At the base of the tower in a small house is an electric generator which is run by the mill. The current thus generated feeds 27 lamps in the church, two in the chapel, two in the vestry; operates a motor for pumping the pipe organ, and also lights 30 lamps in the rectory. A storage battery in the rectory is a part of this unique lighting plant.

PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to foot. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in this locality, nevertheless, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting one application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has as much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than our baby.

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they semed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rosser, Mill Hall, Pa., Feb. 20, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 29 K, Boston.

Easily in the Lead.

Louise Jennings, Elsie Hathaway and Florence Brintnall are three schoolmates whose indulgent parents provided a picnic for each of them, giving carte blanche as to the number of their guests and the manner of entertainment on the beach. Three parties in ten days means a lot to young ladies of the tender age of eight. But they recovered quickly enough from the fatigue. Followed comparison:

"I think," said Lou, "ours was a very nice party. And we had ice cream twice, if you remember."

"Oh, I don't know," quoth Elsie—she insists upon being called by her full name and will answer to no other—"I notice all my guests rode 'round on the carrousel as often as they wanted."

"I'm sure my party was the best of all," spoke up Flo. "Father says every d——d kid in town was there.

A Busy Place.

"Where is that spot you call the 'lovers' lane?'" diffidently asks the young man while the young lady waits on the hotel piazza.

"Right down yonder," replies the clerk. "Just keep going until you see the porter from the barber shop. Lovers' lane is so crowded now that we have him stationed there to give the guests checks, so that each may have his turn."—Judge's Library.

DANGER IN THE CUP

Efforts to Abolish the Common Drinking Vessel.

Illinois Follows Kansas in Legislation Effecting Use of the Public Cup—A Safety Drinking Fountain.

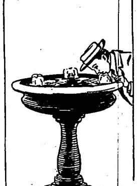
Springfield, Ill.—Illinois has followed Kansas in legislation to effect the abolition of the common drinking cup. Death lurks in it. Tuberculosis, diphtheria and other deadly diseases are distributed by it.

There is no question whatever about these facts, which may be said briefly to summarise the results of a special investigation recently made by the board of health of the state of Kansas.

Kansas led the way in a movement to do away with the common drinking glass. Such receptacles, which carry all sorts of infection from mouth to mouth, are not to be in future allowed in railroad trains, railroad stations and other public places in that state. Their use in the public schools is no longer to be permitted. And now Illinois has followed with similar regulations. It is expected that before long this movement will become nationwide.

One might say that the problem is satisfactorily solved by the paper cups for individual use which are sold by slot machines in many public places nowadays. All one has to do is to drop a cent into the slot, and out pops a beautifully-made tumbler of paraffine paper, well put together and stiff enough to hold liquid for drinking. But when one comes to think about it, one perceives that such cups as these are of small practical use for everyday folk; they are a luxury for the rich. Only the well-to-do can afford to pay a penny for a drink of water.

The problem of the drinking cup in its relation to health is much more difficult and much more important than most people imagine. Recent investigations of the subject by the Kansas state board of health and by many bacteriological experts elsewhere have shown that the common tumbler or other receptacle used for such purposes is a frequent and dangerous source of infection. To employ such a vesel on a train, at a street fountain or elsewhere is to take a serious risk.



A Safety Drinking Fountain.

A drinking cup which had been used for several months without washing in a high school was lined with a brownish deposit which when viewed under the microscope was seen to be composed largely of particles of mud, with thousands of bits of dead skin and millions of bacteria. When a small quantity of this sediment was injected under the skin of a healthy guinea pig the animal died in 48 hours, the post-mortem examination showing that death was due to blood poisoning. A second guinea pig, under similar circumstances, developed tuberculosis; and inquiry proved that several of the pupils in the high school were afflicted with the dread malady.

The rim of another drinking cup used in a school bore no fewer than 5,000,000 germs, while a vastly greater number lingered deeper in the vessel where saliva had dripped down.

The conclusions drawn from all observations are to the effect that the common drinking vessel is one of the most fruitful sources of the spread of infectious diseases. Such mouth-to-mouth infection, furthermore, is especially dangerous because of the moist state in which the germ cultures pass from person to person. Peril lingers about the edge of the familiar tin dipper—the kind that used to hang alongside the drinking place at school, and which still bangs near the kitchen pump in many a farmhouse.

The mouth of every human being is a breeding place for multitudinous microbes, and these are of many forms and species. Some of them are rod-shaped; others are spherical; yet others arrange themselves in chains, and so on through a considerable diversity of shapes. Even the biggest of them are so small as to be seen only with the aid of a high-power microscope.

THE WORLD'S FASTEST TIME

Vedrine Travels at the Rate of 155 Miles an Hour for Space of Thirty Minutes.

Paris.—Jules Vedrine, who won the Paris-Madrid aeroplane race, attained the prodigious speed rate of 155 miles an hour when he flew the 77½ miles between Diffon and Laurent-les-Macon in 30 minutes. One hundred and fifty-five miles an hour means a speed of 75 yards 2 feet 3 inches a second.

Vedrine says he was propelled at times by a wind so swift that, as he flew, the tail of his aeroplane was perpendicular; also he encountered wind pockets that caused his monoplane to make frightful drops, sometimes descending 900 feet in a few seconds. Vedrine suffered only by the strain of his eyes.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY
All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

Settled Them.

"I've a sight o' sons—thirteen altogether," remarked a prosperous old farmer, "and all of 'em's done me credit save the three eldest, who sowed wild oats at a pretty rapid rate, and then came home and saddled my shoulders with the harvest.

"Well, I own I was glad to see 'em back, and I feasted 'em, and petted 'em, and set 'em on their legs again, only to see 'em skedaddle off afresh when things had slowed down, with all the cash they could lay hands on.

"That thereabouts sickened me, so I called the rest of 'em together and said:

"'There's ten of you left, and if any of you 'ud like to follow t'other three I won't try to stop you. But, understand this, though there may be a few more prodigal sons, there'll be no more fatted calves. I've killed the last of 'em!'

"And," continued the old man, triumphantly, "I've had trouble wi' none of 'em since!"

To Make Fruit Jar Rubbers Last.

To have fruit jar rubbers last, keep them well covered in a jar full of flour until used, and as soon as removed from empty jars. One can then afford a good quality of rubbers, as kept thus they will safely last several seasons. When there is doubt of old rubbers, they may often be made to eke out one more season by using two of the rubbers to each jar and screwing down tight. Always stand newly filled jars upside down until cool, to test the tops and rubbers.—Designer.

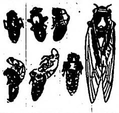
LOCUST IS A QUEER 'BIRD'

Habits of This 17-Year Pestiferous Insect Form an Interesting Subject for Study.

Lafayette, Ind.—Unquestionably the 17-year locusts form a most interesting subject for careful study. They are the longest lived of all insects and in many ways are quite remarkable. They are not locusts at all, strictly speaking, but cicadas, members of an ancient race in their line. On account of the strange contradictions of a cicada's habits and the curiosity which he has aroused in inquiring man, probably more observations of this insect have been made than concerning any other of his world. Traditions of the Indians dwell upon these insects and their ways and centuries ago the song of the cicada was noted in the forest primeval.

Much confusion attended the efforts of investigators to solve the cicada's life riddle until the discovery was made, in 1845, that there were two races, one which had a cycle of 13 years and was native in the southern part of the United States, and the other dwelling in the north which requires 17 years for its development.



Life of a Locust or Cicada.

The cicada first makes its appearance on this globe as a tiny pearly egg that his mother forced into an orifice which she dug in a twig high on a tree one fine spring day. At the left in the illustration is shown the insect while breaking from its casing, showing different stages of the interesting process, and at the right a full-grown locust after it has emerged for its brief existence in the sunlight of earth. After a few weeks he is hatched out and in a twinkling he is running about this way and that on the branch of the tree which is nearest to him. The newly-born cicada larvae loses no time in sightseeing. After rushing over the bark for a few minutes he goes to the edge of the branch and, without hesitation, throws himself into space. It is some strange instinct which prompts him to take the change, without the slightest idea of where he will fall, but he reaches the earth in safety.

His only idea is to hide. Over and over the ground he runs, and then finding a little crevice he digs down into the loam, burrows with all his might and soon at least 12 or 18 inches of earth, and often several feet, are between him and daylight. He is not happy until he gets away from all his relatives, for the larvae of the cicada are not sociable. Each one like some solitary gnome exists through 17 years of subterranean life.

How the cicada knows when he must rise from his solitude and go forth with a million of his fellows to make roundelays is one of the hidden mysteries of nature. From varying depths, some through hard, baked clay, others through stony soil and many through dark loam, they start on their upward trend. The front legs are fitted in this last stage of the subterranean life with digging tools in the form of ponderous claws. The cicada reaches up over his head, tears down the soil, rolls it into pellets, presses them down beneath him and digs for more.

When the right time comes, always at night, the hosts which for so many years have kept their haunts below the sod silently steal forth, like an army with muffled feet. They swarm up the bark of trees, the very ones on whose roots they have been feeding all the years of their underworld life, and slowly, almost awkwardly, affix themselves to twigs and branches. There in a few minutes a cicada strips itself of its casing, which splits down the middle of the thorax. Then the insect is a really, truly locust, ready to do as its forbears have done, and fated to go the same way in the same space of time. The average life of the cicada on earth is six weeks, and is very small as compared with his long under-world existence.

HANGMAN'S TREE IS FELLED

Texas Grove of Oaks, Once Used Instead of a Gallows, Is Cut Down.

Houston, Tex.—"Hangman's Grove," one of the historic spots of Houston, has passed. The last giant of a group of oaks which in the pioneer days of Houston provided a natural gallows for the hanging of offensive persons, has succumbed to the march of progress, and "Hangman's Grove" is to become residence property.

By a peculiar coincidence the last tree that recently fell under the ax constituted the gallows for the last hanging on this spot 37 years ago. Its broad hanging limbs 10 or 12 feet from the ground were marred by the great grooves in the bark into which ropes tied about them had sunk as the limbs grew and widened. The last vestige of this hemp long ago disappeared in the shape of souvenirs, but the marks remain and mutely tell of the grewsome happenings two-score years ago.

Blind Adept at Skating.

Berlin.—A skating rink for the blind has recently been opened in this city. The wonderful acuteness of the sense of feeling in those who are blind makes it possible for them to know when they approach objects, although they do not see them. They avoid each other with ease, whether skating singly or in pairs; they waltz around the hall, and the spectator watching them would never suppose they were sightless, for their movements are as sure and swift as those of people blessed with normal sight.

Her Father's Child.

The six-year-old daughter of a well-known evangelistic preacher was playing on the sidewalk one day when a shabbily dressed and downcast man approached her father's house.

Halting at the foot of the steps, he looked at her, and in a weary voice—the voice of an unsuccessful book agent—he asked if her father might be found in his study.

"He isn't home," said the little girl, drawing close to him, and gazing up into the tired face, "but he'll be home pretty soon. You go into the house, you poor, perishing soul, and mother'll look after you till he comes."—Youth's Companion.

WRONG SORT

Perhaps Plain Old Meat, Potatoes and Bread May Be Against You for a Time.

A change to the right kind of food can lift one from a sick bed. A lady in Welden, Ill., says:

"Last spring I became bed-fast with severe stomach troubles accompanied by sick headache. I got worse and worse until I became so low I could scarcely retain any food at all, although I tried about every kind.

"I had become completely discouraged, and given up all hope, and thought I was doomed to starve to death, until one day my husband, trying to find something I could retain, brought home some Grape-Nuts.

"To my surprise the food agreed with me, digested perfectly and without distress. I began to gain strength at once. My flesh (which had been flabby), grew firmer, my health improved in every way and every day, and in a very few weeks I gained 20 pounds in weight.

"I liked Grape-Nuts so well that for four months I ate no other food, and always felt as well satisfied after eating as if I had sat down to a fine banquet.

"I had no return of the miserable sick stomach nor of the headaches, that I used to have when I ate other food. I am now a well woman, doing all my own work again, and feel that life is worth living.

"Grape-Nuts food has been a Godsend to my family; it surely saved my life; and my two little boys have thriven on it wonderfully." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

CROOKS ARE HELD

ACCUSED OF HAVING HELPED PLAN CRIMES JERRY McCARTHY COMMITTED.

BONDS FIXED AT $10,000

Briggs Pleads Not Guilty.—Persons Responsible For Convict's Escape Are Now Sought.

Minneapolis. — It is possible that charges of aiding a prisoner to escape from the state penitentiary may be added to the accusations made by the police against the men the police say were the ring leaders of the "robbery syndicate," of which the dead outlaw, Jerry McCarthy, was the tool.

Police Chief Mealey will question Fred A. Briggs, one of the men implicated in the evidence left by Joseph J. Olinger, the policeman who lost his life in the fight in which he killed McCarthy. The chief and Warden Wolfer hope that they may be able to prove that McCarthy and Peter Juhl were enabled to escape from Stillwater through the connivance of outsiders and to punish the persons responsible.

Briggs told friends after the escape of McCarthy and Juhl that when he went out after having been awakened by tapping on his window at 3 a. m. a few hours after their flight he found the fugitives there. He said he gave them clothes and money and advised McCarthy to leave the country, suggesting Australia as the logical place to go.

Arthur H. Denson and Fred A. Briggs, both of whom admitted associating with McCarthy, were arraigned before Judge Smith in municipal court and waived examination. They were held to the grand jury.

Briggs was arraigned on two charges and Denson on one. Bail in each count was fixed at $5,000, which is cumulative in the case of Briggs, making his bail $10,000.

In answer to both charges (holding up Martin Brennan and breaking into the store of Andrew P. Sorenson) Briggs said, "Not guilty," and waived.

When Denson answered to the charge of breaking into the Central avenue store, he said: "I am guilty." He was told he could not plead on that charge in the lower court, but must ask for or waive examination in order that he might have a hearing or be bound over to the grand jury. He waived.

Detective L. D. Wilson appeared as complainant in each case, charging Briggs with highway robbery and both with burglary in the third degree.

Prisoners Transferred.

Briggs and Denson were transferred from the city hall to cells in the county jail. Denson gave out a statement of places already told by him to Police Chief Mealey as having been designated for robbery by himself and associates. He said:

"Briggs used to go out first and spot the places, go inside and buy something so as to get a look at the safe.

"If the land looked right, Briggs would take McCarthy to the place on a second visit and the yeggman would get the lay of things. Then a date was fixed for the intended robbery and we rested on our oars.

LAWYERS GATHER IN DULUTH.

Attorney-General Wickersham Addresses State Bar Association.

Duluth.—With one hundred and fifty attorneys from points all over the state of Minnesota and with practically every local lawyer in the city in attendance, the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Bar Association opened in the assembly room of the Duluth Commercial club. A large number of St. Paul and Minneapolis attorneys came up in a special car. From other points delegates continued coming in until at the opening nearly 300 members had gathered.

At the opening session President James D. Shearer, of Minneapolis delivered the annual address. He took as his subject, "The Trend of Modern Legislation." Following the reading of the president's paper, H. V. Mercer, of Minneapolis read a paper on "Workmen's Compensation."

The address of Attorney General George W. Wickersham, the feature of the State Bar Association meeting in Duluth, was given Wednesday afternoon.

There was a discussion of the recent decisions of the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases. Thursday morning there was a discussion on "The Recall of Judges" and "The Conflict Between Federal and State Control of Railway Rates." A banquet was given Mr. Wickersham and delegates.

Women Fail to Elect Candidate.

Fergus Falls.—The school election in this city was highly animated. A woman was elected to membership on the board of education last year and the Women's Club and other women's organizations, made a determined effort to elect another member this year, and nominated Miss Elsie Wright for the position. The women were active, and brought out a large vote, but Miss Wright was defeated by Dr. O. M. Haugan by a vote of 263 to 161. R. E. Lincoln was re-elected by 421.

3,500 IN SUMMER SCHOOLS.

More Than Eight Hundred are Teachers.

The teachers' summer schools that are being held in about half of the counties of the state will close a week from next Saturday, and beginning July 31 teachers' examinations will be held for three days in every county in the state. The dates for the various summer schools were arranged so that no matter when they opened they would close on the same day, just before the state examinations are held.

Reports received at the office of State Superintendent of Schools Schulz indicate a total attendance of approximately 3,500 at the various schools. This includes the summer school at the state agricultural college, where more than 800 would-be teachers are brushing up on the common branches and also getting some pointers on agriculture and domestic science. The five state normal schools also have summer sessions, which helps to swell the attendance.

Additional interest has been given to the summer schools this year by the teaching of agriculture and home economics. In some of the schools a regular course has been given through the whole session of four or six weeks and in the others special lectures from the state farm school have given a week of practical work. While those in charge of the summer courses realize that it was impossible to make an ordinary teacher into a regular domestic science teacher in so short a time, their aim has been to teach a few practical things, so that the teacher can do something definite in this line when she returns to her school in the fall. This is done especially for the teachers in the rural schools, so that they will be able to make a start towards the introduction of these practical subjects, in the ungraded schools and provide work that will interest pupils that are laggards in the common branches.

The teachers have taken up this work with great interest this summer and these courses have been a big step in the general movement for the introduction of more work in agriculture, manual training and domestic science in all the schools of the state.

Schools May Consolidate.

Bemidji. — Consolidation of six schools, including and surrounding the Tenstrike district, was discussed at a public meeting in Tenstrike. W. B. Stewart, county superintendent of schools, was present. The six schools involved are districts 46, which is the Tenstrike school, 51, 70, 24, 126, 99. The total valuation of these districts is $200,000. At the present time it costs these districts $41,000 a year to run their schools. If consolidated the schools would receive the state special aid for the consolidated graded schools of $2,100. At the present time there are 165 pupils enrolled in the schools of the proposed consolidated district. There are at present but two consolidated districts in Beltrami county, No. 81 in Battle River and No. 128 in the Hines district. Several other districts are talking of consolidating.

"In every test that I have made for the purpose of finding out the sentiment of the farmers in my state," said the senator, 'I have found that there is an indifference as to whether the bill becomes a law or is defeated. Of course there are some farmers who oppose the measure, but I think their opposition is so slight, when compared with the sentiment throughout the state, as to be almost negligible.'

President Taft reviewed the action of President Hayes in a pardon case in 1878 and extended executive clemency to Joshua Wade, a half-breed Choctaw Indian who has spent the last 30 years in jail for a crime against a woman. President Hayes in 1878 saved Wade from hanging and commuted his sentence to life imprisonment. The man is now old and feeble and still protests his innocence. President Taft ordered him released at once. The crime was alleged to have been committed near Caddo, Indian Territory.

MEETS PICNIC NEEDS

ALL SORTS OF UTENSILS PROVIDED TO LIGHTEN WORK.

Tea Baskets, Luncheon Baskets and Picnic Baskets in Many Quantities Fully Equipped With Every Outing Requisite.

Now is the time for outings, picnics and vacation journeyings and it seems that the stores have anticipated the wants of the picnickers and out-of-door luncher by presenting numerous utensils and contrivances for one's use and comfort when the hour comes for the packing of the basket and hieing to the parks or the woods of the open country.

There are tea baskets, luncheon baskets and picnic baskets in great quantity, some supplied with cups and plates and others even to the knives and forks and spoons, a number even having utensils to hold liquids and little sections reserved for the salt and pepper.

They have the serviettes and the cloth, some of the real linen, but mostly of the decorated paper variety, which are the handiest for such occasions, while one especial basket carries a utensil to keep some dish hot and another for holding the salads without letting any of the juices escape, and also there are the patented bottles of two or three varieties that keep other liquids ice cold for hours, and some of the baskets have these included in their make-up.

There is a little outfit that looks like a leather collar box, which contains a nickel plated tin kettle, an alcohol burner, a sugar bowl and a creamer and an extra bottle for alcohol. It certainly supplies many of the shortcomings that the person on the outing is likely to experience.

Of course the plates that are supplied in these outfits are of the paper, or wood shell kind, that can be discarded after once used and others can be purchased for the next expedition out into the world, where nature calls us to partake of the fresh air, newly purified, salubrious to the utmost to which it is possible to attain.

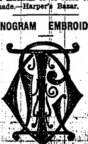
And it is always well to remember when you are out in the woods that you are principally there for the benefit of the air which comes to you purified from every fluttering leaf and blade of grass; therefore make the most of it and fill and refill your lungs with it as far as you can force them to expand.

DRESSES FOR SCHOOL GIRLS

Fashion Has Been Kind in Allowing a Choice of Many and Pleasing Designs.

The peasant bodice in some form is the prevailing style for these dresses. Some variety is gained by the introduction of tucks or pleats of various sizes. These are put in vertically on the shoulders to give the desired fullness. Sailor collars of some contrasting material and color are the rule, with belt and turn-back cuffs to match. Bands of the different material and color, varying in width from eight to fifteen inches, are occasionally set on the skirt at the foot, a few inches above the hem, or a knee-deep flounce of the contrasting shade finishes the skirt. In many instances, where the sailor collar is omitted, a shaped yoke of embroidery or lace is added to the frock of linen or percale about the low-cut neck. Silk dresses are treated in a similar manner, the yoke being of self material or of some contrasting shade.—Harper's Bazar.

MONOGRAM EMBROIDERY.



Here we show a distinct monogram in satin-stitch embroidery, that may be worked on any article of household linen or lingerie that requires distinct marking.

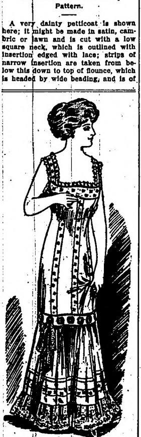
When Darning.

For darning badly torn stockings use a shoe tree instead of a darning egg. Then if it be necessary to patch instead of darn, the patch can be much more easily and properly set in.

MAKES A DAINTY PETTICOAT

Satin, Cambric or Lawn Are Suitable Materials for This Pretty Pattern.

A very dainty petticoat is shown here; it might be made in satin, cambric or lawn and is cut with a low square neck, which is outlined with insertion edged with lace; strips of narrow insertion are taken from below this down to top of flounce, which is headed by wide beading, and is of material, trimmed by one tuck, then a piece of insertion and a lace flounce at foot. Ribbon is threaded through the beading, and loopy bows and ends fall down at the right side of front.



Princess Petticoat.

Materials required: 4 yards 36 inches wide, 5 yards narrow and 1¼ yard wide insertion, 1¼ yard beading, 3¼ yards lace, 3 yards ribbon.

SIMPLE LOTIONS FOR HANDS

Glycerine Varieties Are Particularly Good and Keep the Hands Soft and White.

Pure soap is one of the secrets of well-kept hands. Drying the hands thoroughly after washing them is another important point to be observed, and if either of these are neglected no amount of lotions will bring about the desired result.

Different textured skins demand different soaps. The glycerine varieties are particularly good. The best way to determine the value of a soap is to give it a trial and if the skin is soft and smooth after the bath so that the whole hand feels pliable and refreshed it is safe to continue its use.

Be careful to push the cuticle back from the nails after every hand bath, be it dozens of times a day. If warm water is used have a bottle filled with a lotion composed of benzoin, glycerine and rosewater; tip the bottle in the palm of the hand and rub the lotion into the skin before the hands are thoroughly dry. This is a splendid suggestion for the housewife whose hands are subjected to different solutions in the course of her work. She should have a bottle always handy and use it generously. As a result her hands will be white and plump and will not bear the telltale marks of age or work. Any reputable druggist understands the proportions in which these ingredients should be used.

Striped Coat Sets.

Fine muslin, chiffon cloth and marquisette are all used to make collar and cuff sets for short jackets. These with eyelet embroidered batiste have taken the place of Irish lace, which seems at a discount these days.

The striped coat sets are in any color that one wishes, not necessarily to match the suit. The collar is quite long, deep at the back and finished with an edge of cluny lace or a hem of colored muslin or linen to match the stripe.

Novel Broches.

Broches are always interesting to the fashionable woman and this year it seems that the designers have outdone themselves in turning out a splendid assortment of quaint patterns. Among the favorites are feather designs set with stones representing the natural color of the plumage. One is of gold with pearl quill and another has a silver quill with exquisite enameling on the filmy part of the feather [illegible]

50,000 NEEDED TO HARVEST WESTERN CANADA'S CROP

Will Take 160,000 Altogether to Take Care of Yield of Prairie Provinces.

One hundred and sixty-two thousand farm hands will be required this year to harvest the grain crops of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Of this number the local help will provide about 112,000, which will leave about 50,000 extra farm hands. There is, therefore, a great demand for this class of laborers in all parts of Western Canada. In order to meet the requirements it has been arranged to grant very low railway rates from all boundary points reached by Canadian railways. In order to secure these rates it will be necessary for you to call on one of the following authorized agents of the Canadian government: M. V. McInnes, 176 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, Michigan; C. A. Laurier, Marquette, Michigan; J. S. Crawford, Syracuse, N. Y.; Thos. Hetherington, Room 202, 73 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.; H. M. Williams, 413 Gardner Bldg., Toledo, Ohio; Geo. Aird, 216 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Indiana; C. J. Broughton, Room 412 Merchants' Loan & Trust Bldg., Chicago, Ill.; Geo. A. Hall, 2nd Floor, 125 Second Street, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.; Chas. Pilling, Clifford Block, Grand Forks, N. D.; J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.; W. V. Bennett, Room 4, Bee Bldg., Omaha, Neb.; W. H. Rogers, 125 West 9th Street, Kansas City, Mo.; Benj. Davies, Room 6, Dunn Block, Great Falls, Montana; J. B. Carbonneau, Jr., 217 Main Street, Biddeford, Me.; J. N. Grieve, Auditorium Building, Spokane, Wash.

This will give to intending harvest laborers a splendid opportunity to look over the magnificent wheat fields of Western Canada and will give them the best evidence that can be secured of the splendid character of that country from the farmer's standpoint. There will be at least 200,000,000 bushels of wheat harvested within the area of the three provinces above named this year and it is expected that the yield will run from 15 to 25 bushels per acre. Many farmers, this year, will net, as a result of their labors, as much as $8 to $10 per acre and many of them will deposit as profits as much as $8,000 to $10,000.

The wide publicity that has been given to the excellent crop that is being raised in central Alberta and southern Alberta, central Saskatchewan and southern Saskatchewan, and also in Manitoba, will increase the price of lands in these three provinces from $3 to $5 per acre and the man who was fortunate enough to secure lands at from $12 to $20 per acre will have reason for gratification that he exercised sufficient forethought to invest, while the man who was fortunate enough to secure a homestead of 160 acres free will also have a greater reason to feel pleased.

Notwithstanding the great addition to the acreage this year over last and the large crop that will be ready for harvest there is no reason to become alarmed that the harvest will not be reaped successfully. There will be a great demand for these low rates during the next couple of months; be sure to make your application to any of the agents above mentioned that may be in your territory at as early a date as possible. Harvesting will commence about the 25th of July and continue for five or six weeks, when threshing will begin and there will be plenty of work until November.

Methodist Preachers Build a Church

Three Methodist ministers have been in Badger this week working on the new church. Rev. A. H. Hanson of St. Hilaire and Rev. W. H. Hill of Spooner came in Monday and Rev. J. B. Smith of Thief River Falls came up Tuesday. They joined Rev. F. H. Barnett the local pastor in the work of erecting the church that he has been working so doggedly at. The reverend gentlemen put their hearts into the work and the building has quite a changed appearance as the result of a week's labor. The outside work is almost completed, being sided and roofed with steel. Rev. W. H. Hill returned to Spooner yesterday and Rev. J. B. Smith and Rev. A. H. Hanson will return to their homes today. We are sure that the people of Badger appreciate their coming here and the work they have done and they in return expressed their appreciation of the hospitality of the Badger Methodists.—The Herald-Rustler, Badger, Minn.

STONE OF MISSOURI ARRAIGNS OPPONENTS; HE SAYS "USE FARMER AS TOOL."

PROFESSIONAL LOBBYISTS

Denies He Is President's Ally, But Avers Taft Is on Right Side.—Other Congressional News.

Washington, D. C. — Vigorous support of the Canadian reciprocity agreement by Senators Brown, of Nebraska, Stone, of Missouri, and Works, of California, and a short speech against the measure by Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, made up a debate on the measure in the senate.

Senator Stone arraigned the interests which he said, had been using the farmers for the purpose of attacking reciprocity. He asserted Democrats could find no excuse for not supporting the agreement as introduced by President Taft.

"This is part of a great progressive movement toward a closer commercial alliance with Canada, that will be for the lasting benefit of both countries," he added. "The president is on the right side; the Democratic house of representatives is on the right side. It will be a pitiful spectacle if the senate should stand as a stumbling block."

Denies He's Taft's Ally.

He said he had been charged by some Democrats with being an ally of the Republican president.

"I am supporting the measure, not the president," he said. "As soon as it is disposed of I am afraid my alliance with him will cease, unless he is willing to support some of the Democratic tariff bills."

Senator Stone said the reciprocity bill had been pictured as a ghost "stalking around in a moonless night seeking farmers to devour." He asserted the opposition of the farmers had in almost every case been artificially created. The 30,000 names petition from Minnesota, presented by Senator Nelson, was the result of the activities of an agricultural paper, he said.

The National Grange had been used by the firm of New York lawyers, Allen & Graham, who were summoned before the finance committee, Senator Stone said, to oppose reciprocity for the benefit of other interests that the firm represented. Instead of being lawyers for the farmers he said, they were "professional lobbyists" and represented manufacturers.

"The idea was to arouse the farmers and have them march upon the capitol and congress," Senator Stone said. "But behind them were these great interests, footing the bills and urging them on."

House Members Off on Trip.

Members of the house rivers and harbors committee, accompanied by many other Democratic and Republican representatives, left here by special train for a ten-day trip as guests of the city of Pittsburg, which recently appropriated $15,000 for their entertainment.

The party will visit Warren, at the headwaters of the Allegheny river, and Pittsburg, and will inspect the proposed Lake Erie and Ohio river ship canal route and proceed down the Ohio river to Cairo, to be shown the need for a nine-foot stage of water from Pittsburg to Cairo the year around.

Stephenson Case Up Today.

Charges of corruption in the election of Senator Stephenson, of Wisconsin, have been taken up by the senate committee on elections and privileges.

Chairman Dillingham will lay before the committee the papers concerning the case which the Wisconsin legislature recently forwarded to the senate, with a request for a congressional investigation.

Will Push Trust Suits Bill.

Senator Pomerene, of Ohio, will ask the senate to dispose immediately of his resolution instructing the attorney general to start criminal proceedings against the officers of the Standard Oil and American Tobacco companies.

Cotton Schedule Nearly Ready.

The revised cotton tariff schedule has been practically completed by the Democratic members of the house ways and means committee, and will be submitted to the Democratic caucus early next week.

BIG MONEY UP ON FOOT RACE.

Nearly $5,000 Changes Hands on 100-Yard Dash at Lead, S. D.

Lead, South Dak. — Fred Hamilton, formerly of Boulder Prep. school, Colorado, defeated Nick Ronin, of Deadwood, undisputed champion sprinter of the Black Hills, in a 100-yard race here. Nearly $5,000 changed hands on the race, which had been freely advertised, as Ronin had never been beaten. Owing to a misunderstanding in starting Ronin never left the scratch.

RUDE AWAKENING FOR ELIZA

Too Late She Discovered That Visitor Was Not the Object of Her Adoration.

The gentle Eliza was sitting drearily in the darkened room, waiting miserably for a visitor, whom she feared would never come. To tell the truth, Eliza and William had quarreled bitterly the night before. But what is that? A ring, a step, a masculine voice. She waited not, but threw herself into the visitor's arms.

"Oh, my darling!" she sobbed, with her head upon his bosom. "I am so glad you have called. I did so long to make up and do my best to pay you for bringing light into my life. Let us settle peacefully once more with each other."

"Well, miss," said a strange voice, "I'm willin', I'm sure. But my instructions is that if you don't I'm to cut off the gas!"

And it was only then that Eliza found out she had mistaken a common gas person for her William.—London Tit-Bits.

Prudential Reasons.

"So you are going to send your cook off. But isn't her name Arabella Gunn?"

"What's that got to do with our getting rid of her?"

"But, my dear boy, isn't there an ordinance against discharging A. Gunn within the city limits?"

MARK

A trial package of Munyon's Paw Paw Pills will be sent free to anyone on request. Address Professor Munyon, 53d & Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa. If you are in need of medical advice, do not fail to write Professor Munyon. Your communication will be treated in strict confidence, and your case will be diagnosed as carefully as though you had a personal interview.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, they do not gripe, they do not weaken, but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. In my opinion constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are 26 feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produce rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver ailment can expect to have a clear complexion or enjoy good health. If I had my way I would prohibit the sale of nine-tenths of the cathartics that are now being sold for the reason that they soon destroy the lining of the stomach, setting up serious forms of indigestion, and so paralyze the bowels that they refuse to act unless forced by strong purgatives.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic.

Regular size bottle, containing 45 pills, 25 cents. Munyon's Laboratory, 53d & Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia.

MAYOR BACKS UP POLICE.

East Grand Forks Executive Tells Chief to Act as Before.

East Grand Forks.—If those who made complaint against the East Grand Forks police are determined in their efforts to have all persons arrested brought into municipal court, investigation by state authorities will undoubtedly have to be made. Captain Quigley of the police force stated that Mayor O'Leary had instructed him to continue as he has been doing.

No investigation by the local authorities has been ordered, and there is no indication that one will be made.

Complainants, one of which is Judge Sullivan of the municipal court, state they have considerable evidence against the police and unless they cease the alleged practice of allowing persons arrested their liberty without trial, the charges will be pushed. Governor Eberhart has informed City Attorney Massee that if there were further charges, and they were substantiated, the matter would be put before Attorney General Simpson.

WILD FRUIT IS PLENTIFUL.

Grape Harvest in Woods Will Be Heavy This Year.

Winona.—This may be appropriately termed a wine season. Lovers of grape wine will have no difficulty in laying in large quantities of the beverage, for the hillsides and woods in this vicinity are bearing grapes as they have not borne them in years.

The tangled wild grape vines on the neighboring bluffs will yield hundreds of gallons of large luscious grapes which are accessible to any one for the picking. Wild fruits have not been plentiful for years, the vines failing to bear in large quantities, but this year there is a bright outlook.

While in some instances home grown fruit has not fared well this year on account of the hot sun and lack of rain, wild berries and other wild fruits are flourishing.

NEWS NOTES.

Lake City.—A postal savings bank will be opened in this city on Monday, July 24, according to notices received by Postmaster C. A. Von Vleck.

Elk River.—H. B. Nickerson marketed $560 worth of potatoes at the local market. The lot consisted of 400 bushels, and the price paid was $1.40.

Marshall.—Grasshoppers are destroying much grain in this section. A cloud of them was noticed high in the air and going south. Rye, barley and oats are mostly in the shock and indicate a probable half crop.

St. Cloud.—Fire and water damaged the stock of the Columbia book store, owned by Henry Schaufer here, doing damage estimated at $6,000. The insurance on the entire stock was $5.000 The origin of the fire is unknown.

St. Cloud.—Henry, the 14-year-old son of Jacob Meser, a farmer living near here, was dragged to death by a team of horses. The young man was raking in the field and had the lines fastened around his body. The horses were frightened by a passing automobile, and running away they dragged the boy to death.

Bemidji. — The work of putting the telephone wires of the city under ground in the business section of Bemidji has begun. All telephone wires will go through conduits, which are now being distributed. Men will begin digging ditches for the tile at once, in order that there may be no delay in laying the twelve blocks of new city paving.

Karlstad.—D. J. Ostlund of the local creamery scored 92½ at the second Minnesota butter scoring contest which closed July 1, and the prize for the month for this, the Fifth district, went to John Harms of Ada, who scored 93¾. There were 227 entries, nineteen more than in the previous month, which shows that the buttermakers of the state are alive. There were thirty-six entries from this district.

Faribault.—The Consumers Power company of this city will lay a gas main from here to Northfield, a distance of twelve miles, to supply that town with gas. The generating plant is located here and was recently enlarged sufficiently to supply Northfield. A high pressure line will be put in which will have a capacity of 50,000 cubic feet a day. The work of laying the line will begin as soon as a franchise is secured in Northfield, and will be pushed rapidly to completion.

Winona.—The Empire mill burner, one of the landmarks along the Mississippi in Winona and a relic of the lumber milling days, is about to disappear at the hands of wreckers. The burner has stood on the river front just below the main mill for the past twenty years. Five years ago it was partially blown away in a cyclone, but was rebuilt and kept in operation until the mill was permanently closed two years later. Since the closing of the mill it has been a structure of much wonderment for river travelers.

GOVERNOR AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Competes With Darkey Singers at Lake City.

Lake City.—The second annual Lake City Chautauqua has closed. The star attractions were Governor A. O. Eberhart, Thomas Brooks Fletcher, and the Slayton Jubilee Singers. The Governor made a strong address in favor of consolidated schools for Minnesota. Another Chautauqua will be held next year.

Signal Man Electrocuted.

St. Paul. — Mr. Stanley Manning, superintendent of the St. Paul fire alarm signal service, was electrocuted some time yesterday morning while working on the state fair fire alarm connection.

San Francisco, Calif. — Charles Johnson, alias James McCormick and alias Kelley, was arrested here on information of a private detective agency charged with having been implicated in a bank robbery in St. Paul, a year ago.

TAKEN AT A DISADVANTAGE

Awkward Question Put to Witness Led to Hasty Exit From the Stand.

A colored brother was charged with violating the prohibition laws, and one of the issues in the case was whether or not certain prohibited beverages were kept in an ice box in the defendant's place of business. Jim Jones, another colored brother, was introduced as a witness for the defendant, and swore positively that no prohibited beverages were kept in the box that day; that he was in the place all the morning. On cross examination, the city attorney asked if the ice box was open when he entered the place, or was opened in his presence. Jim promptly replied in the negative. He was then asked if he had been inside the box at any time that particular day, and replied that he had not. The city attorney then asked the all-important question of "how he knew there were no prohibited liquors in the box at that time." After considerable deliberation and a mute appeal to the defendant's attorney, which was very marked, Jim replied: "Fo' God, boss, I didn't know you was gwine ter ax me dat." Jim was hastily excused by consent of all parties.—Exchange.

IN AGONY WITH ITCHING

"About four years ago I broke out with sores on my arms like boils. After two months they were all over my body, some coming, and some going away. In about six months the boils quit, but my arms, neck and body broke out with an itching, burning rash. It would burn and itch, and come out in pimples like grains of wheat. I was in a terrible condition; I could not sleep or rest. Parts of my flesh were raw, and I could scarcely bear my clothes on. I could not lie in bed in any position and rest. In about a year the sores extended down to my feet. Then I suffered agony with the burning, itching sores. I could hardly walk and for a long time I could not put on socks.

"All this time I was trying everything I could hear of, and had the skill of three doctors. They said it was eczema. I got no benefit from all this. I was nearly worn out, and had given up in despair of ever being cured when I was advised by a friend to try Cuticura Remedies. I purchased Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and used exactly as directed. I used the Cuticura Remedies constantly for four months, and nothing else, and was perfectly cured. It is now a year, and I have not had the least bit since. I am ready to praise the Cuticura Remedies at any time. (Signed) E. L. Cate, Exile, Ky., Nov. 10, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 31, K, Boston.

An Eight Years' Walk.

Hiram Davis of Newburg went for a walk with his father eight years ago. The father stopped to talk with a friend, and Hiram, then about 10 years old, walked on. He was never seen after that until he walked into his parents' home recently.

The police all over the east were on the lookout for him, the Hudson river was searched and finally he was given up for dead. When he greeted his mother it was some hours before she could be calmed.

Davis has been out west.—New York Sun.

Harold Knows the Signs.

Five-year-old Harold's older sister was in the habit of making a good many demands on him. Generally her requests for favors, usually the running of errands around the house, were prefaced by what she considered subtle flattery.

"Now, Harold," she began one day, "you're a dear, sweet little boy, and you know I love you——" but Harold cut her short.

"Well, Ethel," he said, earnestly, "if it's upstairs, I won't go."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Too Dangerous.

In the struggling days at Tuskegee, Booker T. Washington found that he would have to use an old chicken house for a schoolroom.

"Uncle," he said to an old colored man, "I want you to come down at nine o'clock tomorrow morning and help me clean a henhouse."

"Law now, Mr. Washington," the old man expostulated, "you-all don't want to begin cleanin' out no henhouse roun' yere in de day time."—Success Magazine.

A SPOON SHAKER.

Straight From Coffeedom.

Coffee can marshall a good squadron of enemies and some very hard ones to overcome. A lady in Florida writes:

"I have always been very fond of good coffee, and for years drank it at least three times a day. At last, however, I found that it was injuring me.

"I became bilious, subject to frequent and violent headaches, and so very nervous, that I could not lift a spoon to my mouth without spilling a part of its contents.

"My heart got 'rickety' and beat so fast and so hard that I could scarcely breathe, while my skin got thick and dingy, with yellow blotches on my face, caused by the condition of my liver and blood.

"I made up my mind that all these afflictions came from the coffee, and I determined to experiment and see.

"So I quit coffee and got a package of Postum which furnished my hot morning beverage. After a little time I was rewarded by a complete restoration of my health in every respect.

"I do not suffer from biliousness any more, my headaches have disappeared, my nerves are as steady as could be desired, my heart beats regularly and my complexion has cleared up beautifully—the blotches have been wiped out and it is such a pleasure to be well again." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TAFT REPLIES TO ALASKA ATTACKS

Denies Selfish Interests Have Secured Controller Bay.

DEFENDS BROTHER AND SELF

President Denounces Letter Charging Undue Family Influence as Wicked Fabrication and Malicious Slander.

Washington.—President Taft sent to the senate Wednesday a message that recalled some of those received from his predecessor. It was in reply to a resolution of the senate requesting the president to transmit to the senate all the documents relating to the elimination from the Chugach national forest, in Alaska, of land fronting upon Controller bay. Mr. Taft seizes the occasion occasion to make a vigorous defense of his own honor and that of his brother, Charles P. Taft, against the attacks made in relation to this Controller bay "scandal."

The president sent in all the documents asked for, and more, and quotes the executive order in question, by which 12,800 acres were eliminated from the national forest. His message describes the importance of Controller bay as a railway terminal and relates the operations of the Copper River railroad, owned by the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, whose terminal is at Cordova.

Ryan's Application Investigated.

In December, 1909, Richard S. Ryan applied for the Controller bay elimination, afterward granted, stating that he represented the Controller Railroad and Navigation company. Mr. Taft tells how this application was referred to the district foresters at Portland, Ore., and in Alaska and was approved by Chief Forester Graves; how the navy department stated it did not desire to use Controller bay as a reservation; how the matter was considered fully by the forestry bureau, the secretary of agriculture, the secretary of the interior, the general land office and the cabinet. As a result, after an interview between the president and Mr. Ryan, an order was drafted eliminating 320 acres.

Meanwhile Mr. Ryan had satisfied the president and other officials that he and his associates had no connection with the Morgan-Guggenheim interests and were engaged in an independent enterprise in good faith to build an independent railroad. The question again came before the cabinet, and the president, with the approval of the secretaries of the interior and agriculture, changed the order so that it eliminated 12,800 acres, with sufficient room for a railroad town. The message says: "I was willing to do this because I found the restrictions in the law sufficient to prevent the possibility of any monopoly of either the uplands or the harbor or channel by the Controller Railroad and Navigation company or any other person or concern." These restrictions the president sets forth at length, and shows that the Ryan company has not the slightest opportunity for exclusive appropriation of the harbor facilities unless congress shall by future act deliberately and voluntarily confer it.

The "Dick to Dick" Letter.

Coming to the personal side of the matter, Mr. Taft says:

"Before closing, I desire to allude to a circumstance which the terms of this resolution make apt and relevant. It is a widely published statement attributed to a newspaper correspondent that in an examination of the files of the interior department a few weeks ago a postscript was found attached to a letter of July 13, 1910, addressed by Mr. Richard S. Ryan to Secretary Ballinger—and in the present record—urging the elimination of land enough for terminals for the Controller Railway & Navigation company. The postscript was said to read as follows:

"Dear Dick: I want to see the president the other day. He asked me who it was I represented. I told him according to our agreement, that I represented myself. But that didn't seem to satisfy him. So I sent for Charlie Taft and asked him to tell his brother, the president, who it was I really represented. The president made no further objection to my claim. Yours, DICK."

Uses Strong Language.

"The postscript is not now on the files of the department. If it were, it would be my duty to transmit it under this resolution. Who is really responsible for its wicked fabrication if it ever existed, or for the viciously false statement made as to its authenticity, is immaterial for the purposes of this communication. The purport of the alleged postscript is, and the intention of the fabricator was, to make Mr. Richard S. Ryan testify through its words to the public that although I was at first opposed in the public interest to granting the elimination which he requested, nevertheless through the undue influence of my brother, Mr. Charles P. Taft, and the disclosure of the real persons in interest, I was induced improperly and for the promotion of their private gain, to make the order.

"The statement is so far as my brother is concerned—and that is the chief feature of the postscript—is utterly unfounded. He never wrote to me or spoke to me in reference to Richard S. Ryan or on the subject of Controller Bay or the granting of any privileges or the making of any orders in respect to Alaska. He has no interest in Alaska, never had, and knows nothing of the circumstances connected with this transaction. He does not remember that he ever met Richard S. Ryan. He never heard of the Controller Bay railroad until my cablegram of inquiry reached him, which, with his answer, is in the record.

"Mr. Ballinger says in a telegram in answer to my inquiry, both of which are in the record that he never received such a postscript and that he was in Seattle on the date of July 13, when it was said to have been written.

"Mr. Richard S. Ryan in a letter which he has sent me without solicitation, and which is in the record, says that he never met my brother, Mr. Charles P. Taft, and that so far as he knows, Mr. Charles P. Taft never had the slightest interest in Controller Bay, in the Controller Railway and Navigation company, or in any Alaskan company, and he utterly denies writing or signing the alleged postscript. The utter improbability of his writing such a postscript to Mr. Ballinger at Washington, when the latter was away for his vacation for two months, must impress everyone.

Places the Blame.

"The person upon whose statement the existence of what has been properly characterized as an amazing postscript is based, is a writer for newspapers and magazines, who was given permission by Secretary Fisher, after consulting with me, to examine all the files in respect to the Controller Bay matter—and this under the supervision of Mr. Brown, then private secretary of the secretary of the interior. After the examination, at which it is alleged this postscript was received from the hand of Mr. Brown, the correspondent prepared an elaborate article on the subject of this order and Controller Bay, which was submitted to Mr. Fisher, and which was discussed with Mr. Fisher at length, but never in the conversation between them or in the article submitted did the correspondent mention the existence of the postscript. Mr. Brown states that there was no such postscript in the papers when he showed them to the correspondent and that he never saw such a postscript. Similar evidence is given by Mr. Carr and other custodians of the records in the interior department.

"Stronger evidence of the falsity and maliciously slanderous character of the alleged postscript could not be had. Its only significance is the light it throws on the bitterness and venom of some of those who take active part in every discussion of Alaskan issues.

Scandal-Mongering Denounced.

"I am in full sympathy with the concern of reasonable and patriotic men that the valuable resources of Alaska should not be turned over to be exploited for the profit of greedy, absorbing and monopolistic corporations or syndicates. Whatever the attempts which have been made, no one, as a matter of fact, has secured in Alaska any undue privilege or franchise not completely under the control of congress. I am in full agreement with the view that every care, both in administration and in legislation, must be observed to prevent the corrupt or unfair acquisition of undue privilege, franchise, or right from the government in that district.

"On the other hand, the acrimony of spirit and the intense malice that have been engendered in respect of the administration of the government in Alaska and in the consideration of measures proposed for her relief and the wanton recklessness and eagerness with which attempts have been made to besmirch the characters of high officials having to do with the Alaskan government, and even of persons not in public life, present a condition that calls for condemnation and requires that the public be warned of the demoralization that has been produced by the hysterical suspicions of good people and the unscrupulous and corrupt misrepresentations of the wicked. The helpless state to which the credulity of some and the malevolent scandal-mongering of others have brought the people of Alaska in their struggle for its development ought to give the public pause, for until a juster and fairer view be taken, investment in Alaska, which is necessary its development, will be impossible, and honest administrators and legislators will be embarrassed in the advocacy and putting into operation of those policies in regard to the territory which are necessary to its progress and prosperity. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The Power of Music.

Euripides (B. C. 480-406) was one of the celebrated tragic Greek poets who discoursed on music in this wise: "No one has found out how to soothe with music and sweet symphony those bitter pangs by which death and sad misfortune destroy families; and yet to assuage such griefs by music were wisdom." The music of the Greeks evidently had the power to stir or calm emotions, although neither melodic nor harmonic as the terms are understood today.

PACT IS PASSED

LONGEST CONGRESSIONAL FIGHT FOR YEARS IS ENDED.

FINAL VOTE TWO TO ONE

La Follette, in Plea Against Bill, Says Taft Seeks Favor and Scores Democrat's 'Attitude.

Washington, D. C. — The Canadian trade agreement bill passed the senate by a vote of fully two to one.

The most bitter fight for legislation waged by an administration in many years came to a close when the Canadian reciprocity bill, an issue before two sessions of congress, was passed by the senate by a decisive vote.

The final vote on the bill was 53 to 27.

This vote included all but four or five of the Democrats and also a good many so-called "stalwart" Republicans. Opposed to the bill were most of the Republican insurgents who come from northwestern states, a few of the Republican regulars and a handful of Democrats.

The measure has not been changed in any respect by the senate and when it is signed by the speaker and the vice president it will be dispatched to the president.

Senator La Follette featured in the final speechmaking with a vigorous arraignment of President Taft and the bill. He attacked the Democrats of the senate on the ground that they were deliberately trying for political purposes and pointed out that the Democrats had consistently voted down amendments proposing general tariff reductions. Their excuse, he said, had been that the president would not sign the reciprocity bill if it was encumbered with any general tariff amendments.

Several amendments to the reciprocity bill were defeated, including those by Mr. Bristow to reduce duties on lead bullion and lead paints and similar lead products and by Mr. Townsend for an alliance with Canada to enlarge the St. Lawrence waterway.

Senator Smith, of Michigan, attacking the bill, declared Canada would not be the only menace to American industries. He said British capital in great abundance in waiting to be poured into Canada when the reciprocity agreement is ratified and that from the advantageous ground across the "golden border" British industries will flood this country with competitive goods."

There were twenty-five amendments to the measure acted upon the last day. Many of these proposed to affix general tariff changes to the agreement. President Taft insisted that any changes of this character threaten the defeat of the entire reciprocity agreement with Canada.

The pending amendments included the La Follette amendments to the cotton and woolen schedules, the Nelson amendments restoring half the duty on agricultural products, the Clapp amendments enlarging the free list and removing all restrictions on the importation of paper, amendments by Senators Crawford and Gore reducing the duty on fresh meats and several similar amendments by Senators Cummins, Bristow and others. All were killed.

Party lines disappeared during the consideration of the bill. Tariff affiliations, to outward appearance, have been completely changed. President Taft has had the general support of the Democrats and of the Republican regulars and in this union of forces he has had enough support so that the bill was not in danger of defeat or of serious amendment since the session began.

Financial Measures Next Winter.

A batle royal over a financial bill in the next session of congress was foreshadowed when, in accordance with a general agreement among those concerned, Secretary of State Knox tendered to the senate hs resignation as a member of the national monetary commission, and Senator Penrose, chairman of the committee on finance, was designated by Vice President Sherman to succeed Mr. Knox.

The change was made to enable Mr. Penrose to give especial attention to the bill which the commission will present at the regular session next December.

Senator Penrose reported from the finance committee the Cummins bill providing for the abolition of the commission at the beginning of the regular session. The report was the result of a poll of the committee taken after a consultation between Senator Penrose and Chairman Aldrich.

CAMP FOR "U" CADETS.

Second Annual Field Work Will Be Held at Fort Snelling.

Minneapolis.—Major E. L. Butts, commandment of cadets at the state university, is completing arangements for the second annual encampment of the university cadets, which will be held again this year at Fort Snelling during the week of September 18. Major Butts has been detailed range officer at Camp Perry, Ohio, and his stay at the national target range will be from August 1 till September 1. He will return in time to superintend the encampment of the cadets.

There are to be two encampments this year, owing to the fact that the agriculture college does not open until the second week in October. The battalion from the the farm school will report at the camp September 29 and will continue till October 5. "The encampment last year was a complete success in every way and the cadets all look forward with pleasure to that week at the fort," said Major Butts last night. "I am certain that the faculty will make it a fixed feature of the military department soon. The students go through the routine of regular army life and receive practical instruction in military science annd tactics that are impossible to inculcate to the cadets on the parade ground or in the armory.

The camp will be pitched on the site where the sham battle was fought last June between the St. Thomas cadets and the university students. The equipment, tents, cots, rifles, accoutrements and the culinary utensils will be furnished by the state, but the cadets will be required to report in uniform which is to be worn exclusively during the week.

The day is not to be devoted to drill alone, but the cadets will have plenty of opportunities for renewing their acquaintances of last year with their classmates. Guard mount will be held each day and each company will send its detail. The afternoons will be devoted to field work, and in the evening dress parades will be the feature. The development of marksmen who next year will be able to compete with other colleges throughout the country is also contemplated by Major Butts.

LUCKY MAN IS DEAD.

James McCahill, Worth $10,000,000, Owned Site of Shenango Mine.

Duluth. — James McCahill, Duluth mine owner and millionaire, died at his summer home at Lake City, after a long illness. He was 58 years old, and is survived by a widow and six children. Mr. McCahill has not passed much of his time in Duluth for several years, and usually spent two-thirds of the year in California.

He was a carpenter and building contractor in the early days in Duluth up to the early nineties, when he traded a piece of Duluth real estate, valued at about $1,500, for 160 acres of land on the Messaba range.

This quarter section happened to be what is now known as the Shenango iron mine. It contained more than 40,000,000 tons of iron ore, and the royalty to Mr. McCahill of 25 cents a ton easily establishes his wealth at around $10,000,000.

In addition to the Shenango, Mr. McCahill owned considerable Duluth real estate. He has received a large income from the mine for some years, and has invested much of his money in Duluth.

NEW FARM COURSE.

Dean Woods Favors Teaching Agriculture at Moorhead Normal.

St. Paul.—The advisability of establishing an agricultural course at the state normal school at Moorhead is looked on with favor by Dean Woods of the agricultural college, who has been conferring with President Frank A. Weld, of the Moorhead institution and Prof. C. A. Ballard regarding the proposition.

It is probable the teachers taking the course will be allowed credits in agriculture, botany, agronomy, chemistry, physics, animal husbandry, and horticultural. "A course is already provided in domestic science, said Dean Woods last night.

"This will give the rural school teachers a working knowledge of agriculture, and if they desire additional training they can attend the college, where, I think, arrangements will be made to give them two years' credit for their normal school work in the same manner as they are now given two years' credit in the college of education."

The normal school authorities are anxious to add the course to their curriculum, as they believe in that way they will graduate teachers who will not be a disappointment, when they step into a community of scientifically educated farmers.

Dean Woods returned from Winona, where he spent Sunday looking over the country. "Everything is fine down there; the wheat, oats and other small grain have not been affected by the drouth. The corn is coming along finely.

SUES HUSBAND'S PARENTS.

Duluth Woman Wants $10,000 for Alienation of Spouse's Affections.

Fergus Falls.—Papers have been served in a sensational damage suit that is being brought by Julia Schachtschneider of Duluth, against her father-in-law and mother-in-law, Otto and Gusta Schachtschneider, for alienation of the affections of her husband. The defendants are prominent residents of this county, near Underwood.

The plaintiff alleges that she and her husband were maried in Duluth a short time ago and settled there, making that city their home, but that her husband's parents arrived shortly afterward and so turned him against her that he has since declined to live with her. She asks for damage in the sum of $10,000.

The parents, in their answer, allege that they did not know the couple were married, but this is vigorously denied by the plaintiff. The case is to coma to trial at the November term of court here.

SAYS INDIANS WERE DEFRAUDED

C. W. Burch Tells House Committee of White Earth Affairs.

Washington, D. C. — Frauds practiced upon many of the Chippewa Indians of the White Earth reservation in Minnesota by whites who have secured their lands were detailed before the house committee on interior department expenditures by W. C. Burch, of the department of justice, in answer to charges of misuse of money in connection with government investigation of those matters. Numerous suits growing out of these frauds are pending in the federal courts in Minnesota.

Burch declared that the most valuable pine land on the reservation had been allotted to the mixed bloods, who are legally competent to dispose of it. He said that "speculators and grafters" rushed in and took land conveyances indiscriminately from children and others legally incompetent.

The fact that considerable clothing was taken has led to suspicion that the burglary may be the work of North Dakota train robbers coming through by automobile.

A law passed by the last legislature make the possession of a goverment license prima facie evidence of the charge of selling liquor.

President Taft signed the bill ratifying the reciprocity agreement on Wednesday. The measure now awaits action by the Canadians, which under present plans is to be sought at a general election. There is said to be quite an opposition to the measure developing among the people of Canada.

The preliminary work in arranging farmers' institutes for the coming winter is being taken up. Business men desiring an institute in their town should make early application—addressing "Farmers' Institutes, University Farm St. Paul, Minn." Instructions and blank forms will be sent on request.

In another column will be found a call for a mass meeting of the progressive republicans of Pennington county. There was never a time in the history of our country when it was as necessary as now that our representatives in congress, and in fact in all public offices, needed so close a watching and so constant reminding of what the people want.

The printer has just as good grounds for asking the business men of a town to leave their job work at home as the business man has to ask the community to patronize him instead of the mail order houses. In fact the home paper does more for a town than any other enterprise located therein. Let the business men join hands with the home papers and both their interests will be greatly benefited.

The clerk of court has received a letter from the division of naturalization of the department of commerce and labor instructing him to not receive petitions for naturalization from aliens arriving in this country subsequently to June 29, 1906, until he shall have been furnished by them with certificates of arrival, which must be obtained from said division of naturalization. Blank applications for such certificates will be furnished by clerk of court to those asking for them. Requests for these blanks may be made in person or by mail.

The United States postal authorities have adopted a new stunt in connection with the poor roads on rural mail routes. Instead of cutting off a lot of innocent patrons, recently they caused the arrest of the township trustes of Bear Grove, Baker, Seely, and Union townships in Guthrie county for failing to drag the roads as required by law. At a hearing last Saturday the trustees agreed to take proper care of the roads in the future and their final hearing was postponed to give them an opportunity to make good.—Royalton N. D., Banner.

After Dr. Wiley's Scalp

Washington has been swept with wave after wave of political excitement during the past few months. The latest political explosion was the scandalous attack of Attorney General Wickersham on Dr. Wiley, chemist and pure food expert of the agricultural department. Dr. Wiley is an untiring foe of adulterated and poisonous foods. The big food canners of the country are anxious to have Dr Wiley removed from his position of government chemist so that they can name his successor, who of course will be satisfactory to them and lax in enforcing the pure food law. These food adulterers, the big canners, secured an investigation of Dr. Wiley's department, and all that they could find against him was a lump of excessive zeal in enforcing the pure food law. That excess consisted in his paying an assistant a trifle more than the law permitted and which did not amount to more than a few hundred dollars. Attorney General Wickersham, who made the investigation, recommended that Dr. Wiley be permitted to resign, but the president was flooded with letters and petitions from all over the country, and decided to let the doctor off with a slight reprimand.

It developed that Mr. Wickersham had been guilty of many flagrant violations of law in paying out money. For instance, Mr. Kellogg, who prosecuted the standard oil company, drew $75,000 in a lump sum as the expenses of the prosecution. The law provides that the department of justice shall only pay out money on bills that are itemized, so Mr. Wickersham is much more guilty of violating the law than Dr. Wiley. Why not fire Wickersham and hire some more Wileys?

Got Cold Feet

Frank Zolendak, who recently came over from Grand Forks and rented a farm west of town but who was living with his family in the H. O. Hauge residence west of the track, hitched up his team and left in the middle of Wednesday night for parts unknown forgetting to bid his friends goodbye. He owed $12.00 at Lazar's for groceries but that will be paid by the owner of the land who went his security. He borrowed $100 at the bank, the note being signed by a prominent citizen of St. Hilaire. He had bought a mower and rake of Holmes' Bros. and used them a short time. These he left behind, and Holmes Bros. have recovered them.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is a question whether waiting deserves anything or not, but it sometimes wins.

Time, tide and scorching automobiles wait for no man.

Sometimes it is merely force of habit that keeps a man from paying his debts.

While an idealist is looking for his ideal some sordid minded relative is slaving to pay for the idealist's meal ticket.

One reason why we don't like to mention our vices is because it is obviously superfluous.

When they begin to act as if you were one of the family it will be safe to look out for some other loafing place.

When a man is a guy he does not call attention to his condition. That does so itself.

There are people who would rather work than starve, and as long as they continue to multiply the world is comparatively safe.

STEALING A SIGN.

That Was the Policeman's Charge, but It Was Not Sustained.

Stealthily the policeman stole out from behind the side door of the saloon and quickly pounced on some Columbia college boys who were carrying a long board sign that had hung over some tobacconist's shop. The youths protested against the officer's interference, but he told them that they would find it a hard job to turn little old New York into a college town, and off to the lockup they went, college boys, sign and all.

"What's the charge?" asked the sergeant as he looked out at the aggregation of the coming great men of learning.

"Stealing a sign," answered the cop as some of the boys bumped it into the station house, where it reposed against the wall.

"We did not steal it," spoke up one of the youths; "we only borrowed it."

The sergeant turned to the cop and told him to call up the owner and find out what the true state of the case was. The policeman read the sign slowly and then turned to the telephone book to look up the owner.

"Hello! Did you lose a sign?" And the answer made the policeman scratch his head.

"What did he say?" asked the waiting sergeant. The reserves were beginning to grin, and the policeman looked very uncomfortable.

"It is all right," he said, scowling at the youths. "The owner says they rented the sign for the night and are to return it tomorrow morning when he is ready to do business again."

A shout went up from the youths as they were ordered out of the station, and they took up their triumphal march and sought out some other unsuspecting cop to dupe, and far down the street came back their triumphal yell:

"C-o-l-u-m-b-i-a!"

The cop laughed to himself as he started out again on his beat, and a friend at his side asked him the cause of his merriment.

"The owner of the sign was mad all the way through and wanted me to hold the sign. He had rented it all right, but he said that was the third time he had been called out of bed tonight, for the boys had been pulled in in three other precincts, but as long as I was a goat for him I thought I would let the rah-rah boys have some more fun with some other cop and sent them on their way."—New York Press.

The French Academy.

The French academy is one of the five academies and the most eminent constituting the Institute of France. It was founded in 1635 by Cardinal Richelieu and reorganized in 1816. It is composed of forty members, the new member elected by the remaining thirty-nine members for life after personal application and the submission of the nomination to the head of the state. It meets twice weekly and is "the highest authority on everything pertaining to the niceties of the French language—to grammar, rhetoric and poetry and the publication of the French classics." The chief officer is the secretary, who has a life tenure of his position. A chair in the academy is the highest ambition of most literary Frenchmen.

Rearranging the Basis.

"You are charging me $7 a week for board and lodging, Mrs. Irons," said the gray haired person of the name of Harris. "May I ask how you would itemize it? What part of it is for board?"

"Five dollars," replied the landlady.

"And $2 for my room?"

"Yes."

"Well, if you don't mind, Mrs. Irons," he said, proceeding to square up for another week, "we'll consider hereafter that I'm paying you $5 for lodging and $2 for board. It will seem more as if I were getting the worth of my money."—Chicago Tribune.

The Fortune Tellers.

Lady—Poor man! So you are just out of jail? Tramp—Yes, mum. I was a victim of fortune tellers ten years ago. Lady—Indeed? Tramp—Yes, mum. NOT A "FULL-LENGTH" PAPA

Child Wanted Original of Portrait That Had Been Made So Familiar to Her.

An amusing incident is related of a young service matron who had relinquished her husband for two years and who, having before his departure insisted on a good photograph, applied herself assiduously to the upbringing of her two-year-old baby with a view to the child's familiarity with her distinguished father. Each day she would call the baby girl to her and, kneeling beside her, would hold up the photograph, pointing out each feature to the child.

One day the officer came home, and the baby girl, then four years old, was summoned. "Come, dear," said the mother in glee, "papa has come home at last!" The child surveyed the officer in perplexity and finally shook her head.

"What is the matter, dear?" asked her mother. "Well," replied the child, "he looks something like my papa, but my papa hasn't any legs!"

DISFIGURED WITH CRUSTS

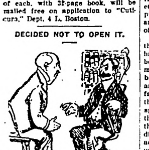
"Some time ago I was taken with eczema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered untold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly disfigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months, but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cure there is." (Signed) Miss Mattie J. Shaffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910.

"I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The itching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my sister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. L. Marberger, Drehersville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 4 L, Boston.

DECIDED NOT TO OPEN IT.



Caller—I was thinking about opening a drug store in this neighborhood. Do you think one is needed around here?

Resident—Great idea. There's no place within ten blocks where a man can buy stamps or see the city directory.

Supply.

New Minister—Now just one thing more before I accept this charge. Have you got a "supply?"

Deacon—Well, yes, though we never said anything to the last preacher about it. I'll show you where it is, and get you a key, but I tell you you'll have to be just as careful about using it as the rest of us!—Puck.

Gray Matter.

"I used to think I could hire all the brains I wanted for $25 a week," Mr. Pushem said.

"Well, couldn't you?"

"Yes. But it wasn't long before I had to call in a $100,000 lawyer to straighten out the kinks they put into my affairs."

Many a man enjoys having his wife's relatives visit them so he can be detained downtown till midnight on business.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Fergus Falls.—The Otter Tail county fair will be held here late in September and it has been decided to invite James J. Hill to deliver the principal address.

St. Paul, Minn. — Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburg baseball club, has bought pitcher Martin O'Toole, of the St. Paul club, for $25,000 and contracted to pay him that much salary for next year.

Fergus Falls.—The Otter Tail County Fair association has arranged for a mass meeting of citizens to discuss plans for the coming county fair in this city. The fair will be held late in September, and it was decided to invite James J. Hill to deliver the principal address.

Moorhead.—It is announced that J. E. Noble, a graduate of Concordia college in this city has been elected to fill the position of principal of the Scandinavian academy at Scandinavia, Wis. Mr. Noble will take charge of the academy at the opening of the coming session.

Fergus Falls.—Charles Bliss, a general merchant of Dent, this county, filed a bankruptcy petition in the United States court in this city, placing his assets at $8,465, of which $3,500 is in stock in trade, $2,500 in uncollected accounts and $1,765 exempt, and his liabilities at $8,423.37.

Duluth.—William Daniano, an Italian miner of Biwabik, was shot and fatally wounded by another Italian miner, Joe Barament, at Biwabik. Barament, after the shooting, ran away, but after returned and gave himself up. He declares that he shot in self-defense. Barament says that he owed Daniano $5 and that the latter came to collect it with a shotgun and Barament shot him to prevent getting shot himself.

Minnesota received during the past fiscal year $60,477.24 in interest from banks in the state where state money is on deposit. Figures are being compiled for the annual report of the treasurer's department, which will be issued some time in August, and this is one of the totals. During the last fiscal year the state paid out in interest on temporary loans $3,093.05. The net revenue from interest to the state amounted to $57,384.19.

Duluth. — The Socialists of Two Harbors won out in the recall election, retiring Alderman-at-large, H. J. Irwin, and reindorsing Alderman Charles Esse. Alfred Johnson defeated Irwin 419 to 285. Alderman Esse was re-elected by 134 to 70 over Harry Bangsund, of the Citizen's ticket. Two Harbors is in control of the public ownership party, the mayor and four of the seven aldermen being of that political faction.

Albert Lea.—Fire has broken out in the bed of Rice lake, which recently has been drained, and large holes are being burned deep in the porous soil, mostly composed of peat. These fires burn along under the sodden surface and are difficult to extinguish. Last fall fires of this kind prevailed and they were not put out until late in the spring, when the snow melted and thoroughly drenched the spongy mass that was left dry when the immense ditch was constructed. Thousands of acres of this land have been broken up and are being tilled.

St. Paul.—From nearly every state east or south of Minnesota Captain J. H. Wilson, in charge of the state employment bureau of the old capitol, has received offers of men to assist in the harvesting of Minnesota's crop. His desk is hidden in a mass of correspondence. Yesterday he received a letter from A Cleveland atorney offering to send 100 Hungarians in a body. Positions will be given to men residing in the state first, and then as many applicants from outside states as possible will have opportunity to work in the harvest fields.

BEMIDJI CHURCH FINISHED.

Methodists Have One of Handsomest Edifices in City.

Bemidji.—The brick work on the elegant new M. E. church building will be completed in another week. After the brick work is done, the contractor will at once begin the building of the basement walls and floor. When completed, the church will be one of the most handsome and imposing brick structures in the city.

AIRMAN BREAKS STATE RECORD.

Ward, Flying in Curtiss Biplane at Austin, Goes Up 2,500 Feet.

Austin. — Aviator Jimmie Ward, flying in a Curtiss biplane, broke all state records for altitude when he attained the heighth of over 2,500 feet in his last flight at the big aviation meet here.

Ward made three wonderful flights, remained in the air over half an hour and traveled about 10 miles.

$29,000 IN WOLF BOUNTIES.

State Pays Large Sum for Slaughter of Animals.

St. Paul.—Warrants were drawn by the state auditor for wolf bounties representing the June and July slaughter which aggregate $3,762. This will make the payment for the fiscal year on wolf bounty applications of $29,350.50. During the fiscal year 4,754 grown and cub wolves were killed in the state for which the state paid $7.50 and $3.00 respectfully.

OLD SENATE DESKS IN SCHOOL.

St. Louis County Pupils Will Use Them in the Future.

The pupils of a rural school near Duluth will have the honor of carving their initials in the very desks senators of Minnesota in years past rested their elbows, or in flights of flowery eloquence pounded with their fists, for the senate chamber in the old capitol has been cleared and the desks have been shipped to John Christie, Duluth, who is a trustee of one school that bought the desks.

MORE EXCELLENT REPORTS FROM WESTERN CANADA

Grains Are Heading Out Rapidly and Harvest Is Now Approaching With a Great Demand for Harvest Help.

Last week it was pointed out in these columns that there would be a yield of about 200,000,000 bushels of wheat throughout Western Canada, an increase of about 100,000,000 over the previous year, and that the demand for farm help was very great. Confirmation of this news is to hand and the cry still is for more help. The Canadian authorities are hopeful that the friends of the 400,000 or 500,000 Americans who have gone to Canada during the last few years will come to the help of these people and induce as many able-bodied men as they possibly can to take advantage of the low rate which is being offered from all points on the Canadian Boundary, and particulars of which can be had from any of the following Agents of the Canadian Government: M. V. McInnes, 176 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, Mich.; C. A. Laurier, Marquette, Mich.; J. S. Crawford, Syracuse, N. Y.; Thos. Hetherington, Room 202, 73 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.; H. M. Williams, 413 Gardner Bldg., Toledo, Ohio; Geo. Aird, 216 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Indiana; C. J. Broughton, Room 412, M. L. & T. Bldg., Chicago, Ill.; Geo. A. Hall, 2nd Floor, 125 Second Street, Milwaukee, Wis; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.; Chas. Pilling, Clifford Block, Grand Forks, N. D.; J. B. Carbonneau, Jr., 217 Main Street, Biddeford, Me.; J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.; W. V. Bennett, Room 4, Bee Bldg., Omaha, Neb.; W. H. Rogers, 125 West 9th Street, Kansas City, Mo.; Benj. Davies, Room 6, Dunn Block, Great Falls, Montana; J. N. Grieve, Auditorium Building, Spokane, Wash.

Every facility will be afforded men of the right stamp to secure advantage of these low rates. To those who propose to go, it may be said that they will have this splendid opportunity of securing first hand information as to the excellent producing character of the lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. They will have the opportunity of seeing some of the greatest wheat fields in the world and probably the largest yield of wheat, oats and barley that has ever been grown on the Continent. And all this on land some of which cost the settler only the $10.00 necessary to enter for his homestead, or, if he purchased, in some cases, costing him from $7.00 to $10.00 per acre, but which is now worth from $15.00 to $20.00 per acre. Even at these prices the land is remarkably cheap as will be realized when the statement is made that from 20 to 25 bushels per acre and over of wheat are grown, netting the farmer from $8.00 to $10.00 per acre; and this on land that he got for nothing or paid merely a nominal price. In fact the production shows that $18.00 to $20.00 per acre would be a nominal price for land that would produce as these lands produce.

Orville Blunt—Yes, it's great. The further away you stand from it the better it looks!

Rifle for Under Water Use.

When he is working in water infested by sharks and other sea monsters likely to do him harm, the diver has at present to rely for his safety on the use of the knife or, failing that, on a quick return to the surface. Now comes the invention of Captain Grobl, a German diving instructor, who has constructed a rifle which can be fired under water, and is designed for the better arming of the diver. The most remarkable thing about this is that it fires, not bullets, but water, which is propelled with such farce that it has an extraordinary power of penetration. Indeed, the inventor himself has pierced armor plate of medium thickness with the water jet from his weapon. The rifle has a stout barrel and is loaded with a cartridge cased in India rubber.

TOWN NAMED TAFT

Only Three Residents in This Indiana Burg.

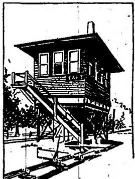
Signal Tower That Is On the Map and Has Politicians As Neighbors—Telegraph Operators Total Population.

Indianapolis, Ind.—President Taft on his recent trip to this city passed through or rather by Taft, Ind., for the first time. He, however, probably did not know it unless he was reminded of it.

There was only one inhabitant of Taft out of bed the night President Taft whizzed by the original station of Taft. That one inhabitant was C. A. Newlin, a telegraph operator, who had out a green light, which meant a clear track for the President.

The President, in all his travels, had never before been through Taft, Ind. While conducting his presidential campaign he visited Anderson one October evening, going in from the east, and was then routed by way of Rushville to Indianapolis. His recent trip was the first time the President has ever traveled over the Big Four railroad between Anderson and Indianapolis, and that is why he always missed Taft, Ind.

This Taft, Ind., is not a joke or a creation since William H. Taft became President. The place or station was named while Mr. Taft was a resident of Cincinnati and preparing to go to the Philippines as governor of the islands. Some one in the general offices of the Big Four soon after the Spanish-American war, when it became necessary to give names to new towers for interlocking signals and other devices for safety along the Big Four railroad between Anderson and Indianapolis, chose names of persons and ships then in the public eye. First one tower was named Taft. Then one between Pendelton and Ingalls was named after one of Dewey's good ships of war, Raleigh. Dickey Wainwright, who had not then become a rear admiral, but was making history while fighting the Spanish, was honored with the name of a tower at the southwest corner of Anderson. Wainwright and Taft are next door neighbors as towers. At the east end of the Big Four yards in Anderson another tower was named Gridley.



The "Town" of Taft.

It is well known that the first town west of Pendleton is Ingalls, named after M. E. Ingalls, but that was before Taft was named. J. Q. VanWinkle, formerly of Anderson, was general superintendent of the Big Four road at that time and it has always been surmised that Mr. VanWinkle named the towns Taft, Gridley and Raleigh.

Taft, Ind., is on the official railroad map as issued by the Indiana railroad commission. Taft is important to the Big Four road. It is a guard, a sentry against any danger of collision of trains or loss of time in switching and passing.

Taft is a twenty-four-hour place, that is, it is never depopulated. Three telegraph operators work eight-hour shifts. S. D. Solomon has the first "trick" from 12 m. to 4 a. m. J. W. Stephens takes the second "trick," as they call it, from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., and C. A. Newlin from 4 p. m. to 12 m. M. W. Hummel, repair man for the tower interlocking switches and semaphore signals in the vicinity of Anderson, is an occasional visitor to Taft, Ind. Mr. Stephens and Mr. Hummel were at Taft when a correspondent visited Taft, Ind., for a picture of the place.

Jerome Brown, former county commissioner, and Dory Biddle, who quit newspaper editing to turn farmer, are among the nearest residents of Taft. Brown is a Republican and Biddle is a Democrat. Sid Conger visited Taft frequently while he owned a farm that adjoins Taft. He recently sold the farm to Carl von Hake, of the Marion county board of commissioners. Former Governor W. T. Durbin owned the farm before Conger bought it, so there has been more or less of an atmosphere of politics about Taft ever since it was established.

Antiques Bring Big Prices.

Paris.—A carved wooden bed, armchair and screen, which were made for Marie Antoinette at Versailles, were offered at auction on June 2 at a reserve price of 1,000,000 francs, or $200,000. There were no bids, and the articles were put up again today. They were bought in for 180,000 francs, about $36,000. They were the property of the Marquis Cazeau, whose father found them in a concierge's room and bought them very cheap.

Solves Stonehenge Riddle.

Boston.—Prof. Richard Norton of Harvard, according to reports that have reached here from Cyrene, Grecian Libya, has made discoveries that may solve the mystery of Stonehenge, the ruins on Salisbury plain, England. Prof. Norton, it is said, soon will announce the result of the excavation by the American archaeological expedition of the Greek city Cyrene, which was founded B. C. 631.

IN THE UP-TO-DATE FASHION

Lecturer Found It No Trouble at All to Answer Question Meant to Embarrass Him.

"Will you allow me to ask you a question?" interrupted a man in the audience.

"Certainly, sir," said the lecturer.

"You have given us a lot of figures about immigration, increase of wealth, the growth of trusts and all that," said the man. "Let's see what you know about figures yourself. How do you find the greatest common divisor?"

Slowly and deliberately the orator took a glass of water.

Then he pointed his finger straight at the questioner. Lightning flashed from his eyes, and he replied, in a voice that made the gas jets quiver:

"Advertise for it, you ignoramus!"

The audience cheered and yelled and stamped, and the wretched man who had asked the question crawled out of the hall a total wreck.

CURE THAT SORE THROAT

Sore throat is inflammation of the mucous membrane of the throat, and if this membrane happens to be at all sensitive a predisposition to sore throat will exist.

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic is both a preventative and a cure for sore throat because it possesses extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal qualities. Just a little in a glass of water, used as a gargle, will quickly relieve all soreness and strengthen the mucous membrane of the throat, and thus overcome all tendency to sore throat.

Paxtine is far superior to liquid antiseptics or Peroxide for all toilet and hygienic uses.

Paxtine may be obtained at any drug store, 25 and 50c a box, or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

The Quaker Scored.

An old Quaker went into a bookseller's shop, and an impertinent shopman, wishing to have some sport at his expense, said to him:

"You are from the country, are you not?"

"Yes," replied the Quaker.

"Then here is just the thing for you," responded the man, holding out the book.

"What is it?" asked the Quaker.

"It is an 'Essay on Rearing Donkeys.'"

"Friend," said the Quaker, "thee had better present that to thy mother."

Small Boat to Sail Far.

The yawl yacht Recluta, 36 tons, has set out on a voyage of 6,000 miles, from Gosport to Buenos Ayres, the headquarters of her new owner. The little vessel carries a crew of four, and is commanded by Capt. Harry Williams, who recently took the 20-ton cutter Moyana to Odessa. All the members of the Recluta's crew are Hamshire men. She will go to Madeira, Capo Verde, Pernambuco and Monevideo. The longest sea run will be a distance of about 2,000 miles, between Cape Verde and Pernambuco.—London Standard.

FALSE HUNGER

A Symptom of Stomach Trouble Corrected by Good Food.

There is, with some forms of stomach trouble, an abnormal craving for food which is frequently mistaken for a "good appetite." A lady teacher writes from Carthage, Mo., to explain how with good food she dealt with this sort of hurtful hunger.

"I have taught school for fifteen years, and up to nine years ago had good, average health. Nine years ago, however, my health began to fail, and continued to grow worse steadily, in spite of doctor's prescriptions, and everything I could do. During all this time my appetite continued good, only the more I ate the more I wanted to eat—I was always hungry.

"The first symptoms of my breakdown were a distressing nervousness and a loss of flesh. The nervousness grew so bad that finally it amounted to actual prostration. Then came stomach troubles, which were very painful, constipation which brought on piles, dyspepsia and severe nervous headaches.

"The doctors seemed powerless to help me, said I was overworked, and at last urged me to give up teaching, if I wished to save my life.

"But this I could not do. I kept on at it as well as I could, each day growing more wretched, my will-power alone keeping me up, till at last a good angel suggested that I try a diet of Grape-Nuts food, and from that day to this I have found it delicious always appetising and satisfying.

"I owe my restoration to health to Grape-Nuts. My weight has returned and for more than two years I have been free from the nervousness, constipation, piles, headaches, and all the ailments that used to punish me so, and have been able to work freely and easily." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Work for Extinction of Tuberculosis.

Exhibitions showing in graphic form the prevention of consumption have been shown in every state in the United States, except Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming, and also in most of the Canadian provinces and in Mexico, Porto Rico and Cuba, according to a statement made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. There are now 25 states and 16 cities having permanent and traveling exhibits besides the two operated by the National association itself, and the total number of similar displays is over 200, including about 150 small school exhibits. The first tuberculosis exhibit in America was shown by the Maryland Tuberculosis commission in January, 1904. In 1906 there were four such exhibits.

Washington.

Sharp controversy over the delay in the house investigating committee's inquiry into the Controller bay affair, including the alleged "Dick to Dick" letter, occurred in the committee room between Chairman Graham, democrat, and Representative Burke, of South Dakota, republican.

Government finances for July, the first month of the fiscal year 1912 probably will make a much better showing than a year ago. Although the federal treasury is now running on a deficit for the month this is said to be due to the extraordinary heavy expenditures, which always occur on the first month of a fiscal year. Mr. Berger asked the president to take some action toward allowing letter carriers in various cities to perform their duties during the hot summer days in their shirt sleeves. The president, Mr. Berger said, promised to act.

MINER IS RESCUED

JOPLIN, MO., WORKERS REACH IMPRISONED LAD WITH A DRILL SHAFT.

WAS BURIED THREE DAYS

Calls Up a Cheery "Hello!" and Is Lowered Food and Drink.—Water Creeping Into His Underground Cell.

Joplin, Missouri. — Joseph Clary has been reached by rescuers. He was alive and well. When the last spadefuls of earth were removed by workmen in the shaft and they dropped through into the drift, Clary threw himself into their arms and wept while the shouts of thousands cheering at the mouth of the mine echoed down the shaft.

Three workmen were digging in the narrow shaft when the bottom gave way, and they dropped into the drift. Clary saw the light of day and looked upon fellow beings after a period in darkness which, though reckoned by him to be something over four days, was really exactly three days and 45 minutes.

Joplin, Missouri. — Entombed for feet below the surface of the earth; facing possible death from the rapidly rising water in the mine drift, Joseph Clary, the young miner caught by a cave-in at the White Oak mine here Sunday, feasted on fried chicken and joked with friends who are waiting for his rescue.

"Hello," his brother-in-law, Maurice Grafton, called down the hole when the drill bits had been removed.

"Hello, boys, I'm hungry," came the clear, but faint reply.

Then Thomas Clary, father of the entombed miner, hastened to his home, where the young man's mother was prostrated from grief, and told her the young man was still alive. The news, the doctors say, has saved her life.

From his home, the father, one of the oldest prospectors in this district, hurried back to the mine, carrying milk and stimulants, which were lowered on a piece of rope to his son. After drinking these Clary seemed much stronger and remained near the drill hole talking with those at the top.

"I have not worried any, though it has been a long while," he said, "for I knew that you were after me. The water has been rising fast in here and it is about waist deep in some places now. I don't believe it will get much higher, for this is dry ground."

The ground where the mine is located is known as "dry ground," and it has never been necessary to use a pump to keep the water out of the drifts while work was going on. This fact lends encouragement to those who are working to sink a rescue shaft to the drift. If, however, the shaft is not down to the drift within two or three days it may be too late to bring the young man out alive.

After the entombed man had eaten his supper an electric flashlight was let down to him and also a small rope which he tied around his waist so that in case he stepped into a deep hole while exploring his prison he could be saved.

In talking to Clary, it was learned for the first time that one of the former drill holes penetrated the drift in which he is confined. He thinks it was the one that was sunk Monday, but whether this is correct is problematical. The drill hole penetrated the roof of the drift near one of the walls and Clary says that though he called up it until he was exhausted he failed to get a reply and thought that the rescuers had given up hope that they would find him alive. Then he became despondent, he says.

The work of sinking the rescue shaft is progressing rapidly. The shaft is now down about 50 feet, with every indication that it will reach the entombed man. As the work progresses, however, it is necessary to crib the sides with logs to keep the walls of the shaft from caving.

DAMAGE IS IN SPOTS

No Great Harm Done by Grasshoppers Says Prof Washburn.

St. Paul—Although in a few places the grasshoppers have devastated entire farms, taking the state as a whole the damage has not been very great, and there is no cause for alarm, according to Prof. F. L. Washburn, state entomologist.

The damage has been the greatest, he says, in the Red river valley west of Fergus Falls, in Beltrami county and in Yellow Medicine, Redwood and other counties in the southwest section of the state. The department now has one field man working in Beltrami county and three in Southern Minnesota.

The "hoppers" have been cutting off the heads of the oats and attacking the wheat, while now that these crops have been harvested in most of the sections they are devastating the flax fields in spots, and even attack the corn in some cases.

"It is too early to estimate the damage done," said Prof. Washburn, "but as far as the state as a whole is concerned the damage has not been extraordinary, but the fact that they have settled on individual farms in most cases and destroyed from 50 to 95 per cent of the crops on these places has been a great hardship to many farmers who have not as yet recovered from last year's crop shortage."

The most successful method of combating the "hoppers" has been the spraying of the fields with a potion made of three pounds arsenite of soda (not arsenate of soda) and 165 gallons of water, to which is added one and a half gallons of molasses. It is put on with an ordinary field sprayer drawn by horses. It is best applied when the "hoppers" are young. While this will do the work in the strength used it is not poisonous to stock. If there is any mustard in the field two birds will be killed with one stone, the mustard being destroyed as well as the grasshoppers.

"We have not abandoned the hopperdozers by any means. They are about sixteen feet long and two and one-half feet wide and are fitted with canvas backs. They are drawn over the fields gathering the grasshoppers while they are in the wingless stage. But we find the poison method the best and the arsenite of soda preparation the best of the poisons. This preparation has never been used in the United States before, but it is used by the English in South Africa, where the grasshoppers are often very troublesome."

STUCCO FALLING OFF.

Even Tile Comes Out In New Grand Stand at State Fair Grounds.

St. Paul.—The stucco finish on the grand stand erected two years ago at the state fair grounds at a cost of more than $200,000 is falling off in large chunks. The sidewalk along the building is covered with the debris that has fallen in the few days last past.

In some places spots eight feet in diameter are completely bare, showing the hollow tile, and in one place the tile itself has fallen out. The stucco covering the heavy steel cornice has fallen in many places, leaving the steel superstructure bare.

The building was erected two years ago by the Grant Construction company, and owing to the inability to get some of the material work was delayed and it was hurried unduly to get it completed in time for the opening of the fair. Most of the stucco covering was put on in the fall after the fair.

It is understood the contractors will repair the building before the fair opens the first week in September.

BLACK RUST RAVAGES FIELDS.

Losses Are Reported by Many Farmers Near Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls.—As the harvest progresses it becomes more and more evident that black rust has done damage throughout this section of the state.

Samples are being brought in daily from fields which promised yields of fifteen to twenty bushels per acre, but which will not be worth cutting on account of the rust. The stems have died and look as though hot water had been poured over them, and they are liberally sprinkled with black specks which seem to have sapped their vitality. Some fields have withstood the rust better than others.

Winter rye was harvested and is a big crop. Corn promises a heavy yield and it is thought that there will be a fair crop of potatoes, now that there has been a soaking rain.

Case Puzzles the Physicians.

Minneapolis—Martin Gray, the 16-year-old boy who broke his neck about a week ago in diving from a dock at Lake Calhoun, still continues a problem to the medical men who are caring for him. No change reported in his condition, and although paralyzed from his neck down, he remains conscious and exhibits but few symptoms of having any pain. It is believed that he may live for several weeks, but the doctors do not expect that he will recover from the paralysis.

$700 ON YEGG'S HEAD

Government Adds $200 to State's $500 Reward for Capture of Mike Davis.

St. Paul.—Renewed efforts to capture Mike Davis, known as Manchester Curly, the yegg who figured in the attempted burglary of the general store and postoffice of Puposky, which precipitated the arrest of Dr. D. T. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, and the exposure of an alleged crime ring in Northern Minnesota, will be made by the State fire marshal's department.

Employes of the department were mailing out 2,000 placards, bearing front and side view pictures of the noted yegg, and offering $500 reward for his capture. His description also was given, and captors advised to notify Sheriff A. B. Hazen, at Bemidji. The placards are signed by Charles E. Keller, state fire marshal.

In addition to this reward, which was offered by Governor Eberhart immediately after the yegg's escape, the placard says that the government will also pay $200 for the apprehension of Davis. In this the close relation between local government officials in the investigation that is still being conducted in the neighborhood of Cass Lake and Bemidji, is first shown.

INSURANCE RATE UNSETTLED.

Twin City Members of Scandinavian Relief Assn. Discuss Finances.

St. Paul.—A well attended meeting of Minneapolis and St. Paul members of the Minnesota Scandinavian Relief association was held in the First Swedish Lutheran church. The meeting was held for the purpose of discussing what action to take to restore the association to a sound financial footing.

Headquarters of the association are in Red Wing. There has been much dissatisfaction among older members because of the increase in rates to make association ends meet. This dissatisfaction has been so practical that the association treasury has been affected.

Many took part in the discussion at the meeting. E. M. Nelson, attorney for Milwaukee members, criticized the ruling of the insurance commissioner that injunction proceedings can not be started. No action was taken on any of the matters at stake.

WILL REBUILD WINONA MILL.

Directors of Bay State Milling Co Plan Largest Plant in U. S.

Winona.—H. C. Garvin, manager of the Bay State Milling Company, the plant of which was destroyed by fire Friday night, causing a loss of $600,000, arrived in Winona Sunday. He had been spending his vacation in the East and was summoned home, word reaching him at Mt. Clements, Mich. B. J. Rothwell, of Boston, president of the corporation and representative of the Boston capitalists intreested, is also here.

A conference is scheduled when the matter of rebuilding the plant will be discussed. Already plans are under consideration for building on the site of the wrecked mill a modern fireproof structure which will be the largest flour mill in the United States.

It is said the plans, still in the rough, call for an expenditure of close to a million dollars.

AFFECTED BY FIRE SUFFERING.

Victim of Flames at Spooner Gets Into Trouble at Moorhead.

Moorhead.—Carl Wallenberg, who from papers found in his pockets was found floating on a raft in the Rainy river half dead from burns and bruises sustained in the Spooner forest fires, entered the jewelry store at Quale & Martinson in this city and asked for work. When work was refused him he threatened to kill Mr. Quale, who threw him out and later Wallenberg was arrested.

It is thought the man's condition was brought on by his terrible experiences in the forest fire.

GOVERNOR TO VISIT CANADA.

To Be Guest of Canadian Club of Port Arthur This Month.

Governor Eberhart will accept the invitation of the Canadian Club of Port Arthur to be its guest some time this month, according to his secretary, Ralph W. Wheelock, though the date has not been set.

The invitation is taken as an indication that, since the passage of the reciprocity pact by Congress, closer relations between this section of Canada, at least, and its United States neighbor, Minnesota, are desired.

For a couple of weeks or more Mr. Bigelow has been very low, and his end has been expected for some time.

TRIFLES OF THE WARDROBE

NEW NECKWEAR TIPS

HEAVY VALENCIENNES IS SEASON'S LATEST NOTE.

Ecru Irish Lace Combined With Brussels Net of Same Tone Makes Attractive Stock and Jabot—Jewelry Hint.

The simplest of the new straight Valenciennes lace collars sells for $10. Baby Irish collars and baby Irish lace in all forms of neckwear are still popular, but this heavy Valenciennes is the season's latest note. The newest thing in Irish lace and Irish insertion is made of ecru thread. One exceedingly attractive stock and jabot is made of ecru Irish lace combined with tucked Brussels net of the same tone. This sort of collar—marked six to eight dollars in the shops—could be duplicated by the clever needlewoman. The straight collar portion is made of a band of one-inch-wide Irish crocheting and below this a two-inch portion of ecru net with four quarter-inch tucks going the length of the collar. A narrow facing of black satin finishes the collar at the top. The jabot is made of an irregular shape of ecru Irish crocheting, net and tiny loops and rosettes of black satin.

There is a charming soft collar selling for 25 cents that is sure to prove popular with the woman whose neck is irritated under a high starched collar and who yet wants to have her throat covered. It is made of fine pique, in two-inch turn-down style, in white, ecru or light blue. The front is held in place by a small pearl link which fastens under the windsor or other soft tie to be worn with it. Other styles of this collar are finished with narrow buttonholing and embroidery and are accordingly more expensive.

A new French embroidered collar is cleverly made with a butterfly wing on both sides of the front closing. In one there is a buttonholed loop and through this the other wing slips in such a way that when closed and adjusted the collar makes its own small embroidered butterfly tie. This is one of the smartest and triggest pieces of neckwear shown this year.

In all the ties, bows and frills shown this year one is struck by the play of black used with a dash of contrasting color. For instance, little ties—creations of miniature bows, rosettes and rosebuds, made of Helen pink combined with black satin—give just enough color to the shirt waist get-up. Other colors popular in neckwear are turquoise blue, coral, mauve, one of the new greens and amber. Always these colors are found in extremely small quantities, just a suggestion, and never enough to seem over-brilliant.

The girl who likes rings can get quite a collection of pretty stones to match her various shirt waist accessories at a very small sum. Dull silver rings with opaque stones can be picked up sometimes for only 50 cents. An imitation jade gives the right touch to the green get-up, a turquoise matrix to the turquoise blue accessories, while coral, amethyst and topaz all find pleasing combinations.

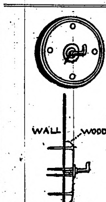
HINT FOR HANGING PICTURES

How Difficulty of Making Nail Hold in Plaster Wall May Be Overcome.

Most people at some time or other, in hanging pictures, have come across a plaster wall in which it is most difficult to make a nail "hold," and it is for occasions of this kind that the hint contained in our sketch will be found useful.

A small circular or square piece of wood, leveled at the edges, should be made, with a small brass hook screwed in the center and four holes drilled near the edge for nails. This little contrivance may be firmly glued to the wall and also nails driven through the four holes to fasten it in place more securely still. The wood may be painted or stained a color to match the wall and, therefore, be scarcely visible.



The piece of wood should be about the thickness of the length of the screw attached to the hook, and hooks suitable for this purpose may be obtained from any ironmongers.

The lower diagram shows a section of the wood and illustrates very clearly how it may be fastened to the wall with nails and glue.

To Set Color in Summer Dresses.

After carefully removing the soiled spots in your summer dresses plunge them into boiling water with one tablespoonful of coarse salt which has previously been melted. Leave two minutes, remove, wring out and hang on the line in the shade. The color in the daintiest gown is set till the last thread of the fabric is worn out. This is a tried recipe which will give the [illegible]

TO PROTECT THIN STOCKINGS

Will Last Longer by Adding Two or Three Kinds of Harness to One Pair.

The popularity of thin stockings, which include lisle and silk, has caused individuals and firms to invent all kinds of guards to make these thin stockings wearable. The woman who indulges in them has added two or three kinds of harness to one pair of stockings, but she makes by it in the end, for her stockings last longer and they do not show the large darns, which are not attractive with slippers and low pumps.

The first protection is a round chamois pad, which is attached to the end of each corset elastic and goes between the top of the stocking and the steel hook. The pulling of the stocking comes against the chamois instead of the metal and therefore one does not have those unsightly Jacob's ladders which ruin the best stockings ever made.

Another safety device is a toe guard of knitted silk. This comes in white only and it can be worn under any color of stocking without showing because of its shortness. This catches the impression of the toe and the silk tassels of brilliants.

Use for Old Sleeves.

In ripping up old waists and coats that have the old-fashioned big sleeves take and cut off the arm at the elbow or below, which might be required; now place the seams together and sew up to within a few inches of the top. The part that used to form the under arm portion, as it went into the arm hole, forms the front part; leave a 3½-inch place and then the sleeves form a point where the two upper sleeves were formerly gathered. Cut this point off the size of the little boy's waist. Lay the exact seams together now and cut them the middle of each former sleeve. For the side openings and face or bind; put a pocket each side and face the tops. Make six buttonholes, and you have as many pairs of pants as you have old sleeves, nice for play and good enough for school, if the cloth is fine. The curve in the under arm brings the front and the oval of the gathered part brings the fulness for the seat just right.

Lace Revers.

Quite new are the flat revers of Irish, Duchesse or odd linen lace, with a frill of Valenciennes about two inches wide around the edge. On a sheer embroidered batiste with a hint of pale pink in the flowers was a side frill of the same material as the waist reaching well below the bust. The frill was edged with fine point de Paris lace in a wide round scallop showing a quaint design that might have been taken from some long forgotten [illegible]

Speaking of the promised veto the wool schedule by the president the Duluth News Tribune says: "Americans are not good waiters; when they have made up their mind, something happens. The Canadian reciprocity pact, now a law in the United States, will not become operative until ratified by the Canadian parliament. It is claimed that many of the wire pullers who opposed its passage here have gone to Canada to continue the fight. Premier Laurier is in favor of its passage in parliament, but there is opposition, and Laurier has "taken the bull by the horns" and says he will refer the matter to the people for a vote if parliament refuses to act.—Cass Lake Times.

It is possible for careless help to leave a considerable portion of the grain crop in the field by neglecting to gather up scatterings, loose bundles, etc., and by hauling grain on open-bottom racks. From a few pounds to a few bushels of grain may be saved every day, during stacking, by using a tight-bottom rack, or a canvas over the rack that will catch all of the grain that is shattered out of the heads. In seasons when the grain shatters badly, a surprisingly large amount of grain can be saved in this way.—A. D. Wilson, Minn. University Farm.

The Alaskan Snarl

Mr. Roosevelt blames the troubles of Alaska upon two causes—the greedy corporate exploiters and the cowardice of lawmakers.

The exploiters have dared everything in order to further their chances at tremendous profits—public opinion, the law of the United States, reprisals, and the jail. For investments of a few thousands they count upon taking out millions. By trickery and bribery, by the subsidy of government officials, they hope to combat the clamor for fair dealing and to stay the reform of land regulations. The representatives and senators have postponed the consideration of crying needs, fearing the anger of the exploiters more than the irritation of the general public.

Local Merchant Shares Blame

There have been many foolish contentions and many absurd arguments made pro and con on the mail order question. A great deal of abuse has been printed of the mail order concerns by local papers and most of it, in our judgment, is little short of good advertising, and ineffective argument against the mail order concern. The reason that country people buy goods of mail order houses or of the dealers of some larger near by town is because they are influenced or made to belive that there exists some advantage to them in trading elsewhere than with the home dealer. And this perhaps is not stating the fact sufficiently strong. There are those doubtless who feel that they are able to save a great deal on the purchase of their goods elsewhere than of the home dealer.

One very marked oversight on the part of local business men and of the general public as well as the insignificance or unimportance of things that often produce a lasting and almost ineffaceable impression. Little things very often cause us to reach decisive conclusions that may be entirely incorrect and easily disproved, yet remain forever settled conclusions unless emphatically disproved. A 19 cent cast monkey wrench may have the same finish and appearance as a genuine forged steel wrench, worth three or four times as much. A 10 cent cast claw hammer, polished and plated, may have an equal appearance with a 75 cent forged steel hammer.

A shrewd salesman always seeks to impress his prospective patrons with the advantages to be enjoyed by trading with him, and the mail order man may very properly be classed as a shrewd salesman. He has no objection to the general public getting under a wrong impression, provided the error is in his favor. But what does the local merchant do to disprove the error? Nothing, absolutely nothing as a rule, He just sulks! That's all.

The catalogue tells the consumer over and over from start to finish of his big book that he can and does buy and sell cheaper than any other dealer. He prints plausible arguments why it is so—his big purchases, his ownership of factories, and his millions of dollars of sales annually, etc., etc., all are cited. But did you ever know one of them to tell how much the rents, taxes, and insurance cost on the big city block? How much the salaries of the thousands of employes amounted to annually? How much the million or so of big catalogues they put out every year come to? How much the hundreds of men at the heads of departments which they employ at $100 to $500 per month salary come to? How much the army of truck wagons they employ to cart the goods from cars to warehouses and warehouses to cars come to? No, they do not boast of any of these things, but we know that all these things in a big cost great sums—enough to make the goods thus handled and sold in a retail way, shipping direct to consumer, cost fully as much or more than goods of similar quality do, when sold from the retailer's stock, direct to the consumer, without any packing, billing, booking, and shipping expense like the mail order house has to stand.

But the mail order man spends great sums annually advertising and educating the public to believe in him. The country retailer in the small town holds his advertising expenditures down to a dollar or two a week, and most of them not even that much, and many of them nothing. The result is the mail order man sweeps the country over with his deceptive arguments and gathers in the trade.

A skilled writer can produce sound logical arguments and proof that knocks the whey out of every claim the mail order man makes in behalf of his system of the country retail merchant. But the retailer will not stand for the service and the mail order man finds him easy prey, and all but wipes him off the face of the earth.—Leva, Ill., Star.

"We've Met the Enemy and She is Our'n"

Reflecting back to the days of war in this country surely seems appropriate in a "write up" of the game of ball played in our town Sunday. "Verily, history do repeat itself." Were it not for the unusual number of ivory domes displayed in the game, it would hardly be necessary to expound at length on the play; the result being very satisfactory to the "Gophers," i. e., so far as scores were concerned. The Terrebonne team came to our midst with a reputation born of many victories and conquests on foreign fields; but after having seen their prowess against the Gophers we can hardly say that their record speaks very well for the teams they have defeated.

Be it known, however, that the Gophers are a gritty bunch, and never admit defeat until the last man is out and the game is over. They came from behind and so badly outplayed their rivals in the latter part of the game that their opponents seemed bewildered and unable to understand just what was going on. The main features of the game was the batting of the Gophers who walked up to the plate and hammered in runs in a fashion that would bring awe to any opposing pitcher. The score by innings:

Terrebonne.....	2	0	4	1	0	0	0	0	0	7
St. Hilaire......	2	0	3	0	2	0	1	0	–	9

Umpires, Pitkin and Fellman.
Scorekeeper, O. O. Kankel.
Casualties, none.

The St. Hilaire Gophers will journey to Terrebonne tomorrow for a game and if they do not return with a scalp dangling from their belts they'll return —well, bald headed.

The Fair

Notwithstanding the threatening and and rainy weather the Pennington county fair this week was attended by an immense crowd of people, of whom St. Hilaire and vicinity furnished not a small portion.

The exhibit which attracted most at was that of the farm produce raised on Pennington county soil. The following are some of the products: Celery, cabbage, lettuce, cauliflower, tomatoes, citron, cucumbers, squash, grapes, apples, onions, rhubarb, potatoes, roots of all kinds, corn, flax, wheat, barley, oats, rye, timothy, red top, red clover, and alsike

The display of stock was good. There were cattle, hogs, sheep, chickens, turkeys, geese, etc., in endless array.

The department of fancy sewing, decorated china, etc., had many fine exhibits. The most noticeable was the valuable silver cups and vases, by Hans Wilson of this place, trophies won by his son, James Ward, the noted aviator for Curtis Bros.

There were a number of races, in which horses were entered from St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls, Angus, Courtany, Crookston, Warren, and Grand Forks. Mike McAndress of this place entered his mare.

The entertainment features were fakes, pure and simple. The much advertised flying machine was kept safe in a tent and exhibited at 10 cts. per. The carnival proposition was a humbug from start to finish. The one redeeming feature was the fine music discoursed by the Warren band at every opportunity.

Rural School Notes

The teachers' training school closed at Red Lake Falls on Friday, July 28. A reception was tendered the faculty Thursday evening at which it was my good luck to be present. It was a most enthusiastic gathering. It is a matter of congratulation to Mr. Anderson and the city of Red Lake Falls, which vied with one another to make the school one of the best held in the county. The faculty was a strong one and is to be commended for the efficiency of the work done. The inspiration we will carry with us in our work for another year.

A goodly number of teachers have taken the examinations this year. If certificates are returned in response to applications made, we should have teachers enough for our schools. Indications are, however, that there will be a scarcity of teachers holding first and second grade certificates. The reason for this is the change in the law permitting state aid to Class C schools or those having seven months school during the year.

It will be advisable for school trustees to have teachers engaged in time for opening schools in the fall. Let me know your wishes and I shall try to attend to them. Kindly look to the repairs to your schools in time, so as to insure a successful school year.

How are you getting along, boys and girls, with your contest work? Grains and garden vegetables should do very well this year—yes, even corn should grow well. Do not forget that we will have a contest coming in October. Let the girls plan to bring in for exhibits the best display of needle work ever shown in any county.

The following teachers took the examinations in this city July 31 and Aug. 1 and 2:

FIRST GRADE CERTIFICATES

Clara L. Backe, Thief River Falls.
Fred Sheldrew, Grygla.
Louise Netteland, St. Hilaire.

SCOTCH SHEEP DOGS AT STATE FAIR

Combined Entertainment and Instruction by Champion Dogs and Sheep Farmers.

Brought Direct From Scotland for Their First Appearance in America at Minnesota Exhibition.

Real Scotch sheep dog trials, in which the competitors will be champion Scotch collies, and their owners, the United Kingdom's most famous sheep farmers, will be a big attraction of the 1911 Minnesota State Fair and Exposition. Six dogs and three shepherds will be brought direct from Scotland for the occasion.

The trials, which are an important feature at all the big agricultural shows in England and Scotland, will be seen for the first time in America at Minnesota's big fair next September. The event will be a feature of the afternoon program every day during the fair and the announcement of it has already aroused more than unusual enthusiasm.

JOHN JOHNSTONE.

Appreciating the value as an attraction of the sheep dog trials Secretary J. C. Simpson, after much correspondence and continued efforts, has succeeded in completing arrangements for bringing to the Minnesota State Fair, John Johnstone, James Scott and Mr. Robertson, three of the best known and most successful sheep farmers in the United Kingdom. These men with six dogs all of which have won many prizes for the handling of sheep, will start for this country next month and will be in Minnesota during the six days of the fair and perhaps longer. Two of the dogs are international prize winners.

The trials will be conducted every afternoon during the fair. They will be given over a course eight feet wide and about a half mile in length, to be laid out on the fair grounds. The starting point will be on the hill near the agricultural buildings and from there the course will lay across the track through gates, back and forth through the center field and will end in pens in front of the grandstand.

Throughout its length the course will be marked only by short flags. Over this course a flock of sheep, probably three or four in number, will be driven by each dog in turn. The expired time of each trial will not be more than twelve minutes and during that time the collie will [illegible] his sheep over the entire course and pen them. During the performance of his dog the shepherd remains in one position, usually about the center of the course. A large part of the way he is out of hearing, but always in sight of his collie. He directs his course in various ways, some times by a shout or whistle, but more often merely by a motion of his hands.

The Progressive Republicans Meet

At a meeting of progressive republicans at Thief River Falls Thursday the following resolutions were adopted:

As republicans we are heartily in favor of the success of the republican party, fully realizing that in the past it has been the party of progress, and we fully agree that the many reforms that our country stands in need of today can, we think, be best realized through the party which has served us so well in the past.

The progressive ideas and deeds of our former president, Theodore Roosevelt, we heartily commend; and it is with extreme regret that cannot extend the hearty commendations to the present administration.

If the success of the party is to continue, we are fully of the opinion that the so called progressive element must prevail in the party councils and progressive men with progressive ideas must lead next year. To this end we favor the nomination for president of some man of honor and action who will favor reforms and principles such as are now advocated by Senator Robert Lafollette of Wisconsin and others.

For over forty years the farmers of the northwest, and of Minnesota in particular, have consistently been in favor of the principles of a protective tariff. They accepted as a fact that protection would build up a home market for the products of the farm and that ultimately the farmer would come to his just reward.

Such a condition is about to be realized, and we condemn as unjust and unreasonable and a direct violation of faith the Canadian reciprocity pact which the present administration has just forced by the use of patronage, the aid of the democratic party, and other unjust and unlawful means through our congress.

We are fully of the opinion that if protection is good for the eastern manufacturer it is equally as good for the western farmer and we again reassert that the Canadian reciprocity pact is an unfair, unjust discrimination against the American farmer, and in favor of the trust protected manufacturer.

The firm stand taken by our United States senators, Honorable Knute Nelson and Honorable Moses E. Clapp and by our representatives in congress Honorable Halvor Steenerson in their fight against the Canadian reciprocity pact meets with our heartiest commendation, and we respectfully ask that they continue the good fight that in the end the trust protected manufacturer receive no more protection than does the American farmer.

Respectfully submitted,

Rooting

"As the twig is bent so the tree is inclined." As you parents bring up your children so will they grow to manhood and be straight upright men.

The rooting at the game last Sunday is something to be lamented especially that of some of the juvenile rooters. A visiting team coming to our town for a game of ball should be treated courteously and not vilified with epethets an personal insults such as was the case at last Sunday's game. There was to be sure, some out of town rooters who indulged in this disgraceful way at the game but that should be no excuse for our own boys. They should be taught better ways. The "Gophers" can only ask that rooters in the future, refrain from using personal abuse or stay away from the games.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

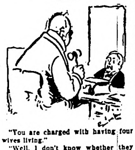
TOO HARD WORK.



"You are charged with having four wives living."

"Well, I don't know whether they are all living or not, judge; I can't keep track of them all."

A Hard-Worked Man.

Perhaps we do not realize it, but the president of the United States is one of the hardest worked men in the republic. The head of a big corporation, E. H. Gary, for instance, can slip away to Europe and the organization will run itself until he returns, but the president, surrounded as he is by a corps of capable assistants and advisers, must be on the job practically every day in the year.

Today William H. Taft is the busiest official who holds a high elective position. A governor can get away from official cares—although his pay may be docked if he stays away too long—but the president must get his vacation in driblets. His vacations consist of fifteen-minute intervals in which nobody actually is waiting to see him.

LUCKY MISTAKE.

Grocer Sent Pkg. of Postum and Opened the Eyes of the Family.

A lady writes from Brookline, Mass.:

"A package of Postum was sent me one day by mistake.

"I notified the grocer, but finding that there was no coffee for breakfast next morning I prepared some of the Postum, following the directions very carefully.

"It was an immediate success in my family, and from that day we have used it constantly, parents and children, too—for my three rosy youngsters are allowed to drink it freely at breakfast and luncheon. They think it delicious, and I would have a mutiny on my hands should I omit the beloved beverage.

"My husband used to have a very delicate stomach while we were using coffee, but to our surprise his stomach has grown strong and entirely well since we quit coffee and have been on Postum.

"Noting the good effects in my family I wrote to my sister, who was a coffee toper, and after much persuasion got her to try Postum.

"She was prejudiced against it at first, but when she presently found that all the ailments that coffee gave her left and she got well quickly she became and remains a thorough and enthusiastic Postum convert.

"Her nerves, which had become shattered by the use of coffee have grown healthy again, and today she is a new woman, thanks to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich., and the "cause why" will be found in the great little book, "The Road to Wellville," which comes in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Minneapolis.—C. A. Smith, head of the C. A. Smith Lumber company and member of the university board of regents, has purchased a residence property in Berkeley, Cal., where he and his family will make their winter home for a time.

Crookston. — The most spectacular fire in a score of years destroyed six frame buildings and the Crookston auditorium in the heart of the city last night. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin. The loss is about $30,000.

Little Falls.—Fire in the plant of the electric company here caused several thousand dollars damage. The fire was due to a short circuit on the switchboard, entirely destroying it and damaging two 700 horsepower dynamos. A small dynamo is now furnishing light for the city.

Duluth.—It is learned that Alderman-at-Large H. J. Irwin, of Two Harbors, will not heed the election of July 25, when his socialist brethren invoked the recall and chose Alfred Johnson for the office. He announces that he will not give up his seat in the council without a fight to a finish in the courts.

Stillwater—The St. Croix Pine and Cedar company is the name of a new lumbering corporation organized with headquarters in this city. The capital stock is $50,000 and the incorporators have been in the lumbering business for years, they being Joseph A. Irvine, Jacob R. Kolliner and James C. Sullivan, all of Stillwater.

St. Paul.—State Forester Cox returned from a trip through the north. He visited many sections and took several long tramps through the woods with the rangers. He found that the country had had considerable rain and that there is now no great danger of fires. Cook and Lake counties are the only counties that are dry.

Minneapolis. — The McCaul-Webster Elevator Company has started action in the district court against the Great Northern Railway company for freight rebates amounting to $306.73 on shipments of lumber and merchandise made from points in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa to Winnebago, Neb., nearly six years ago.

St. Paul.—Lightning struck the basement of the saloon of Wiedl Brothers, almost completely wrecking the basement. The large refrigerator and a great deal of stock stored in it were destroyed. The bolt did not set fire to the building, however, and aside from wrecking the icebox and stunning some of the patrons upstairs, no damage was done.

Winona.—A contract has been closed whereby the Brooks Elevator company of Minneapolis will take charge of the salvage work at the ruins of the Bay State mill and elevator here, and this work already has been started, under the supervision of J. R. Martin of Minneapolis. The wheat and flour saved can be made over into feed that will realize something on the loss.

Akeley.—During a severe electrical storm here a bolt of lightning struck the big livery barn of John Snider, Sr. The south half of the barn was reduced to splinters and the barn set on fire. The fire was discovered by a mill hand and the night patrol of the Red River Lumber company fire department extinguished the flames before the general alarm summoned the Akeley fire department. The horses or occupants of the barn were not injured.

St. Paul.—The Northwestern Cream Shippers' association opened its office in the Germania Life Building with C. L. Hubbell, general secretary, in charge. The association grew out of a meeting at the Saint Paul in June which leading cream buyers and shippers of this section attended. It was organized for the purpose of grading cream and paying for it according to quality, and promoting in every possible way the dairy industry of the state.

Stillwater.—The village of Lake Elmo's first bank has opened for business. It is one of a series of state banks that is backed by capitalists of Stillwater and other cities among them W. E. Dickson, John Q. Mackintosh, and the railroad contractors, Thoree and Sandee. They are interested in the Seven Corners bank, St. Paul, and in other banks in this city and elsewhere. The State Bank of Lake Elmo is the name chosen. The capital stock is $10,000.

Roseau.—A direct road between Roseau and Warroad has long been needed, and now, as a result of drainage, an almost straight road leading from Warroad will be built, running fourteen miles west and connecting with the road from Roseau, which leaves only one mile of road to be built, and that across section 18, in Spruce town. Commissioner Enstrom, in whose district it lies, is promoting the completion of this mile and also to have this road declared a state road, so as to be in a position to share in the state aid when necessary.

Duluth.—Sixty Italians employed by Butler Bros., stripping contractors at the Grant mine, at Buhl, have struck for an advance of 25 cents a day in wages. They are now getting $1.75. One of the men was arrested for using profane language and was fined $15. Otherwise the men are behaving quietly.

Red Wing. — A immense cheese weighing three tons, which will be exhibited at the Minnesota state fair, was manufactured on a flat car in the Pine Island railroad yards by the Pine Island creamery. The cheese is said to be the largest ever made.

Rochester. — Otto Driske, a young man of this county, was drowned while swimming in the Zumbrota river, between Jarret's Ford and Millville, with a company of friends.

Flags Train; Saves 150 Passengers.

Bellefontaine, Ohio. — With a shirt torn from his back Robert Cook of Degraff flagged Big Four flyer No. 11 at Quincy curve, probably saving the 150 passengers abroad from death. Cook, while walking along the tracks, discovered a broken rail. He ripped off his shirt and, running half a mile up the track, stopped the train.

THEY CHEATED AT CARDS

Experienced Shopper, Who Was Wise, Put Hubby Onto Facts of the Case.

Speaking of family poker parties, this really happened:

A young married couple attended such a session at the home of a neighbor the other night. And when this young couple got home, the female end of the sketch said:

"Jim, I hate to say anything about the Halls—they seem to be nice people. But I'm afraid they cheat at cards."

"Nonsense!"

"I knew you'd say that, and it's dear of you to be so unsuspecting. But—well, what was the price of the chips, tonight? Five cents each? That's what I thought. Jim, I examined those chips carefully, and they're the very same thing that I could have bought at Jones's store for a dollar a hundred in all three colors, too!"

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura.

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 16 L, Boston.

His Thoughtful Wife.

"I hate to boast," said a Cleveland lawyer, "but my wife is one of the most economical women in the world. The other day she told me she needed a new suit. I said she ought to have it, by all means, but asked her not to spend a big bunch of money without letting me know about it. Well, the next day she said: 'The tailor said he couldn't make the suit for less than $150. I thought it was too much, but told him to go ahead.'

"'Well, I suppose it is all right,' I said, 'but why didn't you consult me first.'

"'Why, dearie, I didn't want to spend car fare for two visits.'

"I tell you, it's these little economies that count, eh?"

MONUMENT TO PERRY

Hero of Lake Erie to Have Memorial.

Big Celebration Is Planned in Honor of American Commodore Who Defeated the British in Memorable Engagement.

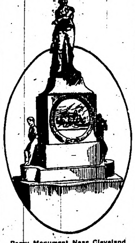
Cleveland, O.—Doubtless everybody has read in the newspapers of an act of congress, passed at the recent session, for the commemoration of the centennial anniversary of the battle of Lake Erie, which was fought by Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry against a British fleet under Captain Barclay off Put-in-Bay. An appropriation of $250,000 was made as a contribution toward a general fund to pay for a suitable monument, and the president was authorized to appoint three commissioners.

The centennial celebration had already been agitated for two years in Ohio and the legislature of the state had already appropriated $80,000. The legislature of Pennsylvania had appropriated $100,000 and the Rhode Island legislature had appropriated $25,000 by a unanimous vote, but the governor vetoed the bill after it had adjourned.

Bills have been introduced in the legislatures of New York for $75,000, in Illinois and Wisconsin for $50,000 each and it is expected that Kentucky will do equally well, because that state furnished nearly all the soldiers for General Harrison's army in the war of 1812, and a squad of the gunners in Commodore Perry's fleet. A good deal is expected from Michigan, but nothing has been done there yet except to appoint a commission to meet with those representing the national government and Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Rhode Island, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Illinois.

It is proposed to erect a lofty column, at least 450 feet high, with a lighthouse and a wireless telegraph office at the top, and at the base an auditorium that will seat at least 1,200 people. Within the shaft it is proposed to have historical, military and naval museums and rendezvous for the naval militia and the yacht clubs on the lakes. It is also proposed to bring from the harbor of Havana one of the masts of the battleship Maine to be used as a flagstaff. Several 12-inch guns from the Oregon and from the Spanish battleship Viscaya are to secured and used as ornaments at the base of the monument.

While the Perry victory will not be celebrated until 1913, arrangements are already under way in various lake ports along the lower Lake Erie preparing for the occasion which will fittingly mark the one hundredth anniversary of Perry's victory. Not only will the various state national guardsmen be sent to the lake region for the occasion, but the military and naval departments of the United States government have promised to send federal troops and middies to take part. The committee on military and naval affairs has framed a tentative program by which the famous "battle of Fallen Timbers," "siege of Fort Meigs," "battle of Fort Sandusky" and "battle of Fort Stephenson" will be reproduced in the lake near this section and Put-in-Bay, the latter place containing the cave where Commodore Perry hid for some weeks following the battle in which his ships were lost. The "battle of the Thames" will also be reproduced according to present plans. Thousands of regular troops and many brigades of the various state militia will be camped near Put-in-Bay where they will give a sham battle as one of the leading features of the celebration. They will be met near there by war vessels of the British and American navies to assist in the maneuvers. Later, "Perry's victory of Lake Erie" will be staged near Put-in-Bay.



Perry Monument Near Cleveland

The events reproduced will be events of nearly 25 years of warfare between Americans on one side and British and Indians on the other. Only the most important events will be enacted, so that the performance will not last more than 14 days.

There is no suitable monument for Commodore Perry and his four brothers, the most famous family of sea fighters in the United States. The father and five sons were officers of the navy and two of the sisters married naval men.

Completes Freak Home.

Long Beach, Cal.—D. N. Hauk of this city has completed an original residence. The front door is designed after the entrance of an Indiana barn dear to the heart of Mr. Hauk. The ceiling also is a faithful replica of the old barn ceiling and he did not overlook a stable door at the top of the stairs landing. In garish contrast to this barnyard atmosphere, a mantel of gray granite set with rubies, emeralds, turquoise and other stones, struggles for recognition in the [illegible]

MARCUSE, CALIFORNIA, LAND FOR PROFITABLE FARMING.

Marcuse Colony, located in Sutter County, which is in the heart of the Sacramento Valley, is fast coming to the front as a farming community in which nearly every agricultural product known may be successfully raised without irrigation.

The soil is a dark, sandy loam, sedimentary in character, level and well drained. It has the advantage over other soils in that it is loose in character and superior to heavy soils.

With this wealth of soil, abundance of water, unexcelled climate and long growing season, Marcuse Colony is the ideal place for the homeseeker with limited means, the worn out professional man, or the young man looking for a small farm in a healthful climate.

The proximity of Marcuse Colony to Sacramento, furnishes a ready market for vegetables, poultry, eggs and dairy products. Fruits, vegetables, alfalfa, grains and grasses and poultry yield large returns. The rainfall is certain and drought is unknown.

Land is yet moderately priced, but crop failures in other sections of the United States will bring new settlers in rapidly. This, together with the holding of the Panama Pacific Exposition in San Francisco during 1915, is bound to raise the price, and whether for a home, or for an investment, now is the time to purchase. Land may be had in tracts suitable to the means of all and the results obtained are almost beyond belief. Further information will be gladly furnished by HOMESEEKERS' INFORMATION BUREAU, 630 Bee Bldg., Omaha, Neb.

Backache, Headache and Dizziness Caused Untold Misery.

Henry J. White, 416 No. 3rd St., Ft. Smith, Ark., says: "I suffered everything but death from terrible kidney trouble. I did not have a moment's peace. The urine resembled blood and left a red stain when it touched the linen. When passed, fire could not have burned more. I had awful headaches and dizzy spells and my back ached constantly. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills after various remedies had failed to help me and was completely cured. I have had no sign of kidney trouble since."

SEN. FRYE DEAD

AGED SOLON, LONG TIME A POWER IN CONGRESS, PASSES IN LEWISTON.

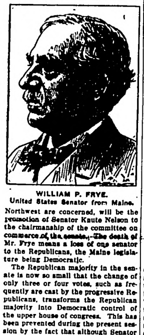
IN SENATE THIRTY YEARS

Changes in Organization Will be Necessary.—Knute Nelson to be Made Chairman of Commerce Committee.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. .—The state of Maine lost its senior United States senator and an almost lifelong faithful servant when William Pierce Frye died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Helen White, in this city. At his bedside were Mrs. White and his other daughter, Mrs. Alice Briggs, who also resides in Lewiston.

A general breakdown, due to his age and his extremely arduous career, is ascribed by Senator Frye's physicians as the cause of death. President Taft and Governor Plaisted were notified of the death of Senator Frye.

Washington, D. C. — The death of Senator Frye will create some important changes in the organization of the United States senate, chief among which, so far as the interests of the Northwest are concerned, will be the promotion of Senator Knute Nelson to the chairmanship of the committee on commerce of the senate. The death of Mr. Frye means a loss of one senator to the Republicans, the Maine legislature being Democratic.



WILLIAM P. FRYE.
United States Senator from Maine.

The Republican majority in the senate is now so small that the change of only three or four votes, such as frequently are cast by the progressive Republicans, transforms the Republican majority into Democratic control of the upper house of congress. This has been prevented during the present session by the fact that although Senator Frye has not been in his seat during the special session, the rule as to "pairs" has protected his vote, and Senator Bacon, of Georgia, who has been paired with the Maine senator, has not voted at any time when he could not furnish another Democratic senator to pair with Frye during his absence.

Senator Frye belonged to the old school of Republican statesmen, and for many years he was a power in the senate, often being chosen president of that body, pro tempore, in the absence of the vice president. He resigned that position at the beginning of the present session, and the controversy over the election of his successor, the choice of the Republicans having fallen by caucus agreement upon Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, brought about the first definite contest over the control of the senate, the insurgent Republicans uniting to defeat the election of Senator Gallinger.

The transfer of Senator Nelson to the commerce committee will necessitate relinquishment by the Minnesota senator of the public lands committee chairmanship, which may go either to Mr. Dixon, of Montana, or Mr. Heyburn, of Idaho.

Senator Frye was one of the last two of that remarkable coterie of Maine statesmen which began with Hannibal Hamlin and ended with himself and Senator Hale, who retired at the close of the last session of congress and included James G. Blaine, William Pitt Fessenden, Thomas B. Reed, and Nelson Dingley.

Both he and Hale began service in the senate in 1881, and served the nation side by side for 30 years, a much longer tie than any other two men ever sat together in the senate, whether from the same state or not.

Senator Cullom now becomes the ranking senator in point of long service.

Statehood Bill Passed.

The bill granting statehood to New Mexico and Arizona—legislation that has been for many years the dream of the people of those territories—was passed by the senate 53 to 18, after rejection of the Nelson amendment which proposed striking out of the Arizona constitution its judiciary recall provision.

JUDGES WERE OVERPAID.

Milwaukee Jurists Received $1,000 a Year Too Much.

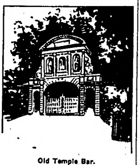
Milwaukee, Wis. — Judges of the circuit courts of Milwaukee county have been overpaid $1,000 a year for the last six years, according to an opinion handed down by District Attorney W. C. Zabel. The matter will be investigated by the county board. The members of this branch of the judiciary have been receiving $6,000 a year.

TEMPLE BAR TO BE RESTORED

One of the Original Gates of London to Be Permanently Erected in Epping Forest.

London.—Londoners are keenly interested in the proposed restoration to the city of Temple Bar, one of original gates of London, made possible by the recent death of Lady Meux, on whose estate it has stood since 1878.

In that year it was taken down from its position in Fleet street, as it impeded the increasing traffic, and the late Sir Henry Meux bought it, had all the stones carefully marked and erected again at the entrance of his estate, Theobald's park at Chestnut, a little way out of London, where it has stood ever since. It is suggested now to put it up in Epping forest, one of the nearest open spaces to London, and the property of the city, but some antiquarians are of the opinion that it should be brought nearer the heart of things than that, for old associations' sake.



Old Temple Bar.

What a "sermon in stones" the old gate could give if it could speak! Here, in the old days, the watchman looked out on to pleasant fields and country roads, while passengers passed in under the ancient doorway after their long and sometimes adventurous journeys from Brighton or Portsmouth. Here, from time to time, breathless horsemen dashed up with tales of plunder by highwaymen on the wilds of the Hampstead Heath. During the great fire at London Temple Bar was nearly destroyed, but it was restored in 1870 by Sir Christopher Wren.
